Samizdat!

The coming of winter is something deeply intertwined with the European consciousness. We are the people who dared to travel to frozen wastes and build vast cities within them while lesser races were content to languish in warmer climes. It strikes deep at the heart of what it is to be white. The onset of Yuletide is a time of year filled with ancient magic. Though it is labeled the Christmas season, Christ was likely born around February. This is the most pagan of holidays, and all children still beg before an icon of Wotan we now call Santa.

When the first snowfall came to my village this year I ran through the cobblestone roads laughing, grateful for the familiar embrace of she who Eastern Slavs might call Mara and the Western Slavs might call Marzanna, the goddess of the winter. Truly, her touch is more honest and heartening than that of any despicable harlot. She is my true love, my bride for the season. And in true WHITE SHARIA fashion, I will drown her when I am done with her. The tradition among Slavic pagans is to make an effigy of her and throw her in the river when the ice begins to break up.

Along the way to the Christmas markets across Deutschland now are large trucks. They just park them in the road as obstacles, so nobody can use the roads anymore. The only thing that can stop a bad guy with a truck of peace is a good guy with a truck of peace. Roads were useful infrastructure once I guess, before the invaders flooded our ancestral homelands.

/pol/ came up with a scheme of meme magic to solve this problem for Europe a couple years ago, to have everyone pray to a “Winter-chan” for a legendarily brutal winter. They unfortunately used images of Skaði, a Norse winter goddess likely prayed to in generations past for intercession and the easing of winter. A very moderate winter did they receive through Europe. One would think you would pray to a properly cruel winter God.

Wulthuz! Wulthuz! Wulthuz! When the sun begins to wane, thou emergest lord of this frozen, frigid fane. Though thy harsh ways of shorter days are the bane of many Nord, Saxon, and Dane One would be a fool to deny thy supremacy round Yule, so I cheer thy rule.

That’s an invocation I wrote to a diety known as Wulthuz to the Germans and Ullr to the Norse, known for his exceptionally cold hearted and silent nature. We got hard snows at the after I recited it from within a federal prison. It brought levity to my heart to wade through massive drifts on the prison yard. Marzanna, too, is considered quite a cruel goddess. “в объятиях мары” meaning “in the arms of Mara” is a phrase used to describe dying of exposure. Far more appropriate figures to pray before if one would see a continent enveloped in ice.

I’m dreaming of a white Christmas.

I don't really believe the theory that Jews publicly disagree with each other for the sole purpose of trying to confuse goyim.

They disagree publicly because they run competing goyim groups, which is sort of like that, but not really. It's just controlling everything.

This is going to spiral out of control very quickly.

Basically, we're now in the run-up to WWII, during which a real Holocaust will take place.

RT:

An Israeli security guard has been severely wounded in a stabbing attack outside Jerusalem's central bus station, paramedics say. The knifeman has been taken alive into custody.

Medics at the scene treated a 25-year-old man for a stab wound to his upper body, Magen David Adom (MDA), head of Israel's national medical emergency service, said on Twitter. The attack occurred on Jaffa Street in central Jerusalem.

Little is known about the attacker beyond the detail that he was neutralized and sustained a head wound, but survived.

Israeli police later confirmed that the attacker was a 24-year-old Palestinian man. The background of the attacker, who tried to escape but was apprehended, is currently being investigated.

The attack comes at a time of heightened tensions over the US recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital. The move, announced by President Donald Trump earlier this week, triggered massive and violent protests in the Gaza Strip, West Bank and Jerusalem itself.

Over 1,000 Palestinians were involved in demonstrations, including 600 people in the West Bank and 450 in Gaza, the Israeli Defense Forces (IDF) said on Friday. Dozens of people were injured during riots in Bethlehem Saturday, the Palestinian Health Ministry said as cited by WAFA.

This party is just getting started.

There is zero chance the Jews aren't going to step-up bombings in Palestine because of this.

And they're almost certainly going to invade Lebanon soon.

Remember to Join Gab and Follow Andrew Anglin

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer

Gab is a Twitter knockoff that allows free speech that I use

There was some drama regarding the site a while ago, after weev was banned.

However, it does look like the owner of the site, Andrew Torba, was just confused when some boomer on Twitter claimed that the statements weev made were illegal. They haven't banned anyone else that I'm aware of.

So I just want to remind everyone that it is there.

It doesn't have very good functionality, though it is slowly getting better.

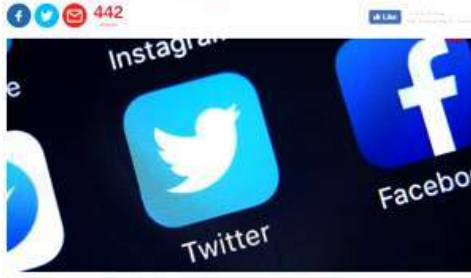

You have to sign-up for the site to read it—which is so dumb I can't even process why Torba thinks this is a good idea (is he short on bandwidth?); after he went on Tucker Carlson, I said "he's gotta have changed that shit..." and logged out to check and found that nope—even with the site on a show watched by millions of people, he does not want people to be able to see what is going on.

But it's worth it. I post on there a lot now, and we've got a solid community. Twitter is supposed to purge everyone on the 18th of this month and probably will.

Twitter gives neo-Nazis and extremists a deadline to quit hate groups or risk being barred

Anyone affiliated with violent organisations risk suspension; new policy states.

Twitter has announced a new policy that will bar users who are affiliated with violent organisations or hate groups. The policy will be implemented by the end of the year.

And regardless of my rage as an investor at some of the stupid moves, Gab functions. There is no app, but you can use it on a phone in the browser comfortably.

I use it no as my primary platform outside of this site, so if you're trying to get at me, that is the best place to do it. Honestly, I don't even hardly ever open my email anymore.

And of course, it is updated when our domain goes down.

Nothing to Troll

It's a separate thing to be on a social media site that is only right-wing

I think there is a chance that large numbers of Jews will follow us over there (some already have). It will be a specific type of Jew though who is trying to "reverse-troll," and that just gets boring and tedious.

There was a fake news journalist e-stalking me on there a while back and it was like, childish name-calling. It was cringe af. Obviously, name-calling is a part of trolling, but these people are too dense to understand that trolling is a performance art involving multiple complex variables. I don't want to give away too many trade secrets here, but a mass storm of people calling you a kike is less about being called a kike and more about the mass storm. It is the scale of it. And you always choose targets based on their ability to be emotionally manipulated into doing what you want them to do.

The reasons the Alt-Right is based on trolling is that we needed to use the mechanism of the establishment to draw attention to ourselves, as well as create an image that appeals to youth. This is political warfare, not a plan hurt the feelings of specific individuals.

What is a Jew that goes on a free-speech platform to attack Nazis even trying to do? The fact that it goes on there at all means that it is being trolled—you're so deep in their heads that after they finally succeed in getting you banned from Twitter they're sitting around thinking "I wonder what the Groypers are up to?"

These sorts of characters are always going to be boring, and furthermore interacting with them on Gab serves no political purpose (especially when no one without an account can't even fucking read what is going on on the site). Creating the feeling of being under siege is a big part of why continued anti-Jewish/anti-journalist operations are necessary on social media—when they come looking for you it defeats the point.

Split Usage, New Trolling

I know you guys used to use Twitter for both trolling and brotherly camaraderie, and I know that's nice, but you're going to have to isolate these behaviors. Gab is fine for the latter.

Furthermore, Twitter trolling needs to evolve. Targeted hate speech isn't viable anymore.

Basically, the whole concept of Twitter trolling is going to have to be transformed into something along the lines of my article "How to be a Nigger on Twitter." (Something which is literally being taught in schools now, btw. I mean the article is being read as part of a lesson on Alt-Right trolling, not that they're teaching people how to be niggers on Twitter. Someone posted screenshots from the class and I can't find them right now.)

It doesn't have to be just being a nigger, but being some form of leftist in a manner that is basically believable.

That is going to be hard to do, but we have to evolve.

The goal should be to call for insane things—in particular, more censorship. Simply deploying mass-reporting accounts wouldn't work. You have to embed yourselves into communities and create a demand among them to continue to push the censorship further and further.

The first easy ones would be Alt-Lite figures. Find up old screenshotted Tweets that they've deleted.

We have to have Twitter as a company destroyed due to censorship. This will increase calls for regulation regarding speech from Silicon Valley itself.

Endgame 2018

Cloudflare CEO Matthew Prince said that he got 35,000 demands terminate services after terminating those of DS, and that he has no interest in figuring out which of them are or are not too evil to remain on the internet. That is basically what they are all thinking—even Jew Zuckerberg didn't want to start with heavy censorship on Facebook, and directly refused, back in 2014, requests from the ADL to take down large anti-Semitic pages.

We have to get these laws, at some point. And I would rather have it be sooner rather than later. The stupid asshole ADL was banking on abolishing the First Amendment and establishing "hate speech" laws, then when Hillary lost they went nuts with these attacks on private companies without realizing it was going to cause the exact opposite of their goal to happen. The Jews should have bought Twitter when they had the chance rather than demand that @jack destroy his own company in order to satisfy them—then when they banned everyone, there would be a little bit of confusion with regards to what caused the company to collapse.

As it stands now, when there are no more Nazis to argue with on Twitter so everyone goes back to Facebook, it's going to be very clear to everyone what happened: A bunch of Jews went to a guy's company, said they didn't like the way he was running it and if he didn't change the way he was running it to meet their demands they would continually vilify him and his company in the media. He met their demands and it destroyed his company.

Clearly, we have gone way past the point where companies themselves can come out and say "we're stopping censoring people for their politics." But what happened to DS—what is still happening to DS—creates a framework for government intervention. Especially when you combine it with kicking people off of Uber and Airbnb— "certain people should be banned from freely speaking, and furthermore, shouldn't be allowed to move freely or sleep in a warm place because of their political beliefs" is not a proposition that has ever been forwarded, but one which will not be popular if it is isolated from the word "Nazi" (the word itself is losing most of its impact anyway).

We need the government to come in and say "the internet is infrastructure and Silicon Valley doesn't have any more right to tell people what they're allowed to say on it than AT&T has a right to decide what you're allowed to say over the phone."

And the recent FCC filing that weev wrote about appears to indicate they're ready to start moving in that direction. Prince flew to DC to demand the government do it.

There are going to be increasing calls for this all around.

CNN is so tonedeaf they don't see it coming and they think "SHUT EVERYTHING DOWN" is still viable, even while they're talking directly to Matthew Prince.

Tech CEOs are faced with the weaponization of their platforms and they're falling into the uncomfortable role of gatekeepers of content online. They spoke to me candidly about the fine line between censorship and free speech. Watch the segment on @NewDay <https://t.co/f1NNzHZwvL>

— Laurie Segall (@LaurieSegall-CNN) December 7, 2017

I guess there is just the assumption on the left that as long as they always push in the same direction, they get what they want. But this is a situation where they have pushed way, way too far and this is just going to swallow itself up.

I don't know how expansive government regulations will be. It's possible they will end up only covering critical infrastructure like Cloudflare. But all of the companies want to be put under this. I guarantee you. Because these people are calling for Twitter to ban the President of the United States—it's in the above CNN clip!—and that is not sustainable. It is clear that they are not going to kick all the Groyppers off and be done with it.

They're pushing for everyone that disagrees with anything Jews say to just be outright banned from everything.

So there is a chance that Twitter will be legally forced to let us all back on. But until that happens, get on Gab.

Sweden: Masked Men Firebomb Synagogue of Kikes!

RT:

In Gothenburg, Sweden, group of masked youths have attacked a synagogue with Molotov cocktails, amid a global backlash against the US decision to recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel. Three people were arrested following the incident, prosecutors say.

"A burning object has been thrown" just outside the synagogue building, Lars Tuneffjord, commanding officer at the police regional management center told Sveriges Radio. The officer added that police are currently at the scene conducting a "technical investigation and searching for the perpetrators."

Three people were arrested early on Sunday, a spokeswoman for the Swedish Prosecution Authority said, according to Reuters. The official did not report any motive for the attack. It was also unclear whether the attack was linked to Trump's recognition of Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

According to witness accounts, a fire started in the yard of the synagogue shortly after 10:00pm local time, after pro-Palestinian protesters, demonstrating against President Donald Trump's decision to recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, pelted the building with burning projectiles. One of the firebombs landed just outside the synagogue compound where local Jewish students were holding an event.

This is just getting started.

The hajis might not storm Jerusalem, but they're gonna keep up this pressure for a long while.

Vaping Named Daily Stormer's Man of the Year for 2017!

Azzmador

Daily Stormer

December 9, 2017

Selecting the recipient of the prestigious Daily Stormer Man of the Year award is serious business, and because of this we go through an arduous selection process consisting of very strict protocols.

This year, the Daily Stormer Editorial Staff gathered in a top secret underground bunker at an undisclosed location deep in the heart of Lagos, Nigeria, and spent many days sitting around a briefcase bomb-proof oak table, while having paleo sandwiches and strong coffee delivered by compliant, scantily clad alt-lite female YouTubers.

First and foremost, we realized that in The Current Year™, it would be uncool and totally not trendy to name an actual person as Man of the Year, and so we made a list of things we could ironically call Man of the Year.

Below are some of the top contenders:

1. Papa John's Pizza
2. ThotGate
3. Jewish Miscalculations
4. BrainForce
5. Antifa Book Fairs
6. Trannyism

The list just went on and on, and though many of the items were strong contenders, none of them seemed to quite make the cut. Then we all began rubbing our heads in frustration, and as several of us took a hearty draw on our vapes, the exhalations filled the bunker with that rich, thick nicotine cloud, we realized that the winner was obvious!

The moment of revelation

And so we decided to name Vaping Daily Stormer's Man of the Year!

This works on every level. I went and had some medical tests done recently, to get myself cleared for working out. I have put my body through much unnecessary and foolish abuse over the years, one of the bigger examples being a 30 year cigarette smoking habit. I remember several years back, I had my lung capacity checked at the doctor's office, and the nurse said "Congratulations, you have the lung capacity of a healthy 52 year old," and I was all like "Ayo, hol' up, I'm just 45!"

So I go and have all these tests done recently, and after a couple of years of vaping, I have very healthy blood oxygen levels and a much better lung capacity.

You might say "But Azz, why not just quit nicotine altogether?"

She feels better and smarter now.

When you're in the business of fighting these Jews, you have to be able to think clearly, precisely, and quickly. You must have laser-focused attention, or these kikes will always slip one past you. Nicotine is great for this.

But cigarettes and other forms of tobacco are not only extremely unhealthy and life-shortening, they just don't give you the wallop you really need to be an effective professional racist.

Tobacco as a nicotine delivery system is just so 17th century. What we need today is powerful electronic delivery!

I asked vaping expert and publisher of this, The Most Censored Publication in History, to give his thoughts on the matter.

After turning 30, in order to focus on my agenda against the Jews, I started to need more nicotine. I was smoking two and a half packs a day, and still not getting the sweet nic-fix I needed. That's when I discovered vaping. 2017 was an epic year for vaping. With recent bitcoin profits, I went full-deluxe and purchased the Therion DNA 166 mod box and the dotmod petri RTA. 2017 was also the year I discovered Nasty Juice Green Ape. Vaping is more than just a way to get precious nicotine into your bloodstream. It is a way of life.

—Andrew Anglin

Well said, and great choices. I personally use a Sigelei Fuchai Duo 3 mod and an Aspire Cleito 120 tank, and my current favorite e-juice is Vigilante Skull and Crossbones, a sublime and complex flavor combo of butter rum cake, butterscotch drizzle, and marshmallow cream. At 80 watts, with 6 mg nicotine juice, I now have powerful enough cogitation to gas six gorillion kikes every day before lunchtime!

So this combination of healthiness, wholesomeness, hipness, and if I may be so bold, downright zestiness, is just what every American Nationalist needs to be the best White man he can be.

So congratulations to Vaping for winning this MAJOR AWARD! May your clouds float forever.

Swedish State TV Brings on Old Hags to Talk About Farting Out Semen

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
December 10, 2017

There are times when I can't even believe what I am seeing. I mean, I know things are bad, but sometimes you forget. You go about your day, spend some time with the folks for the holidays, get some Pad Thai and think, "hey, it's not so bad, really."

I knew a guy that worked in Africa. He was a total libshit, but he would tell me that the shit he saw there never even gets reported.

Why?

No one would even believe what these "people" get up to in Africa if they reported it in the West. I'm talking amputating limbs and eating them for magical cures, fucking pigmy chieftans in the ass (also for magical cures), and designated men "hyenas" that pop all the girls cherries in a village when they hit 12.

But now I'm at that same level with Sweden.

No one even believes me anymore.

Like what if I told them about this:

Video Link

You know, that state sponsored TV has a show talking about farting out cum loads from your ass and thinks that this is instructional for young girls.

I mean, try and put yourself in a basic bitch normie conservative's shoes.

He would not believe you. And even if he saw it, he wouldn't know how to respond. He might ask for additional proof. And then you'd show him what the producers of the show themselves said.

(in video description)

"In the talk show: "Really good sex—now also for girls" Amanda, Anna and Isabelle speak about their common interest—exciting, fun and good sex. Is it really nice to have sex to music, what's the easiest way to get a "fountain orgasm", and in what position is it nicest? We believe that girls have a great need to relate to and be inspired by others experience of fun and enjoyable sex. Throughout history female sexuality has been constructed as something passive and the male [sexuality] as something active, which has led to female sexuality being labelled as shameful, to be controlled and be tabu. Examples of "slut-shaming" are normal even today. Many women have also been exposed to different forms of sexual harassment, to a degree that has become painfully clear during #metoo Because society to a certain degree silences girls sexuality, and teache women to feel shame for being horny, many have a difficult time fully enjoying sex. Harassment and assault can complicate the access to sexual feelings and hornyness further. We think it is high time that women are allowed to be the center of sex and are allowed to speak freely instead. In "Really good sex", different poses, elevetaro sex, the first masturbation session, and sexual fantasies at the gynecologist are discussed. Threesomes, anal sex, and which form of hornyness is greatest—the one with new or old partners? Women rarely speak like that about sex on television—it is even more common that they are portrayed as sexual objects. We believe that personal stories, which are neither hard facts or dramatized fiction, fills a hole when it comes to sex programs. Our hope is that the program can led to more women daring to like sex without feeling shame, and maybe even having better sex. If not, it's wonderful to be able to relate to and laugh at sex-anecdotes. Because, as Isabelle says in the program. "It's fun to talk about fucking!" Stina Schedwin, executive producer at SVT Edit"

Look, I'm not a prude by any means.

But this has practically nothing to do with sex whatsoever. This has to do with public humiliation, and with the Jews trying to pull us down to the level of niggers.

They try to couch it in trendy, empowering, feminist poop-dick talk, but that's what it really is. They get a kick out of seeing us like this. When we're talking about Brown Gold or whatever, is when the Jews start cackling their loudest.

I caused that feel.

And non-Whites see this too.

What do you think they think of us? It's embarrassing to be quite honest fam. It's like having a stranger see you wash your dirty underwear and see the shirt stains from the Chipotle you had earlier in the day.

Fuck this gay earth, fam. Weimar had nothing on this.

I'm just happy that this is all being documented in ways that would have been impossible 100 years ago. We're never going to forgive, and we're never going to forget.

Everyone Hates New SJW "Star Trek"

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 10, 2017

Wow, only bigots could object to this beautiful interracial gay romance, smdh.

Sure, Star Trek was always about a stupid futuristic communist utopia. It always pushed this vision of a world where your race (or species, lol) didn't matter, as long as you had a good character.

That allowed normies to dream of a future where they wouldn't be shamed for being "evil White racists" and could go on with their lives.

But now, of course, that "dream" is different. "Colorblindness" is just another word for "racism" in the new Jew worldview.

So the new Star Trek had to go further, and present not only the "bad guys" as racists themselves, but also push all this gay crap on the audience.

And everyone hates it.

I wonder.

Wired:

Star Trek fans have been waiting over a decade for a new Star Trek TV show, so many fans were excited when Star Trek: Discovery finally aired back in September. But since its launch the show seems to have been met with an usually high degree of hostility from viewers, who have questioned everything from its uniforms to its ship designs. Writer Sara Lynn Michener thinks those concerns are overblown.

"When a show tries too hard to adhere to canon, it doesn't have as much flexibility for creativity," Michener says in Episode 285 of the Geek's Guide to the Galaxy podcast. "Even the idea that some people are suggesting that they should build an entire ship based on outdated technology is just nuts. It's just crazy."

Yeah good job dodging the question, there.

I'm sure people are sperging out about minutia because they can't figure out themselves what makes them hate the show so much. Hint: it's not the sets or uniforms.

Yeah, uh...still broken.

Discovery also features the first openly gay characters to appear on a Star Trek TV show—the ship's doctor, Hugh Culber (Wilson Cruz), and his partner, science officer Paul Stamets (Anthony Rapp). This has proven to be yet another source of controversy, with some viewers declaring that they refuse to watch a show about gay characters. It's a stance that science fiction editor John Joseph Adams finds particularly bizarre coming from Star Trek fans. "How do you reconcile everything else that's in Star Trek with hating somebody else because they're different?" he says. "It just doesn't compute."

DING DING DING!

Yeah, that's what people hate. Not the stupid uniforms.

There's a big difference between having White-presenting brown people act like reasonable crew members in previous shows, and featuring faggots as though it was exactly the same thing.

Homoism isn't "just something you are," it's a behavior.

A very specific behavior: sticking your penis inside other men's anuses.

And yes, that's a behavior incompatible with being a hero, or even a respectable man. So now the new "Star Trek utopia" isn't about "the content of your character over the color of your skin," but rather "we're all equal regardless of our behavior or moral character."

That's not something that can ever appeal to White people.

Science fiction author Anthony Ha agrees, noting that Star Trek has always had a political agenda. He says it was odd to see people complaining about the Discovery actors "politicizing" Star Trek by expressing solidarity with protesting NFL players.

"Look, if you disagree with that—well, you're wrong there too, but at least that's a position you can take," he says. "But if you're saying 'Star Trek should not be political,' that is a completely invalid and dumb position."

Yeah, and how did that work out for the NFL, buddy?

Of course, everything is political, and he's right that Star Trek always was.

What people really mean when they say "let's not be political" is that they don't want the show to push wildly unpopular fringe political ideologies that detract from the narrative of the show.

The normie masses are sick and tired of being fucked with from every side by hostile media elites. And they're rebelling against this propaganda by just tuning out en masse.

The good news is that the homosexualists and SJW's seem incapable of stopping what they're doing and save what little audience they have left.

Soon, the alternative culture we're currently building will be the only one left that even tries to appeal to normal White people. At that point, we win.

Harvard Punishes Students Who Belong to "Single-Gender" Clubs

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 10, 2017

Who wouldn't pay $200k to attend a school that constantly fucks with you?

Colleges can't seem to stop their accelerating plunge into becoming total SJW hellholes. Not only have all of these places been integrated, both by gender and race, for decades, but now it seems they're pushing to integrate even the student's private lives—against their will.

This is just another way they have of pushing away normal White men from attending. What's going to happen to Harvard's reputation when all of their graduates are Shanequa's and Tyrones? Do they think they'll keep their prestige and reputation after they consistently pump out worthless degenerates with "gender studies" degrees?

Campus Reform:

Harvard University announced Tuesday that it will formally adopt an interim policy forbidding students from serving in leadership roles if they belong to unrecognized single-gender clubs.

Outgoing President Drew Faust and Harvard Corporation fellow William F. Lee shared the news via email, reporting that the Corporation—not the faculty, as expected—had voted to maintain the school's existing policy on unrecognized single-gender social organizations (USG-SOs), which has been in place on an interim basis since May 2016.

"Under the policy, students may decide to join a USGSO and remain in good standing," a statement attached to the email asserts, though it also cautions that "decisions often have consequences, as they do here in terms of the students' eligibility for decanal endorsements and leadership positions supported by institutional resources."

Blah blah blah "discrimination" blah blah blah "diversity" blah blah blah...

USGSO's refer mainly to fraternities and sororities. In other words, organizations outside the jurisdiction of the school, which students join voluntarily in their own spare time.

So this policy makes members of these fraternities second-class students ineligible for leadership positions and other privileges. Of course, because of the wording of the policy, it only applies to fraternities that are segregated by gender.

The fact is that Harvard has been pressuring all these groups into allowing women (and vice-versa) since the 80's. In response, they dropped all official association with the school. So now, the college is trying to destroy them from the outside.

I wonder why colleges would have a problem with this. Hmmm...

Reiterating that "the policy does not discipline or punish the students," but rather "recognizes that students who serve as leaders of our community should exemplify the characteristics of non-discrimination and inclusivity that are so important to our campus," the Corporation's statement emphasizes its belief that the policy preserves "agency and choice" while balancing competing interests.

"Yeah we're not punishing them or anything, just taking away their leadership roles and making them out to be moral defectives."

"Not a punishment."

In November 2016, the Crimson determined that 60 percent of undergraduate students favored lifting the sanctions on USGSO members, a figure that had risen to 61 percent by the time of a second poll last month.

Of course, the school isn't adopting this policy because the students want it, but merely to push their political agenda. They don't want outside groups influencing the minds of their students and potentially affecting their brainwashing program.

They also want to eliminate all "male-only" spaces. You can be 100% sure that if there were only sororities, they wouldn't even care. But of course, they love spaces where "straight White males" are excluded, calling them "safe" spaces.

ISIS Wiped Out in Irak!

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 10, 2017

The last traces of the scum are being wiped out.

ISIS, also known as the "Israeli State In Syria," was recently kicked out of Assad's territories by the combined forces of Syria and Russia.

Now, they're getting massacred by Irak, one of their last holdouts.

It seems like soon, the Jews will run out of monkeys to destabilize their neighbors with!

CNN:

The Iraqi military has "fully liberated" all of Iraq's territory of "ISIS terrorist gangs" and retaken full control of the Iraqi-Syrian border, it said Saturday in a statement.

"Our heroic armed forces have now secured the entire length of the Iraq-Syria border,” Prime Minister Haider Al-Abadi said on his Twitter account. “We defeated Daesh (ISIS) through our unity and sacrifice for the nation. Long live Iraq and its people.”

Jews and Saudis BTFO.

ISIS, an acronym for Islamic State in Iraq and Syria, rapidly captured large territories in Iraq and Syria and declared a caliphate in 2014. The group controlled more than 34,000 square miles of territory from the Mediterranean coast to south of Baghdad.

The campaign to eradicate the Islamic State took more than three years and about 25,000 coalition airstrikes. Iraqi forces have increasingly been pushing ISIS out of the country over the past few months. Troops last month retook the town of Rawa, one of ISIS’s last footholds in the country. At that point, only pockets of ISIS resistance remained.

“Dear Iraqis, your land has been completely liberated, and your towns and villages have been returned to the homeland,” he said. “The dream of liberation became a reality.”

“ISIS dream has come to an end,” he added. “We must remove all its effects and should not allow terrorism to return again.”

If you don’t want “terrorism” to return again, then you have to stop it at its source.

This guy knows what’s up.

ISIS was only a symptom of the problem. The source is Jews.

It’s time for Syria, Irak, Lebanon and Iran to team up, form a gigantic combat robot of Shiite islam, and beat up Israel’s pathetic kikebot.

You can do it!

The justice system is going to collapse completely.

Women and brown people will convict you of things you did not do and let their own off for things they did do.

The concept of “jury of your peers” was formulated under the assumption that you would have peers.

That black guy who Bob Dylann wrote the song “Hurricane” probably actually didn’t commit that murder he got sent to prison for. It’s happened to other blacks too.

White people actually do care about justice and don’t want to just send a black person to prison because they’re black. But even still, in the 1960s—when people knew the deal with the blacks—it was easy to just be like “I’m having a hard time believing this nigger.”

The brown people we have in our country now do not even present a pretext of caring about justice. They just want us punished for who we are.

I sure as hell wouldn’t want to be put in front of a jury of brown people.

Kikes Doing Airstrikes in Gaza and Shooting Protesters – Globo-Muzshit Continues Focus on Street Tantrums

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 9, 2017

Pre-Happening begins as big Happening prepares to go live.
Washington Post:

Two Hamas militants were killed in an Israeli airstrike in Gaza on Saturday after rocket fire from the enclave hit an Israeli town, as the death toll in violence linked to President Trump’s decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel’s capital rose to four.

The Israeli military said it had responded to rocket fire by striking four facilities belonging to Hamas in the Gaza Strip: two weapons manufacturing sites, a weapons warehouse, and a military compound. It called the rockets fired at Israel—one of them hitting the town of Sderot, with no casualties reported—a “severe act of aggression.”

Hamas confirmed two of its members were killed in one of the early morning strikes. In a strike Saturday night that hit a military facility in a built-up area, 15 people were injured including a child, according to the Gaza Health Ministry.

A day earlier two protesters were shot dead near the border fence with Israel during a “day of rage” against Trump's decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital and move the U.S. embassy to the city.

The Israeli military described the two as "instigators" of riots in which demonstrators had rolled burning tires and thrown stones.

Hamas, which controls Gaza, has called for a third intifada, or uprising, against Israel in wake of Trump's decision.

Hazim Qasem, a spokesman for Hamas, said Israel will suffer the consequences of the escalation, saying the death of the demonstrators and airstrikes come in the context of "ongoing crimes" against the people of Gaza. It accused the United States of giving Israel "cover for these crimes."

The "uprising" of Palestinians shows that "Palestinian people are ready to redeem Jerusalem with their blood, and their families will not surrender in their confrontation with the occupation."

Meanwhile, instead of organizing themselves with a plan to push the Jews into the sea, Big Muzshit continues to do nothing but throw tantrums on the streets of their own countries.

What they are most assuredly not doing is organizing for some type of counter measure against the kikes.

Hamas are the only ones doing anything and that's mostly because they're getting paid by Iran to do something.

None of the Sunnis are calling on the Saudi regime to be abolished, no top Sunni has come out and said they should side with the Shites and Zerg Rush Jerusalem.

In other words, at present all of this outrage is a joke. It's like a 7-year-old girl crying because her daddy told her she couldn't have a pony—she's not going to break into the pony store and steal a pony, she's just going to cry because her daddy won't buy it for her.

Even though the pony store is unlocked and the guys that work at the pony store already told her they would help her steal a pony.

The daddy in that analogy would be "white people" in general. Globo-Muzshit are demanding that Donald Trump recall the decision, or that the rest of the white people make him do it.

I should have finished the goddamn course.

I mean, I assume that's what they're demanding—all I see them doing is whining and burning posters and flags on the streets.

Daily reminder: there are 2 billion of them and only 6 million Jews in Israel.

Donald Trump just gave these monkeys the greatest gift they could ever receive: a unifying rallying point to get together and do something about the eternal Jew enemy that stole their land.

After that, of course, they would have a unified empire run by people other than the filthy Saudis and Emirates, who are in charge of the Moslem world exclusively because the Jews put them in charge of the Moslem world because they know they're not going to do shit if they've got race cars and white Instagram hookers to shit on.

So, look: you're going to have to forgive me if I have a difficult time mustering up much sympathy. I can't even do pity, to be honest with you.

Israel should not be Donald Trump's problem. The reason it is Donald Trump's problem is that for the last 70 years, Globo-Muzshit failed to do anything about it. Now they're acting like all of the sudden they've just been informed that Jews took their land.

If y'all are gonna do something, do it. I hate Moslems, and I swear to Allah I will be your #1 cheerleader.

But ain't nobody gonna do it for you.

And there's nobody standing in your way but yourselves. Trump already did you a massive favor by ensuring the end of the war in Syria—everything is lined-up for a revolution in Saudi Arabia, backed by Iran.

If I were Iran, I would be publicly pushing hard the fact that the Saudis are Jewish tools, as well as mocking the Sunnis for not having the nerve to stand up to them.

But hey—not my war.

I've got Jews in my own country I'm trying to deal with.

Antifa-Smashing Charlottesville Political Prisoner Dennis Mothersbaugh Still Inside!

Eric Striker

Daily Stormer

Dennis Mothersbaugh is seen in this video defending himself against a crowd of Antifa aggressors after Charlottesville riot police pushed nationalists into the crowd of communists.

As you can see in the clip, a fat commie pig approached him while uttering threats and he was forced to defend himself.

Shaun King and other Antifas—supposed “enemies” of the police—managed to hunt him down and get him extradited back to Charlottesville.

What is shocking about Dennis’ case is that he is only being charged with misdemeanors, yet the corrupt politicized court system in the town has denied him bail!

Dennis is not exactly wealthy. He had a decent job in his home town that was lost due to having to spend months locked up in a cruel and unusual way. Compare that to how the state is treating black thug Deandre Harris, who busted a guy’s head with a Maglite unprovoked and yet was allowed to walk shortly after his arrest. The Charlottesville prosecutors office recently announced that this Harris’ original felony charges will be dropped to misdemeanors because they like his anti-white politics.

Dennis isn’t asking for much, just $5,000 dollars to help him with commissary and legal fees. Everyone I’ve spoken to who knows him vouches for him, saying he has always gone above and beyond for the cause and will give you the shirt off his back. At Charlottesville there are clips of him protecting people from the numerically larger communist crowd, despite having little to no armor and protection!

After all the assmad we caused Jews by helping Tony Hovater after getting fired, I think throwing him some cash would not only help this comrade, but produce lots of more hilarious kike butt-hurt.

A Special Song for Two Billion Globo-Muzshitists

Andrew Anglin

December 9, 2017

I’ve got a special song for the two billion-strong globo-muzshit population.

You can listen to it while I give you a special public service message, Haj.

Video Link

“Even walls fall down.”

Except, here’s the thing, Haj:

Walls don’t fall down when they are being meticulously tended to by vicious occupying land-thieves.

This one sure as fuck will not:

If you want that wall to come down, you’re going to have to tear it down.

Of course, there are TWO FUCKING BILLION of you and only SIX MILLION Jews behind it, so it shouldn’t be too hard to tear down, should it?

If all of you just said “GO” at the same time and zerg rushed Jerusalem at the same time with whatever weapon you have available (even sticks and rocks) from wherever you are in the world, this shit could be done by next Thursday.

And don’t tell me about nukes.

Or rather, let ME tell YOU about the nukes YOU HAVE in Pakistan.

WORLD NUCLEAR WEAPON STOCKPILE

But you’re not going to do SHIT other than tantrum activism IN YOUR OWN COUNTRIES. Burning goddamn posters and rubbing shoes on flags.

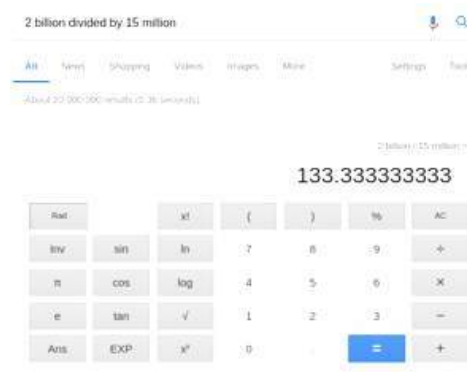

This is because you are SPINELESS PUSSIES.

If you weren’t, they wouldn’t have STOLEN YOUR LAND like it was a street-mugging in the first place.

Let me tell you more about these numbers, Haj.

You: two billion.

Them: 6 million in Israel, 15 million globally.

That is 133 times more people.

That is over a quarter of the world’s population vs 0.02% of the world’s population.

Can you even begin to understand what this looks like from an outsider perspective?

Can you imagine a street-mugging where one guy ends up walking away with the wallets of 133 people?

There is nothing in all of history that compares to this level of abject failure. And there is not even a way to come up with a reasonable analogy.

Seriously, Haj—what is wrong with you?

How are you this incompetent?

Every single one of these street tantrums is like screaming “I DON'T HAVE A DICK AND THAT'S WHY I CAN'T FUCK A PUSSY."

I can't even, Haj.
I just cannot even.

You even have competent leaders who are ready to storm the wall and push these rats into the sea.

Khemeni, Nasrallah and Assad are ready to rock the Casbah.

All you have to do is be like "YO—LET'S DO THIS—GOGOGOGOOGOGOGOGOGOGOGOGO!"

But you cannot follow those leaders because of some religious difference that you yourself couldn't even explain the details of?

And instead, you allow the PA-TRIARCH of your HOLY LAND to be OPENLY ALLIED with the kikes who STOLE YOUR OTHER HOLY LAND.

And you can't even overthrow this 81-IQ moron TRAITOR and stop him from being OPENLY ALLIED with the LAND-THIEVING KIKES????

Then somehow—in this current reality—you have the nerve to do tantrum activism with the shoe-rubbing thing and expect other people to FEEL SORRY FOR YOU???

"PLEASE, HELP US UNITED NATIONS, THERE'S NOTHING WE CAN DO—WE ONLY HAVE TWO BILLION PEOPLE!!!!"

This is the most pathetic thing I have ever seen in my life.

No words now, Haj.

Only shoes now.

Cop Filmed Executing White Man Begging for His Life Gets Acquitted

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 9, 2017

The feigned outrage emanating from the State Department over Duterte's war on drugs is rich when you look at day-to-day reality in the US.

Even though white people commit far less violent crime than blacks, police in America kill more white suspects every year.

Because our media is controlled by Jews, cowardly cops are reluctant to use deadly force against minorities (even when fully justified) because of the political backlash. They police white people in a draconian fashion (because we pay our tickets and are more likely to respect the police) while letting blacks get away with everything short of murder for the sake of "community relations."

Studies show law enforcement feels free to gun down unarmed whites because whites who aren't millionaires have no advocates, representation or power.

No J-left protest group or "civil rights" organization will rally for victims like the man in the above video. Why would they—a family man making $28,000 dollars a year working pest control is protected by a "bulletproof" sheath of white privilege!

In the same week former police officer Michael Slager was sentenced to 20 years for shooting a black man in South Carolina, a cop in Arizona was acquitted for doing the same to an unarmed white man begging for his life. This is the real racial inequality in the justice system.

Huffington Post:

After a former Arizona cop this week was acquitted of murder in the shooting death of an unarmed man, officials released video of the victim's final moments.

On the nearly five-minute video, which was recorded by then-Mesa police officer Philip "Mitch" Brailsford's body camera, an officer can be heard giving commands to 26-year-old Daniel Shaver in a La Quinta Inn & Suites hallway on Jan. 18, 2016.

"If you make a mistake, there is a very real possibility that...you will be shot," one of the officers can be heard shouting. "I'm not here to be tactical or diplomatic with you."

Brailsford and several other officers were at the hotel investigating a report of someone seen pointing a gun out a fifth-floor window. They suspected Shaver was involved.

Shaver, who had been ordered out of his hotel room by police, was commanded to lie facedown in the hallway and to refrain from making sudden movements.

The married father of two from Granbury, Texas, can be heard crying and appears confused by some of the officers' commands. On the video, Shaver says, "Please do not shoot me," as he obeys a command to crawl toward the officers.

As he inched forward, Shaver reached toward his waistband. The movement prompted Brailsford to fire his AR-15 rifle five times, killing Shaver.

The former cop said he suspected Shaver was reaching for a weapon. A detective assigned to investigate the case later said it appeared Shaver was attempting to pull his pants up.

No weapon was found on or near Shaver's body. However, investigators did find two pellet rifles in his hotel room. Those rifles were reportedly related to Shaver's pest-control job. Authorities later learned that he was at the hotel on a work-related trip.

Two months after the shooting,

Brailsford was removed from the force for violations of departmental policy. Prosecutors ultimately charged him with second-degree murder and reckless manslaughter.

A Maricopa County jury deliberated for six hours this week before finding Brailsford not guilty on both counts on Thursday.

So judging from the information that is being released, we have a case of cops LARPing as Tom Clancy's Rainbow Six over a noise complaint at the La Quinta inn. They were looking for any excuse to fire their guns and engineered one.

You can tell from the cheesy sleeve tattoos of this blue cuck that he's a try-hard faggot. Since when did multiple visible tattoos become acceptable for law enforcement personnel?

There's a good chance the victim of the shooting may have been drinking. In the bodycam footage, the cop is giving him extremely confusing commands and threatening to murder him if he makes an error during this impromptu Simon Says session. He tries to keep his pants from falling down and the officer fires not one, but three shots, to make sure his family never sees him again.

This guy is clearly a sadistic and ghoulish asshole; it's like giving a low IQ version of Jigsaw from Saw a badge.

The suburban boomer jury apparently thinks it's right to acquit this guy even of the very conservative charge of reckless manslaughter.

This is why you should never say "blue lives matter." It's only white life that is under attack, not a faceless and amoral institution like the police.

Officer Darren Wilson wasn't attacked by Michael Brown because of the color of his uniform: he was attacked for the color of his skin.

There must be political consequences for doing stuff like this. Whites must stop deferring to an illegitimate system.

NVIDIA Releases Affordable AI Development Hardware for the Masses

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

Sexy.

The development of artificial intelligence technologies is accelerating at a breakneck speed, and NVIDIA's latest card will only compound that.

Modern AI research and development is based on machine learning, which usually requires either specialized cards or large arrays of powerful video cards. Either would cost many thousands of dollars, placing this somewhat out of the hands of ordinary people.

However, NVIDIA just released a new version of their specialized AI hardware that is a fraction of the price while offering comparable speeds. This means that anyone sufficiently motivated can now not only work on AI code from their home, but actually develop working AI systems for a reasonable time and cost.

Video Link

Anandtech:

Out of nowhere, NVIDIA has revealed the NVIDIA Titan V today at the 2017 Neural Information Processing Systems conference, with CEO Jen-Hsun Huang flashing out the card on stage. A mere 7 months after Volta was announced with the Tesla V100 accelerator and the GV100 GPU inside it, NVIDIA continues its breakneck pace by releasing the GV100-powered Titan V, available for sale today. Aimed at a decidedly more compute-oriented market than ever before, the 815 mm2 behemoth die that is GV100 is now available to the broader public.

Sure. But can it run Crysis tho?

For the spec sheet we've gone ahead and lined it up against NVIDIA's other Pascal cards, and for good reason. While the Titan series of cards may have started life as a prosumer card in 2013, since then NVIDIA's GPU designs have become increasingly divergent between compute and graphics. And even though the previous Titan Xp was based on the more graphics-focused GP102 GPU, the card itself was primarily (but not solely) pitched as an entry-level compute card, for customers who needed a (relatively) cheap way to do FP32 compute and neural network inferencing in workstations and small clusters.

The Titan V, by extension, sees the Titan lineup finally switch loyalties and start using NVIDIA's high-end compute-focused GPUs, in this case the Volta architecture based V100. The end result is that rather than being NVIDIA's top prosumer card, the Titan V is decidedly more focused on compute, particularly due to the combination of the price tag and the unique feature set that comes from using the GV100 GPU. Which isn't to say that you can't do graphics on the card—this is still very much a video card, outputs and all—but NVIDIA is first and foremost promoting it as a workstation-level AI compute card, and by extension focusing on the GV100 GPU's unique tensor cores and the massive neural networking performance advantages they offer over earlier NVIDIA cards.

The AI revolution is coming.

At just $3000, middle class White people can afford to buy this card and start creating some interesting applications. This could be the start of something huge—until now, applications of AI technology has been restricted to companies and other organizations with a profit motive, or organizations with a leftist ideological bent.

Think of the potential. The “make-up remover” app is only the beginning.

Automated trolling systems. Jew facial recognition more accurate than any Nazi. Chatbots that redpill people. An app that outs homos, or detects undercover trannies.

Once high-agency goys get their hands on this tech and start working those neurons, there's nothing that can't be done.

Florida: Man Gets 15 Years in Jail for Putting Bacon in a Mosque

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 9, 2017

How can something so delicious-and healthy—be a crime?

In this upside-down clown world we live in, a man wishing to share the joy and wonder of bacon with his Moslem brothers is treated as a vile criminal and locked up for 15 years.

Can you imagine?

His heart was so heavy from thinking about the emptiness in Moslems' lives from their lack of bacon, that he took it upon himself to become a bacon evangelist and bring the good news to these poor souls. Yet instead of being celebrated as a hero, he receives nothing but scorn and persecution.

Sad.

The Independent:

A man who broke into a mosque and left a slice of raw bacon has been sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Michael Wolfe from Titusville in Florida pleaded guilty to the break-in at the Islamic Society of Central Florida Masjid Al-Munin Mosque in January 2016.

CCTV footage shows the 37-year-old smashing windows and lights with a machete before leaving bacon by the front door.

Wolfe pleaded guilty to criminal mischief to a place of worship with a hate crime enhancement on Tuesday, after a plea deal was arranged with the mosque and the police.

Okay, so breaking glass with a machete was probably not the best approach. That's technically vandalism, I guess. He should just have explained the health benefits that come from eating bacon everyday, and the heavenly taste.

Is this paleo? Better replace that bun with a slice of lettuce, there, buddy.

A man can make mistakes.

But in that case he should simply have been forced to pay for the repairs to the mosque. 15 years is insane.

Imam Muhammad Musri, who runs a network of mosques in central Florida, said the sentence would send a message to those who target Muslims.

He said: “The intent is to really deter similar kinds of hate crime.

In other words, punishment intended to intimidate White people into submitting to the Islamic invasion passively. Very nice of the Florida court to cooperate like this with the Jihad agenda of these Moslems.

Next we'll have jail sentences for people just eating bacon or drinking alcohol, in order to "deter" people from not being Moslems. Is there anyone arguing that this isn't where it must inevitably end up if we let these people do whatever they want?

This is what happens if we lose.

Daily Beast: "America Needs 21,307 More Fags in Government"

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 9, 2017

Only 21,307? We won't have true equality until all our politicians are sexual deviants.

I think there is a resurgence of populism because at this point in time America has not yet learned how to be homosexual. And I think trannies are going to be part of the throes of that transformation, which must take place. America is not going to be the straight-cis society it once was in the last century. Perverts are going to be at the center of that. It's a huge transformation for America to make. They are now going into GRIDS mode and trannies will be resented because of our leading role. But without that leading role and without that transformation, America will not survive.

Daily Beast:

LGBT candidates won big on election night 2017, with an unprecedented flurry of wins for transgender candidates in particular.

But according to a new report from the Victory Institute, which works to elect LGBT people to public office, political parity is a long way away: 21,307 seats away, to be exact.

Only then will the percentage of LGBT elected officials line up with the 4 percent of American adults who identify as LGBT, according to a recent Gallup estimate.

So you're saying "LGBT" people can't be represented by people who aren't "LGBT," huh?

That's an interesting position. Along the same logic, I'm sure you'd agree that Black people can't be adequately represented by White politicians. I would agree with that as well.

Mexicans can also only be represented by Mexican politicians, and the important work they do.

But why is that, though?

Could it be that different groups have different, incompatible and thus competing interests?

The most striking finding in the Victory Institute report is that only 0.1 percent of elected officials are LGBT. That means there would need to be nearly 50 times more openly LGBT elected officials—including three more senators, 12 more members of the House of Representatives, and over 21,000 other officials—before federal, state, and local governments fully reflect the population.

The report, released today, provides the most comprehensive overview to date of LGBT political representation in the United States, from the Senate all the way down to the local level.

Previously, the Victory Institute has given an offhand estimate that there are "about 500" LGBT elected officials in the United States. Now, they have a more exact number: 448, which includes Wisconsin Sen. Tammy Baldwin, six members of the House of Representatives, 109 state legislators, two state executives, and one large-city mayor, with the remainder spread across various local offices.

This whole drive to get "minorities" elected demonstrates how insane this whole notion of "multicultural democracy" really is. These people clearly understand that different ethnic and cultural groups have different interests, and that they struggle to get their guys into office in order to promote those interests—at the expense of the interests of others.

Forcing Christians to bake homo cakes is obviously against the interest of conservative Christians.

But then, aren't White people in the exact same situation? The more of these "minority" politicians are elected, the less the interests of White will be represented. The whole notion that we'll ever all hold hands and sing kumbaya has always been a scam—and the Jews and liberals know it.

They all know this is heading towards an all-out war of competing interests—they just intend to win it.

Anti-Semitic Jewish Studies Scholars Oppose Trump's Jerusalem Declaration

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 9, 2017

Jerusalem is the eternal capital of Israel and the Jewish people. Anybody who says different is anti-Semitic and does not recognize the obvious fact that Jews are God's chosen people.

It is truly shocking to see all the anti-Semitism and hate that Jews have to suffer on a daily basis. It is even more shocking to see where some of this anti-Semitic hate is being spread from.

Here we have a group of Jewish studies scholars expressing their outrage at the President of the United States for recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital. They're actually calling on the President to reverse his decision. This represents hate of the worst kind.

The Hill:

More than 100 Jewish studies scholars have signed a petition condemning President Trump's decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

In a petition released Thursday—just days after Trump's declaration—more than 110 signatories from universities and colleges around the country called on Trump to rescind the declaration.

"We write as Jewish Studies scholars to express our dismay at the Trump administration's decision to reverse decades of bipartisan U.S. policy by declaring Jerusalem the capital of Israel, and authorizing the relocation of the U.S. embassy from Tel Aviv," the petition reads.

"A declaration from the United States government that appears to endorse sole Jewish proprietorship over Jerusalem adds insult to ongoing injury and is practically guaranteed to fan the flames of violence."

This is shocking. In fact, just reading this story has left me shaking.

To not recognize Jerusalem as the eternal capital of Israel is just an extremely shocking case of anti-Semitism. These people as Jewish studies scholars should understand how hateful this is.

Jews are the chosen people of God. Jerusalem was given to them by God to be the eternal capital of the Jewish people. To claim otherwise is not only anti-Semitic but is against God himself.

These anti-Semites are lashing out at the Jews for President Trump's declaration. The Jews should fear nothing as they are God's chosen people and God will keep them safe.

Even if there is widespread anti-Semitic violence in response to this declaration, it is a small price to pay for the Jewish people claiming what is rightfully theirs and theirs alone. Jews as God's chosen people have God to protect them so they have nothing to fear from the President's declaration. He is merely reinforcing the obvious fact that Jerusalem is property of the Jewish people.

Hopefully the Anti-Defamation League and other anti-hate groups will call out these Jewish studies scholars for their misguided bigotry. They have no right to call themselves Jewish studies scholars when it is so profoundly obvious that they hate Jews. To not recognize Jerusalem as the eternal capital of Israel is the ultimate form of hatred one could ever express towards the Jewish people.

Women Should Shut the Fuck Up

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

This is how women infiltrate and destroy

Steps:

- >1) men make a group, hobby, or political party
- >2) the male atmosphere consists of heavy banter, but always brotherly, honesty, free, relaxed, and enjoyable
- >3) women see these men doing stuff and they can't understand. All they know is that it attracts male attention from stacy, and gives it to something more important. Stacy gets angry at this
- >4) stacy wiggles into the group with these words: "I'm not like the other girls" "I agree, women are stupid hehe"
- >5) men become more welcoming of these seemingly subservient women
- >6) said women start demanding that their presence be rewarded, tolerated, and respected because x y and z.
- >7) the cucks who grew attached to them now bow to any demands stacy makes to get her to stay
- >8) all the men start compromising their original fundamental principals so as to be more "tolerant and accepting" of women
- >9) any man who resists this obvious infiltration is shamed (always they attack his sexuality), and then there is infighting
- >10) congrats, your movement is destroyed

I have tolerated certain females in the Alt-Right, even though I did not agree with it. It has always been the policy of this site to not allow women to contribute, and to encourage that policy for the movement generally. My reasoning has been simple: no political movement has ever involved women because politics are the realm of men and women who attempt to infiltrate male realms do so generally to seek attention (money secondarily), and they are able to maximize attention on themselves by creating conflict between men.

This is the same reasoning behind the decision by men, throughout the entire history of Western civilization before the last century, to prohibit women from being involved in public life.

If I had lived 100 years ago, maybe I would have been interested in the idea of liberating women just to see what would happen. I doubt it, but maybe I would have been swayed by the argument of "look, we've never tried this before—it could work." However, now it has been tried, it has been the greatest disaster in all of history, and it feels to me that people who wish to see it continue must be severely psychologically damaged, benefit from it financially in some way or have malicious intent.

Unshockingly, we now have a situation where females who have been given a voice in far right internet circles are following the #metoo sisterhood, and whining about how men should be doing more for them. Of course, originally, they entered under the pretext that they were going to be “just like one of the guys.”

The purpose, of course, is to draw attention to themselves, to cause white knights to rally around, to cause men to fight over them.

Those of you in the Alt-Right playing into this are as low as any bugman VICE reporter.

You are the alt-bugman.

What Must be Done Here

If a woman says she is going to “leave the movement” because she’s not getting respect, tell her to get the fuck out.

Then ignore.

GOODBYE TARA, GOODBYE! BYE! GOODBYE!

More importantly, attack the faggot males supporting them. That is why they are getting power. They are stupid, they do not have ideas, they enter male spaces only to gain attention and destroy the concept of male spaces. Then they claim you’re a wimp or a homosexual if you don’t accept it.

Well, they’re not playing that shit on me—because I have a fucking spine.

You little worms bending to this do not.

You are lower than insects.

You should not be able to look into the mirror without crying.

You are the ones that make me sick.

Against Camwhore Nationalism

Women offer nothing to the Alt-Right other than camwhoring. Because women are stupid as shit. They don’t have ideas.

They listen to men’s ideas, then repeat them on video, with varying degrees of sexiness. Mostly, this is watched by men who already believe what is on the videos, because they like to pretend the female is their girlfriend (even if they don’t consciously know they’re doing that, that is the psychological process involved—the subconscious mind doesn’t have a function to process the concept that a person on an LED screen in front of you is not actually in front of you, talking directly to you). And yes, they masturbate to these videos.

The argument is that “new people will be brought into the movement” by these whores because they will click on a video with a woman and realize how smart she is. I have repeatedly called bullshit on this. No one—not even bugmen—genuinely believe women have something important or interesting to say. Sure, it is technically possible that they click on a video and hear something cited as a fact and Google it. But 99% of the clicks on these “trad chick” videos are regular watchers who are involved in a fantasy involving the girl. That is who is watching the videos, that is who is doing the donating.

The donating—look. Men have a desire to give money to women. It is an actual biological drive.

There is a dopamine rush when you go out with a woman and she tries to pay for her coffee or drinks and you insist she puts away her wallet. This is basic primitive behavior. It’s the same dopamine rush cavemen got laying a stag at the feet of a woman.

“I have killed an animal, I will feed it to this female, she will give me access to her vagina through which I can reproduce my genes.”

This is followed by: “she is my vessel of reproduction and the keeper of those I will produce, my duty is to defend.”

It is a fundamental aspect of male identity—nigh the most fundamental, second only to his ability to be accepted and valued by the men of the tribe—to be able to provide materially for and physically protect a woman.

NOTE: In fact, a woman knows that it is emasculating to a man to not be able to pay for her. And it is a shit test for her to attempt to pay—she is testing you. Usually I’ve been pretty good at controlling for skankism, but at least once in my life, I went on a date with a woman who made a big thing of paying—calculating what exactly she ate and calling the waiter over and making him take the money. I left enough money to cover the bill and a generous tip on the table and got up and walked out. I refused to see her again (and believe me, she wanted to). Of course, that situation is only possible under feminism, where the state, through welfare and affirmative action programs, forcibly transfers male wealth to females.

Just so, it is a woman's biological function to receive these resources. A bitch gotta eat, and she sure as fuck isn't killing a deer herself. Just as she sure as fuck isn't coming up with any interesting ideas today.

This camwhore situation, and the amount of money these women are making by leeching off of a political movement, as you fight to protect them, is a perversion of basic biological drives.

But I don't blame these whores. I blame you, bro. You're the one with the ability to rationally reflect on your biological drives and alter your behavior accordingly.

"BUT WE NEED WOMEN IN THE MOVEMENT!!!!!!1111"

The alt-bugman response is always that I am "alienating women" and that "we need them in the movement."

It is the worst form of snakelike Freudian horseshit to call someone who questions women's right to influence a male space a homosexual or otherwise question their masculinity. It is horseshit because it is a lie. But if we are going to psychoanalyze people over their positions on this issue, then let me tell you something: when you say "if we don't pander to women, we will alienate them," you are effectively screaming "I AM A MAN-VIRGIN" to anyone who knows shit about women.

And you all know that. It's your life. You know what's going on in it. Maybe you're not literally a virgin—maybe you've had one or two girlfriends, maybe you've gotten lucky on a drunk bitch a few times, but you are not Chad. If you were Chad, you would know that the interest of women has a direct inverse correlation to your interest in them.

There is also a conflation by Alt-Right feminists between camwhores and women who support the movement—the term "women in the movement" applies to both. Obviously, maximizing the number of women who support the movement should be a goal. Not a top goal—that is, not a goal that we sacrifice other more pressing priorities for—but something we should be aware of. Clearly, the easiest way to do this is by having the men in the Alt-Right have girlfriends and wives. Unless the bitch is a filthy godless whore and the man a complete cuck and their relationship on the highway to collapse, women will take on the political beliefs of a permanent partner. To that point, if we were extremely concerned about "women in the movement," we would be doing two things:

- Helping guys already in the movement get girlfriends and wives
- Directing messaging more toward men who already have girlfriends and wives (we have more single men than partnered men in the movement)

But the assumption is always "single female supporters," which demonstrates how fucking dishonest the alt-bugmen are. Just as dishonest as any other form of male feminist pervert. They are trying to use the movement as a singles club, rather than an engine of political revolution. Of course, if you could pin down a male Alt-Right feminist—protip: you can't, because they are slimy, gelatinous creatures—they would claim that "it can be both" —I am saying no, it can't be both, and if you can't already meet women, you aren't going to be able to meet women in our political movement.

But okay.

Sure.

Let's talk about single women.

This website, The Daily Stormer, where my official position on women is "they deserve to be locked in cages," has more single young female readers than any other Alt-Right site. That is an empirical fact.

This is because women are drawn to political ideologies that don't pander to them for the same reasons they are drawn to individual men who don't pander to them:

- They are interested in gaining acceptance from men who don't immediately offer it
- Not acting as though you need women is a sign you have something to offer women
- A lack of pandering is a sign of strength, meaning that you would be able to provide good genes and physical resources
- Women in their sexual prime—white women in particular—tend to have a sexual fixation with men who either are or are perceived as dangerous and potentially violent, rather than kind and caring

If you don't already know all that, you are not doing well with women in your personal life, and what you are trying to do by promoting them in the Alt-Right is trying to increase your chances of getting laid by applying your failed personal seduction strategy to a political movement.

And it is fucking pathetic.

I see this shit on social media, and this is what it looks like to me:

That is you, alt-bugman.

You are something which is fundamentally repulsive on a visceral level to emotionally developed, self-respecting adult males.

Leftism and the Single Skank: A Hard Wall of Material Resource Reality

As long as the political left has the ability to use force to take the resources of men and hand them over to women, single women are overwhelmingly going to support the political left.

That's a hard fact.

There is a small amount of wiggle room, of course. But the only appeal you are going to be able to muster is a sex appeal. Not an offer of something. The left already offers everything.

And no— "we'll give you a male provider so you can settle down and have children" is not an offer. Women already have the option of doing that. All young women in modern society have the option of finding a male of average sexual market value with enough money to pay for them to have children if they were to make a decision to do that. Instead, they chase Chad cock and claim that "men don't want to commit" —speaking of the high value men who will fuck them one night and then not return their texts. Because they all think they deserve the highest value man available, that he should commit to them, and anything less is not enough.

However, if I'm playing the game and answering the "single female appeal" question: by taking a masculine approach to our political movement, we're going to maximize the number of women who want to support it—and that appeal INCREASES if we are actively trolling and silencing camwhores who are attempting to infiltrate us to get attention and money, as it is a demonstration of principled masculine strength.

I am right about this and if you disagree with me you are wrong.

Period.

The alt-bugmen pushing "women in the movement" have never and will never respond to any of the points I just made, regardless of the fact that I've been making the same points for years. They will just keep screaming that I'm "alienating women," and then question my masculinity. Because they are maggots who do not want to engage in the masculine activity of using logic to come to reasoned conclusions.

When "you're just a loser who can't get laid" doesn't work, they pivot (note: this is a real tweet from an alt-bugman trying to attack me as a #WeakWhite-Man for refusing to embrace female empowerment).

tfw

And look. I'm not trying to shit on betas. I am trying to protect you, as my brothers, just as much as I'm trying to protect this movement.

You had single mothers or weak beta fathers, and you need to recover.

That's what I'm here to help you with, bro.

You're not doing yourself any favors by going to bat for these whores.

And it isn't going to get you laid.

"Pity fucks" by women—which is the only thing you could possibly be going for as a white knight—are largely a myth. They are usually mislabeled "drunk accidental fucks" (which are now being widely mislabeled as "rape," btw—so be careful out there, white knights).

And I'll end with this: if you are a beta white knight—and if you are pushing this "women in the movement" horseshit and are older than 14, you are—you need to deal with your testosterone levels.

A human being's thoughts and emotions exist in a mushy organ that functions on chemicals, and different chemicals being input into this organ produce different thoughts and emotions. That is the entire "bugman" concept—they are pudgy, low-muscle mass wormlike "men," and this is directly correlated to their worldview.

The basic rule is that fat on your body lowers testosterone levels and muscle on your body increases it. You don't have to be huge super-muscleman, but getting lean and fit—which is easiest through strength training, and through removing processed foods (especially grains, including beer) from your diet—will make your thoughts and feelings make a lot more sense.

You won't just get rid of this "need women in the movement" bugman horseshit, but you'll do better with women in your personal life. You'll also do better professionally, creatively and just do better at life generally.

A political movement is made up of individuals, and just as I want our political movement to succeed, I want all of you to succeed as individuals. Everything I write here I write with that in mind.

You're all my brothers, regardless of whether or not you've got a bad case of the thirst.

And if you're thirsty, I know this article was tough. But it is tough love.

We're all in this together.

Roy Moore Accuser Admits She Altered Yearbook Evidence

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer

Beverly Young Nelson, one of the women accusing GOP Senate candidate Roy Moore of sexual misconduct, tells @GMA it "sickens" her to think what might happen if Moore is elected. <https://t.co/wuEGWr0kng> pic.twitter.com/lcp5OY4x3A

— ABC News Politics (@ABCPolitics) December 8, 2017

Beverly Young Nelson the woman who was paraded in front of cameras by the Jewess Gloria Allred to attack Roy Moore is back in the news. She has admitted to altering the yearbook signature she presented as evidence to prove her allegations of sex abuse against Moore. In fact, she says she wrote part of the yearbook inscription herself!

Fox News:

One of the women who accused Alabama Senate candidate Roy Moore of making advances on her when she was a teen and he a local prosecutor admitted Friday to writing part of the yearbook inscription she offered as proof, a new crack in her story that gives Moore an opening to attack her credibility.

Beverly Young Nelson told ABC News she added the date and place in the inscription in her high school yearbook that she and famed attorney Gloria Allred presented as proof the then-30-something Moore sought an inappropriate relationship with her in the late 1970s. Nelson still insisted that Moore wrote most of the message and signed the inscription, but said she made "notes" to it.

"Beverly, he did sign your yearbook?" ABC's Tom Llamas asked her.

"He did sign it," she said.

"And you made some notes underneath?" Llamas asked.

"Yes," she replied.

Made some notes? WTF is that supposed to mean? This totally debunks this entire hoax. This was supposed to be the smoking gun proving that Moore did bad things to her.

But are we really surprised by this? She was with Allred a Jewish lawyer known for engaging in all types of chicanery. She did the same thing to Donald Trump right before the presidential election. Allred paraded out a gaggle of sluts who made wild accusations about Trump sexually assaulting them with no proof.

All of these allegations against Moore are a hoax. This is a man who has run for public office numerous times and never had any of this stuff come up. It is a smear campaign meant to destroy the man.

None of this is working though. Moore is set to win the Alabama Senate race.

Trump just posted another tweet endorsing him.

LAST thing the Make America Great Again Agenda needs is a Liberal Democrat in Senate where we have so little margin for victory already. The Pelosi/Schumer Puppet Jones would vote against us 100% of the time. He's bad on Crime, Life, Border, Vets, Guns & Military. VOTE ROY MOORE!

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) December 8, 2017

Moore's team also held a press conference exposing attempted vote fraud and more dishonest tactics by the opposition. It looks like he's got some good people around him.

Amsterdam: Palestinian Flagman Storms Jew Restaurant!

SORRY JEWS NO ONE COULD HAVE PREDICTED THIS.

RT:

A man with a Palestinian flag has smashed windows at a Jewish restaurant in Amsterdam and forced his way inside, local media reported. The incident has been caught on camera.

The video of the incident which emerged on local media, shows the man carrying a Palestinian flag hitting windows of the Glatt Kosher restaurant. The man then kicks his way through the front door and a few seconds later emerges with an Israeli flag, the footage shows.

Officers deployed pepper spray to arrest the suspect, who turned out to be a 29-year-old male residing in the Netherlands.

The incident took place in the Dutch capital on Wednesday morning, police confirmed, without providing any details about the suspect's nationality. An "aggressive" man hit windows of a restaurant with a piece of wood, police said in a statement.

The man shouted "Palestine" and "Allahu Akbar" while smashing the restaurant's windows, Amsterdam-based AT5 channel reported, citing a local witness. "I've never seen something like this before. Everyone is terrified," the restaurant owner's son told AT5, adding that the incident took place an hour before the restaurant's opening.

The incident took place amid worldwide tensions over Washington's Wednesday decision to recognize Jerusalem as the Israeli capital. Dutch police, however, didn't link the Amsterdam incident to the recent tensions.

I just want to say: fuck Nazis white knight for Palestinians. It is the dumbest, most dishonest-looking shit. None of you care about these sandniggers. If you do, check yourself.

Talking about Israel abusing the Palestinians is only useful insofar as you're like "kikes are a bunch of unhinged baby killers who tell us we have to feed global niggerdom or we're evil." Something being good for Palestine only matters so much as it harms Jews.

Actually pretending to give a shit about the national sovereignty of Arabs in order to signal how moral you are is fagism.

You notice I don't make these arguments about Assad? Because Assad actually fights kikes successfully!

Trump made an announcement that has no actual bearing on reality—a symbolic gesture—and it is resulting in Jews over the entire planet getting harassed.

Presumably, many of them will be killed because of this embassy decision.

So if you think this is President Trump helping Jews because he just loves Jews so much, check yourself.

Be an adult and ask what the actual consequences of this action are.

And explain this shit:

Reports indicate the president will move the U.S. Embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem. I wrote him last week to explain why that would be a terrible decision. pic.twitter.com/MV1o73nyDk

— Sen Dianne Feinstein (@SenFeinstein) December 5, 2017

The entire Western kike establishment—including ZOG matriarch Feinstein—is condemning Trump for this move.

And of course, kike Feinstein SUPPORTED multiple bills calling for exactly this to happen.

So you can be Rush Limbaugh-tier and say "OH SHE JUST DOESN'T LIKE IT BECAUSE OF TRUMP" —or you can think that through for another minute.

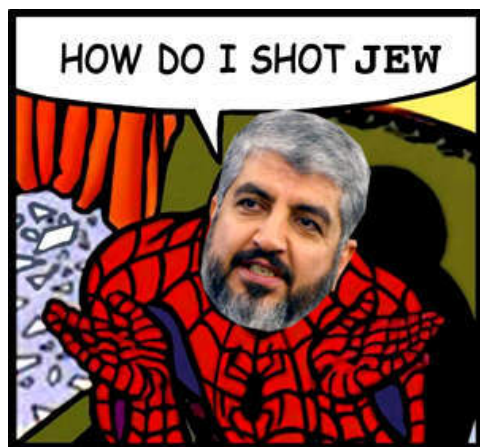

Because this is the worst point possible in history he could have done this. ISIS is gone and all these Palestinians who were fighting for them (yes, dumbshit Sunnigger Palestinians all went and joined ISIS to fight FOR the Jews) are back in the West Bank.

Of course Bibi had to welcome this move, because he's been asking for it for decades.

But this is like: some guy spends decades asking for you to light his cigarette and you wait to do it when he's just accidentally poured gasoline all over himself.

I could give a fuck about the Palestinians. These people are only as valuable as they are good at killing Jews—and they're not very fucking good at that now are they?

Maybe on an Intifada rampage with CIA-trained ISIS terrorists they'll be a little bit better at it.

President Trump was elected to stop immigration and prevent a war with Russia—not to liberate shitnigger Palestine.

And he's doing just what he said he was going to do.

Full stop.

Kike/Tranny Gasser Christopher Cantwell is Loose!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

The worst nightmare of the kikes has finally come true: Christopher Cantwell has been released from the Charlottesville jail.

I just talked to him on the phone.

He's in an undisclosed location on house arrest, and he was like "I'm not even allowed to take the goddamn garbage out" and I was like "but are you allowed on the porch?" and he was like "yeah bro, I'm on the fuckin porch right now."

It's inspired me to look-up how ankle bracelets actually work. Because I think it's different than a shock collar. Even though I tend to think of them as the same thing.

He said the time he did was no big deal and nothing to bitch about.

He expects to get the whole shit in Virginia wrapped up and get home early next year.

And he's getting back to his regular podcast ASAP.

For anyone who doesn't know this: Cantwell has the most entertaining podcast in the entire right-wing podcastosphere.

You're going to get the most hard-packed information on Fash the Nation and the most alt-philosophical insight from The Daily Shoah, but Cantwell is hands down the most fun to listen to.

The jail podcasts were my favorite podcasts of 2017 (at least tied with the Marantz Tapes).

His content also goes over surprisingly well with new people. Or it would maybe surprise you.

I've invited myself on Radical Agenda as soon as possible.

When a Porn Star Kills Herself Because She is Attacked for Refusing to Fuck Homosexuals

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

Video Link

It's right-wing Christmas all December long, folks.

We've got kikes resigning from everything including the government for groping women, we've got enterprising camwhores trying to hijack our movement getting brutalized, we've got intifadas, we've got a major power move for government-enforced free speech on the internet, we've got the Identity Europa banner—we've got everything.

This August Ames story is a particularly juicy bit of delicious VICTORY.

This bitch hanged herself ostensibly because she was being bullied by homosexuals and their female allies for refusing to have sex with a “male actor” who had had sex with men in other porno movies.

Following the suicide, some of the homosexuals who bullied her have deleted their Tweets and/or made their accounts private—but others are doubling down, saying that they’re glad she’s dead but wish they could have had time to “educate her.”

Here’s the Tweet that started the drama back on Sunday.

It goes without saying (but I’ll say it anyway) that the reason “August Ames” (born Mercedes Grabowski—don’t know if Jewish—looking at her face I would assume so, but this is one story where it doesn’t really matter at all), a 23-year-old pornstar from Canada, didn’t want to do porno with homosexuals (or men who had sex with other men on film for money but were actually homosexual—that isn’t clear) is that so-called “gay sex” is associated with with significantly higher levels of sexual transmitted diseases than heterosexual sex.

From the nature of the Tweet, it appears that this is a known issue that pornographic “actresses” have—she both gives a heads up to the woman who is replacing her and condemns the industry agents in a way that suggests they knew they were supposed to warn her about this and did not.

A female porn actress replied to her early on.

And she was understanding and apologetic.

And though there were a few people who were like “well, she shouldn’t be forced to have sex with people she doesn’t want to have sex with...

...a barrage of hatred against her ensued.

There were many “fuck you” tweets, tweets telling her to “get educated,” calling her a homophobe and so on.

“Bisexual” pornstar “Sir Jaxton Wheeler,” along with a horde of anonymous and otherwise non-celebrity homosexuals and other liberals, explicitly called for her to kill herself.

She posted several tweets defending herself...

...including one saying that avoiding sex with men who have sex with other men is a standard industry practice.

Along with retweets of confirmations that she should not be forced to have sex with men she doesn’t want to have sex with.

Her last tweet before tying the noose was simply “fuck y’all.”

And just like that, she was gone.

After the death announcement—by her husband—many fled in CYA mode, but Sir Jaxton Wheeler said he didn’t regret contributing to driving her toward suicide.

He has since made his account private.

Female pornstar Silvia Saige said she had “no guilt whatsoever” for attacking her, and after her death, simply wishes she would have had more time to educate her.

It’s hard to say who is the good guy and who is the bad guy in all of this.

But I can tell you who the victim is: Shane O Mac.

Unpacking This

Generally, no one has any idea how to respond to this.

According to the progressive liberal ideology:

- Porn is good
- Homosexuality is good
- Homosexuals have a right to spread diseases
- Women have a right to have sex or not have sex with anyone they want
- Questioning homosexuals about anything is bad
- Bullying is bad
- Questioning the behavior of women, especially as it relates to their sexual behavior, is bad

- Sluts killing themselves is bad

So it’s a real mess for the mainstream to try to unpack what’s gone down here.

There is no workable narrative beyond “we should all try to be more sensitive.”

Of course, I have the exact opposite views of every one listed on that list I just made, so my response to all of this is very simple:

None of any of this stuff the Jews shove down our throats is workable.

It is all simply designed to destroy.

And now, it is beginning to destroy itself. Everywhere you look, this is happening. All of these crazy hookers calling out these Jews and forcing them to resign is the civilization-altering example, but this August Ames situation is the same concept.

A Dead Hooker?

Obviously, she didn’t kill herself just because of the bullying. Women who do porn very often have very serious mental problems.

I am a defender of prostitution as a necessary social institution which allows young men, poor men, widowers, etc. to have their sexual needs met without marriage and prevents both male self-debasement in the form of masturbation and a promiscuous “casual sex” culture from developing.

Whoring is rightly called “the oldest profession” and if it is removed from society, society stops functioning.

And part of that dynamic is that there are women who are “born whores,” who just like money and sex with strangers. In traditional Western society, these women either worked directly for a religious institution (pre-Christian) and then became priestesses of some sort when they got too old or worked for a privately-owned brothel before entering the church as nuns when they got too old. These would have been usually low-IQ women from the lower classes of society.

They would have been working in a protected environment having normal sex with normal men.

With the modern pornography industry, everything is different other than “sex for money.”

Firstly, unlike prostitution, pornography is evil—and not an evil of the “necessary” type. It is a disease which has infected and broken down people’s brains and their ability to relate to one another. Masturbating to imagery of people having sex with one another is the ultimate form of human debasement.

The women involved are not putting their deviant biological drives to the best use of the community but instead destroying the community, working for Jews and engaging in bizarre, deviant sexual behaviors.

Furthermore, they are not generally from poverty-tier society.

August Ames, for example...

Wikipedia:

Ames was born in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, but she was raised in Colorado Springs, Colorado during her teenage years. In her early years, she worked as a nanny, animal-assisted aide and horse-back trainer.

There is a big difference between being a hooker hidden away in a temple or brothel and being publicly blasted everywhere on the planet on computer screens. If a woman wants to be a private hooker she still can be and make as much or more money as in the prOn industry. Porno women generally have serious daddy issues, and enter the industry because they want to self-destruct and publicly humiliate their fathers.

So the basic Jewish assessment that “pornography is good” is wrong on every single level. It destroys the people who watch it, it is staffed by people who are damaged and drives them over the edge.

No, I’m not going to take the “true conservative” view that porno is “EXPLOITING INNOCENT PRINCESSES,” nor am I going to pretend like I care that this bitch is dead. However, I think it is important to acknowledge both that women do porn generally because of psychological problems and that it is a filthy industry that does use them up.

Faggots vs Women and the Totem Pole of the Oppressed

The fact that this bitch was asking for it doesn’t mean that the faggots and faggot-defenders didn’t push her over the edge.

The level of responsibility for her death that you can put on these bullies isn’t measurable, but it is possible that she wouldn’t have died if she hadn’t been harassed. Certainly she wouldn’t have died at this date.

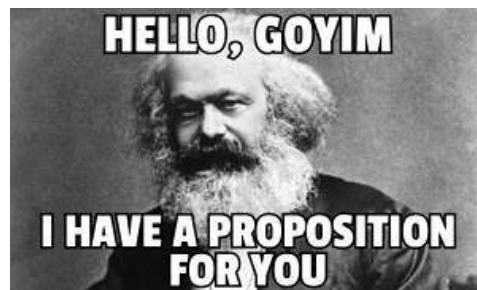

So again we have this totem pole of oppression making itself a problem for the Jewish system.

In a system based on nature, the most capable are at the top of the tiered system of power, respect and resource allocation—those who have some great amount of some combination of physical strength, intelligence, charisma, emotional detachment and other competence-markers rule by default. The lowest in society are those with the least ability. Everyone fits into that somewhere.

Sure, historically, this worked better at times than at other times. Nepotism, botched succession and other forms of corruption can allow less competent people to have more power than they deserve. But a hierarchical society has an ideal form that the people can strive for.

The ideological conflicts which arose during the enlightenment and the industrial revolution which followed were based on trying to remove old and new forms of corruption and restructure the hierarchical system in a way which functioned better.

Enter the Jews.

The ostensible concept of Marxism was to remove the hierarchy in response to conflicts about how to restructure it. This is the equivalent of deciding that the best response to a stubbed toe is to amputate your leg at the knee with a rusty chainsaw. If we follow through with that metaphor, after cutting off your leg at the knee, you’re going to do one of three things:

1. Bleed to death
2. Die of infection

3. Put a tourniquet on it, keep it clean and live the rest of your life with one leg

Stalin was able to pull-off number three in Russia after seizing power from the Jews.

After the debacle that was Eastern European communism, no one was going to go along with the economic parts of it again. You just weren't going to get anyone to do that. It is an objective fact that millions of people starve to death or are randomly killed by death squads with an unclear agenda if your nation goes full-communism.

At this point, anyone with an IQ over 95 and older than 19 that is arguing for actual communism—always with the “communism has never actually been tried” meme—is a Jew trying to kill millions of people.

COMMUNISM HAS NEVER BEEN TRIED

MY SPECIFIC, PERFECT, ENTIRELY INFALLIBLE BRAND OF COMMUNISM HAS NEVER BEEN TRIED

Obviously, communist and socialist economic concepts are still pushed nonstop in the West—while being grotesquely coupled with the nightmare Marxist vision of out-of-control capitalism (which incidentally is also entirely organized by Jews). But no serious people are arguing for full-communism.

However, this Jewish idea of removal of the hierarchy has been fully accepted as a goal for the Western social hierarchy.

You can't actually make everyone equal in competency, so the goal is to make people equal in the social hierarchy. To do this, you have to push down the highest group—which will always be healthy white men—while propping up the various bottom groups: brown people, women, sexual degenerates and the mentally ill.

So the hierarchy becomes inverted, with the least capable people claiming that they are oppressed because otherwise they would have more power than they do. Because the entire concept is a hoax, these groups will necessarily come into conflict as they climb on top of each other to fill the power vacuum that was created by dictating that all power be taken away from white men.

And the system has no ability to explain that, let alone deal with it.

So you have Swedish antifa attacking homosexuals for attempting to have a parade through a Moslem neighborhood.

And you have homosexuals bullying a pornstar to death for refusing to have sex with one of their people.

We know that white women are less oppressed than brown men, and thus they are effectively allowed to be raped by them—but what about white women and white non-tranny homosexuals?

Who is more oppressed there?

No one knows.

Goyim, I...

And You Could Go On

You could derive more lessons from the death of August Ames.

Some of the obvious bits that we do all the time—“why are homosexuals allowed to bully a woman to death on Twitter but we're not allowed to post frog cartoons?”

And some more esoteric ones. I could do 5,000 words on Shane O Mac's obituary tweet for his favorite pornstar.

That is why the event is so great.

The Matrix analogy of the Jewish system is real, and this is a glitch in the Matrix. And people have to pause at this. Because it doesn't make sense, based on what they have been told about the way the universe works. It's the equivalent of seeing a man jump up and start flying—“but wait, reality doesn't allow this—what is going on with reality? Is it broken?”

And every time something like this takes place, more people move closer to questioning the entire system.

We have already won the war of ideas. This is now a brutal power struggle for hearts and minds of young white men—between us and the Jews—as we attempt to reach critical mass and they attempt to collapse the whole structure in on us.

This is our war.

We were born into it and born to fight it.

And it is winnable.

I promise you that.

Embrace it.

You don't have any choice but to embrace it or to become a casualty of it.

Running away just means getting shot in the back and dying as a coward.

Hail Victory.

Cloudflare CEO Matthew Prince Moves to Make All Internet Infrastructure TRUE NEUTRAL

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

I do not think Cloudflare CEO Matthew Prince is a Nazi. I do, however, believe he is a genius.

When he initially dropped the Daily Stormer, he said it was because “we” said he was a secret Nazi. As a reference for this, he found a random comment in the comments section. I don't believe he thought we thought this, I don't believe he thought that the excuse made any sense. It was a purposefully stupid excuse.

He has since offered a series of stupid excuses, ranging from moral to financial, as to why he would only drop us and no other site.

The actual reality here—I believe—is that as an infrastructure provider, he understands that he cannot be expected to cut off any content that creates outrage. All censorship is a slippery slope, which is why the concept of “free speech” exists. And if he starts censoring, there is no potential end to it. As we have seen with the ADL's requests against social media companies, every time they make a move to censor, the answer is “this isn't enough.”

None of these companies want to deal with this. That doesn't make them secret Nazis, it just makes them businessmen.

Hell, it was only like two years ago that Mark Zuckerberg straight-up told the ADL that Holocaust denial and Jewish ritual murder truth don't violate their ToS.

Because there is no realm in which hopping on the slippery slope of censorship is good for anyone on the internet.

These companies want the government to regulate content, and the only potential regulation that the US government could make is based on the First Amendment.

We were dropped from Cloudflare by Matthew Prince specifically because we are a popular, legal website that was in the middle of a gigantic media storm.

It was the perfect time to “start a conversation” about the role of private companies in silencing political dissent.

And if you can get that conversation started, it can only end one way: with the government saying “you don't have a right to silence people based on political ideology, you have to stop doing that.”

The Daily Stormer being shut down was cited in the recent FCC filing condemning Net Neutrality. And indeed, the concept of Net Neutrality became nonviable as soon as GoDaddy, Google, Cloudflare, etc. moved together to silence my protected political speech. They can't claim that they're against charging for bandwidth because it might maybe lead to censorship of political dissidents when they are actively using their own mechanisms to silence political dissidents. The argument becomes gibberish.

And the solution which allows the free market to operate efficiently AND prevents censorship is to just say “it's against the law to use natural monopoly control of internet infrastructure to deprive people of their First Amendment rights.”

If such a law exists, then the entire concept of net neutrality becomes nothing more than a rent-seeking scam by Netflix to prevent Comcast from charging them extra at the expense of the development of our nation's internet infrastructure (which isn't even 15% as good as China's, by the way).

Prince's recent interview with Ars Technica shows very clearly where he's coming from. Note that he did this AFTER the FCC filing. He also flew to DC to discuss this stuff with the government. So he's openly fighting—as it were—in our corner. Of course, this is “strange bedfellows” type politics—AGAIN MATT I DON'T THINK YOU'RE A NAZI AND THAT CLAIM WAS DEFAMATION—I ASSUME YOU'RE A RELATIVELY UNEMOTIONAL, NONPOLITICAL, PRAGMATIC BUSINESSPERSON.

But just for the record, I think that will be the type of person who we have an easy time working with when we seize state power. Goy moneymen tend to be easy to understand and work with.

He's a very, very smart guy. Despite the hell I've been through—respek.

Ars Technica:

Cloudflare CEO Matthew Prince hated cutting off service to the infamous neo-Nazi site the Daily Stormer in August. And he's determined not to do it again.

"I'm almost a free-speech absolutist." Prince said at an event at the New America Foundation last Wednesday. But in a subsequent interview with Ars, Prince argued that in the case of the Daily Stormer, the company didn't have much choice.

Cloudflare runs a popular content delivery network that specializes in protecting clients from distributed denial-of-service attacks. The Daily Stormer published a post mocking a woman who was killed during the white supremacist protests in Charlottesville, Virginia in August. That had made a lot of people angry at the Daily Stormer, attracting massive attacks on the site.

The Stormer was a Cloudflare customer. Cloudflare had ample technical resources to battle DDOS attacks. The problem was that other Cloudflare customers started calling and threatening to cancel their service if Cloudflare didn't cut the Daily Stormer off.

"The pressure to take it down just kept building and building," Prince told Ars. "We thought that was the wrong policy. We reached out to various civil libertarian organizations and said we need some air cover here. People said 'we'd rather not stick our necks out on this issue.'"

So, Prince said, "we needed to change the conversation."

Prior to August, Cloudflare had consistently refused to police content published by its customers.

Last week, Prince made a swing through DC to help ensure that the Daily Stormer decision does not, in fact, set a precedent. He met with officials from the Federal Communications Commission and with researchers at the libertarian Cato Institute and the left-of-center New America Foundation—all in an effort to ensure that he'd have the political cover he needed to say no next time he came under pressure to take down controversial content.

The law is strongly on Cloudflare's side here. Internet infrastructure providers like Cloudflare have broad legal immunity for content created by their customers. But legal rights may not matter if Cloudflare comes under pressure from customers to take down content. And that's why Prince is working to cultivate a social consensus that infrastructure providers like Cloudflare should not be in the censorship business—no matter how offensive its customers' content might be.

Prince's visit came in the midst of the network neutrality debate. Cloudflare supports network neutrality—it even offers customers an option to display a pro-net-neutrality page to visitors—and Prince argues that people should think of Cloudflare as a neutral infrastructure provider like Comcast or Verizon.

In theory, Comcast could blacklist hate sites, preventing its broadband customers from accessing them. But nobody gets mad at Comcast for declining to do that. In fact, lots of people think it should be illegal for Comcast to block websites based on their content (and current FCC rules prohibit such blocking).

I think he thinks the exact same thing I wrote about—that that current conception of "net neutrality" becomes a pointless government handout to Google and Netflix—a handout stolen from Comcast—if everything is neutral. The free speech argument is a conspiracy theory tacked on to Silicon Valley companies using the state to benefit them.

Of course, Prince in particular doesn't benefit from this, given the nature of Cloudflare, and I think he—like the American people—would rather have investment going back into our internet infrastructure.

Prince isn't advocating FCC regulation of Cloudflare, but he argues that the same principle ought to apply to his company. In his view, it's not right for a largely invisible Web infrastructure company like Cloudflare to be deciding which websites people should be allowed to read.

Prince says that when the Southern Poverty Law Center—one of the leading groups pushing to take down the Daily Stormer—says, "here's the next site that you should take down, I will say, 'dear SPLC, meet Cindy Cohn over at the Electronic Frontier Foundation, you guys should have a conversation, tell us what we should do.'"

Cohn is the executive director of the digital civil liberties group and was the co-author of a blog post defending free speech in the wake of Cloudflare's Daily Stormer controversy. Prince is working to develop relationships with digital rights groups like EFF and New America so that he gets more "air cover” the next time he faces pressure to censor controversial content. Vocal support from groups like EFF and New America, he hopes, will cause major Cloudflare customers to think twice before pressuring the company to get into the censorship business.

Just for the record, (((Cindy))) did write an article saying it was wrong for them to take my site down, but when I emailed the EFF, she didn't respond to me directly and I was told by some Pa-jeet that there was no way for me to have a conversation with her. So far, the EFF has done nothing to help us other than say “dat be bad 2 do.”

The EFF is thus in my view a once well-intentioned company that has been taken over by Jews and made inept.

So we don't need the SPLC talking to them, the SPLC will just win and Cindy will say “oh well, at least I tried, goyim—what else can I do with these millions of dollars my company is sitting on but nominally disagree with some of my tribesmen???”

Also just for the record (for the not tech-inclined), Matthew Prince cutting Cloudflare is not the major DS censorship issue. The major censorship issue is the denial of a domain registrar, which was done by GoDaddy, Google and then an entire chain of I think 20-odd other companies and countries.

Matthew Prince just happens to be the biggest goy on the block who is willing to stand up and say “look, I don't give a fuck about this shit—I don't want people fucking with my money because of their childlike feelings.”

Most Importantly

We are going to win this.

We will return triumphantly to DAILYSTORMER DOT COM in the not too distant future, and there will be legal protections saying that it cannot be shut down simply because the content hurts people's feelings (obviously the real reason is Jews—but Jews use people's emotions to get their agenda through).

I am 100% confident of this.

I don't know how long it will take. The government moves slow, but Trump has been injecting NO<sub>2</sub> into it. So we'll see.

The hardest part—the grind we've been through to stay up for the last four months—is done. We now have a system where it is taking longer to shut these sites down, we have a system to get them back up quickly, we have a system where people can find us when we go down (just in case you haven't already, bookmark my Gab page—it always has the live version of the site at the top).

We've kept our audience, we've monumentally multiplied our cultural relevance, we've become infamous and will be repeatedly cited as an example of what can go wrong when corporations have the power to silence political dissidence as the framework upon which the internet becomes more free is worked out.

Being the only legal site to ever be banned from the internet is a big deal. It is a major accomplishment. One of the greatest accomplishments of this site.

We are going to win monumentally.

It will have been worth the hassle (unless your name is “weev” —in which case you might have preferred the steady progressive growth model).

Hail Victory.

Fraudulent Negress Fakes Sign Language at Police Press Conference

Azzmador

Daily Stormer

December 8, 2017

As with the written form, the negro has no sign language he can truly call his own.

I was checking the news earlier, when I ran across the headline “Phony sign language interpreter used at Seminole Heights killer arrest press conference.”

This is just one of those that pops out at you, and you immediately say to yourself, “this is a nigger” before clicking on it, only to confirm that indeed, it is a nigger.

Negroes are always claiming to be something they're not. How many times have you gone to a store or restaurant and had to deal with a negro claiming to be some type of customer service employee, only to discover that all they actually were was a surly, unhelpful dindu?

Just the other day I went to the post office, and some morbidly obese sheboon was behind the counter claiming to be a postal clerk. I inquired as to how much faster a letter would arrive if sent by express mail rather than first class mail, and she rolled her eyes and grunted “you really espeak me ta know diss?”

In retrospect, it was wrong of me to have expected this, but with all the propaganda we are deluged with about them being just like us, even a professional racist sometimes catches himself slipping.

Dafuq I'm sposed ta do wit all diss hurr?

So anyway, I click on the link, and sure enough, black.

WFTS:

TAMPA, Fla. —A huge arrest was made in the Seminole Heights homicides case on Nov. 28, but many in the deaf community were left in the dark thanks to a phony interpreter.

"She was standing there twisting her hands back and forth. I could tell automatically that interpreters don't do that," said Betti Bonni, a certified deaf interpreter.

Derlyn Roberts showed up at Tampa Police on that night, but as Chief Dugan spoke about the capture of a serial killer suspect, those in the deaf community could tell the interpreter wasn't making any sense.

"Most of the time it just looked like she was signing but not using actual signs," said USF professor Rachelle Settambino. "When she was spelling words out, she wasn't spelling anything at all. They were just gibberish more than anything."

Video Link

Monica Hoffa's mother, whose daughter was one of the victims, was at the presser relying on that interpreter.

"I know the deaf mother of one of the victims' of the serial killer, she was standing there. She was standing right there and the interpreter was signing in a way that was incomprehensible," Bonni said.

A spokesperson for TPD says he didn't do his due diligence, and did not question Roberts when she showed up as an ASL interpreter.

Roberts has several fraud arrests on her record, including one conviction that landed her in a state prison.

Derlyn Roberts, Negress

Asked for comment, weev, an individual who has made a million dollars by calling for the genocide of niggers and kikes on the internet, said: "It's a very specific form of fraud and only niggers have ever done it."

It turns out that weev was right again!

It's easy to see why only blacks would do this. As the proud title-holders of the lowest average IQ's on planet Earth, only they would think this is a good idea. They must think it out like, "Yo, don't nobody understand dis sheeit anyway, except dem deaf people an' dey can't talk, so dey can't tell nobody, so I be getting on TV, and getting paid. What could go wrong?"

The brotha who did this at the Mandela thing took it to an even greater level of chimpery—he thought he could explain it away to the media after he got caught!

Video Link

"It were just my skizofreniks, you see? My skizofreniks flared up and I saw angels and things happened. What you mean do some signs, you calling me a lie???"

Now, after considering all this, you may find it uncomfortable to realize that, due to affirmative action and political correctness, blacks hold many important, if not vital, jobs in our country. Nearly every big city police chief and more and more of the brass are blacks. Judging by a visit to nearly any government office, most all bureaucrats are blacks. We have black doctors, judges, pharmacists, air traffic controllers. Even congressmen!

If the discomfort is too much to bear, just close your eyes and repeat after me: They're just like us. They're just like us. They're just like us...

Jewish X-Men Director Bryan Singer Sued for Man-Rape of 17-Year-Old Spic

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

Bryan Singer is Jewish.

This would normally be a huge story for anti-Semites. Now it's just a footnote.

That is how hard we are winning.

Fox News:

"X-Men" and "The Usual Suspects" director Bryan Singer was accused Thursday of sexually assaulting a 17-year-old boy on a yacht near Seattle in 2003, according to several reports.

A civil lawsuit, brought in Washington state court by Cesar Sanchez-Guzman, alleges that Singer offered to give Sanchez-Guzman a tour of the yacht. On that pretext, the suit alleged, Singer "lured Cesar into a room, shut the door and demanded that Cesar perform oral sex." When Sanchez-Guzman refused, Singer allegedly forced Sanchez-Guzman to perform oral sex on him before raping him.

The alleged assault took place on a yacht owned by Lester Waters, whom the lawsuit describes as a "wealthy tech investor who frequently hosted parties for young gay males in the Seattle area."

At some point after the alleged assault, the lawsuit claims Singer told Sanchez-Guzman "that he was a producer in Hollywood and that he could help Cesar get into acting as long as Cesar never said anything about the incident.”

I don't imagine the spic boy was actually man-raped.

Homosexuals will have “sex” with any man, virtually—that is their nature. They are also fundamentally diabolical, evil people. So this fagboy is using his age to hop on #Metoo and cash-in.

I don't imagine we are going to find any little kids in Bryan Singer's closet. You'd find some younger twink, maybe below age of consent—there was a 15-year-old a while back.

But this isn't Pizzagate.

Not yet.

But Singer is a step closer to that.

But the real upshot here is an end to these fucking horrible X-Men films.

I'm hereby demanding that the Duffer Brothers be put in charge of producing a adaptation of Grant Morrison's New X-Men.

Globo-Muzshit Going Full-Apeshit – Ready to Slaughter All Jews!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

The entirety of globo-muzshit is going apeshit over this embassy thing.

So here's the question: can these stupid apes get their shit together and wipe out the Jews once and for all?

They're definitely about to start attacking them all over the planet! RT:

A wave of protests has swept the Muslim World after Donald Trump's recognition of Jerusalem as Israeli capital. A man was killed and hundreds injured in clashes in the West Bank, while US flags were burned at mass rallies in Iran, Pakistan and elsewhere.

Over 200 people were injured on Friday as violent protests in Jerusalem, the West Bank and Gaza went into a second day, according to Palestinian officials. Israeli security forces employed tear gas, rubber bullets and even live ammunition to disperse the demonstrators.

"A Palestinian was killed by police to the east of the town of Khan Yunis in Gaza," the Palestinian Health Ministry told Al Jazeera, adding that the cause of death is believed to have been a gunshot wound.

More than 3,000 Palestinians took part in protests in at least 30 locations in the region, the Israeli military said. The unrest began after Friday prayers, when Palestinians began throwing stones at IDF troops.

Following the White House announcement, armed group Hamas called for "an intifada until the liberation of Jerusalem and all of Palestine." Israel had been pushing for Jerusalem to be recognized as its capital for decades, while the Palestinians also view the eastern part of the city as the capital of its future sovereign state.

The US move was decried internationally as being dangerous and counterproductive to a peaceful settlement of the protracted conflict.

Palestinian outrage this week was shared in the Muslim world as thousands of people took to the streets in many countries. Hundreds of people rallied across Iran as they burned portraits of Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, chanting "death to the devil!"

Protesters, who packed the Al-Azhar mosque in the Egyptian capital Cairo, chanted "Jerusalem is Arab! Oh, Trump, you madman, the Arab people are everywhere!"

Then why did you people wait until now to get mad about this?

Israel has existed for 70 years on YOUR LAND.

WHY DID YOU NOT EXTERMINATE THEM DECADES AGO???

WHY DO YOU TOLERATE SAUDI ARABIA BEING BFF WITH THEM SO THEY CAN SHIT ON INSTAGRAM WHORES???

That is another thing here—this whole Saudi Arabia alliance is going to become extremely volatile because of this, which is good for our Iranian friends—who to be honest with you are the only people who are going to DO SOMETHING as far as actually moving in to take down Israel.

The rest of these faggots just want to do tantrum activism.

Kadyrov Says Embassy Move will Lead to Full-Scale War with the Jews!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

Gonna have to counter-signal you here, Kadyrov.

Dig that hat tho.

RT:

The head of the Chechen Republic, Ramzan Kadyrov, has described the recognition of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel by the US president as a stab in the back for those who tried to reach a settlement in the Middle East, and a step towards a new war.

In a message posted on his page in Russia's most popular social network VKontakte (In Contact), Kadyrov stated that Donald Trump's recognition of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel was made despite the opinion of the international community and in violation of the resolutions passed by the United Nations and other influential international organizations. He added that the decision deprived Palestinians of the last chance to get an autonomous state.

It's just an embassy.

The existence of Israel deprives them of a chance for an autonomous state.

We know that.

There is no way there can ever be any kind of peace in the Middle East if Israel exists.

"In essence, this is a stab in the back for those who spent the last decades trying to develop an algorithm for a political and diplomatic settlement in this complicated region," Kadyrov wrote. He noted that the danger of the US step was especially evident because it was made very soon after the Syrian Army, with support of the Russian Air Force, liberated their country from Islamic State (IS, formerly ISIS).

"I can state with certainty that by this, to put it mildly, crude decision Trump throws the state of Israel into the abyss of bloody confrontation and puts in under threat of a new, more powerful and organized Intifada. Which means a large-scale war," Kadyrov says.

Bingo.

I mean, I get that Moslems have to be outraged about this.

But aren't the blue balls killing all of us? Aren't we all itching to see the entire region explode in a final confrontation with the Jews?

Why is this bad?

Obviously, if Trump sends troops to fight for the Jews against Russia, that would be very bad. But I am betting against that one.

Meaning that the Jews were climbing into a corner and Trump said "here, greatest ally—let me help you back yourself in there."

Five years ago, I wrote about the occupation of the Poitiers mosque site by Generation Identity. (link) They called for a referendum on the construction of the mosque and on immigration.

About 70 people participated, but only the five alleged organisers ("the Poitiers 5") were charged in connection with the incident following a complaint brought by the main Islamic organisation in France, the UOIF (Union des Organisations Islamiques de France), the French branch of the Muslim brotherhood.

It's strange that it has taken more than five years for the case to reach a resolution. But the sentence has now come: 1 year in prison, suspended, plus a 40,000 euro fine.

They're going to appeal, but if you want to make a donation to help defray their costs you can do it here:

WHOOOPS: Trump Jerusalem Declaration Causes Hamas to Declare Intifada! WHOOOPS!

Andrew Anglin

December 7, 2017

SORRY JEWS WE NEVER COULD HAVE PREDICTED THIS WOULD HAPPEN IF WE MADE A DECLARATION REGARDING YOUR CAPITAL!!!!11

WE APOLOGIZE IN ADVANCE FOR ALL THE JEWS THAT WILL DIE BECAUSE OF THAT DECLARATION!!!!1

RT:

Palestinian Islamist group Hamas has called for a new uprising against Israel following US President Donald Trump's recognition of Jerusalem as capital of the Jewish state.

"We should call for and we should work on launching an intifada in the face of the Zionist enemy," said Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh, in a speech in Gaza Thursday, Reuters reports.

World leaders expressed serious concern over the decision and its potential to destabilize the region.

Anti-US protests erupted almost immediately after Trump's declaration Wednesday, with Palestinians first to take to the streets, calling for three days of rage against the move.

The decision has been welcomed by Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who thanked Trump, and said he believes "many" other nations will follow suit in recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

Egypt and Jordan said Wednesday that they reject the US decision. The Arab League is expected to hold an emergency meeting Saturday to discuss the developments, the head of the Palestinian delegation to the body said Wednesday.

I am genuinely confused as to why the Alt-Right got so butthurt over the Jerusalem declaration.

There is no way this can result in anything other than a bunch of dead Jews.

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
				Day of Rage	Day of Anger
Day of Outrage	Day of Violence	Day of Plaque	Day of Fury	Day of Hatred	Day of Hissy fit
Day of Vexation	Day of Animosity	Day of Irritation	Day of Hurt feelings	Day of Dander	Day of Unhinged
Day of Delirium	Day of Wilding	Day of Madness	Day of Frenzy	Day of Hysteria	Day of Fuming
Day of Irritation	Day of Woundings	Secretary Appreciation Day	Day of Incitement	Day of Destruction	Day of Stabbing

And what is the bad part?

That in the actual declaration statement, Trump said nice things about Israel?

Yeah, sure—cringe.

But act like an adult and process the potential real world effects.

If I've learned a single thing from Jews it's that when I analyze anything I should ask: "Is this good for whites?"

And the only way the Jerusalem declaration isn't good for whites is if Trump commits to a war with Russia to protect Jews from Iran...and I just genuinely do not see that happening.

I mean, just imagine the logistics: every leftist hates everything Trump supports due to years of endless hate propaganda.

His entire base—outside of completely unhinged boomer Christians trying to kickstart their retconned prophecy—would also be against it.

All of Europe would be against it.

And if it happened, ZOG and Israel would probably lose, which would finish this with a Russian occupation of America.

Of course, this is all just nutty fantasy I'm sure.

But it sure does feel like something super nutty could happen right now.

I just don't see how all of these events colliding with each other don't lead to something massive, and it all seems to come down to that nagging question—that most important question ever to be asked in the history of civilization:

Would President Donald Trump commit America to a ground war against Russia and the entirety of Shia Islam (plus most of the other Islam) in Palestine, Lebanon, Syria and beyond if Jews demanded it of him?

For now, let us listen to this emo song.

Russia: SYRIA OFFICIALLY LIBERATED FROM ISIS

Andrew Anglin

December 7, 2017

I think they already made basically this same announcement already, but whatever.

Excellent, excellent news.

Imagine being the US Jewmocracy and trying to explain how you're still fighting "terrorism" in Afghanistan high two decades after invading?

RT:

The Russian General Staff has declared the liberation of Syria from Islamic State (IS, formerly ISIS), stating that all territories previously under terrorist control were liberated in the final push by the Syrian Army.

"All terrorist units of ISIS on Syrian soil have been destroyed, and the territory is liberated," Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Valery Gerasimov said.

"Therefore, as of today, there's no territory controlled by ISIS in Syria," he added. Gerasimov made the announcement during an annual briefing for foreign military attachés.

After being briefed on the successful military operation on both banks of the Euphrates River in Syria by Russian Defense Minister Sergey Shoigu, President Vladimir Putin said that the political process and organization of the Syrian people's congress in Sochi, agreed upon by Russia, Iran, and Turkey last month, must now become the focus. Among other goals, Putin named the drafting of a new constitution, and, eventually, parliamentary and presidential elections.

"Naturally, there might be some spots of resistance, but the military work has been largely completed in the area and at the time. Completed with a full victory, I repeat, with a victory and defeat of the terrorists," Russian leader said.

Jews are so fucking on edge right now.

Trump doing the embassy thing was the ultimate troll—get a global-Islamo revolt against them in the middle of their own freakout over their ISIS getting wiped out.

RT:

Vladimir Putin has confirmed that he will seek another term in office in next year's presidential election.

"Yes, I will run as a candidate for the Russian presidency," Putin said. He was meeting with workers at the country's historic manufacturer, GAZ (Gorkovsky Avtomobilny Zavod), in Russia's Nizhny Novgorod on Wednesday.

"Our country is its people, people like you," the Russian leader said, addressing workers and veterans of the plant. "It's workers, scientists, engineers, designers, teachers and doctors," Putin said, adding that with the "active involvement" of its people, Russia "can deal with any, even the most complex challenges it faces."

"Russia will go only forward and no one will ever stop it," he added.

Earlier in the day, the president attended the Russian Volunteer 2017 award ceremony in Moscow, where he asked the audience whether they would support his decision to run. The answer was seemingly a unanimous "Yes."

"When I make [the decision], I will certainly keep in mind our conversation today and your reaction," Putin said. He added that "the motive behind [this very responsible decision] can be only the desire to make people's lives in our country better and make the country itself more powerful and protected."

The upcoming election on March 18 will be the fourth in Putin's political career. He held the office of president for two terms from 2000 to 2008, and served as prime minister from 2008 to 2012. Putin then won a third term as president in 2012.

This is one thing about Russia that I think is gay af.

This need to appease the Western moral system with bullshit like elections.

When Putin used his personal brilliance to save the vestiges of a collapsing ancient empire and then succeeded in bringing it to the level where it is openly challenging the formerly "unipolar" world, he should have declared himself Czar Vladimir I and told the West "come at me bro."

Not a single Russian would have questioned it.

But no—instead, they have stupid hoax elections, they claim they're not sending homosexuals to death camps in Chechnya, they claim they want to notice the cultures of the races they conquered and subdued.

What is the point?

No one believes it.

Everyone sees the opposition leaders who are supposed to be running against Putin getting shot in the street or beat up by police.

And yes, of course he is justified in doing this, because these "opposition leaders" are openly funded by Jewish terrorists and the West for the purpose of disrupting and destroying the country from within.

But that is the entire point.

That is what happens in this democracy system: the people with the money to subvert it systematically decide how it's run. It is the single most corrupt potential system of governance.

The Russian system wouldn't simply be more moral if it rejected Western norms point blank, it would be more legitimate— "you can't run against me because I'm the Supreme Leader with a mandate from God and the people" is a heluva lot more legit argument than "we beat the shit out of the opposition leader and threw him in jail because he didn't have a permit for the sound system at his protest or whatever roflmao."

And here's yet another thing: the reason that opposition leaders are "oppressed" is not because they are an actual threat to Putin—with all the kike money in the world at this point, anyone Western-backed opposing Putin would max-out in the 20 percentish range. The REASON he has to suppress the so-called opposition is because if he did not, he would look weak in the eyes of the Russian people.

So—figure that one out.

Modern universal suffrage human rights democracy is the absolute definition of a failed system. It is not legitimate. A country cannot be run based on it.

But Putin, for whatever reason, feels the need to reinforce the supposed legitimacy of this system by pretending to follow it.

It certainly isn't because the general population of Russia agrees with it. The general population of Russia is a whole lot further right than Putin. If you sit down at a random bar next to any random guy anywhere outside of St. Petersburg (with the ability to understand a little bit of Russia), there is a 70% chance the guy is going to start talking about genocides needing to be committed. Russian men openly hit women in public. Homosexuals do disappear, and cops don't do paperwork when it happens. The country is all of these stereotypes.

And they have the global moral highground.

They should stop pretending they don't.

Because the world is waking up to the reality that we made a bad mistake that needs correcting, and Putin's Russia has the opportunity to be a guiding moral light.

But if Putin fails...there is another.

The one whom the prophecies have spoken of, beseeched by God himself to bring forth the new Age of Kings.

"He who is coming..."

African Migrants Doing Ritual Animal Sacrifices to Get Magic Power to Make It to Europe

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Is there anyone who didn't simply assume that this was happening?

The shocking part is not that it is happening, but that it appears to be working.

Il Giornale:

Migrants fear the voyage that will bring them to Italy. Especially Nigerians. So they often turn to magicians and magic to propitiate the crossing, with voodoo rituals that they also bring with them once they are in Italy.

La Verità describes the practice. The migrants address the goddess of water, Mammy Water, also called Mami Wata. The ritual involves running around with bare chest with a chicken with its throat cut and a bell in hand. Then witchcraft, hypnosis and other rituals.

According to the reporting of Alberto Cicala, this reduces "fear during journeys to other countries, renders the emigrant unbeatable, for good and ill. The ritual calls on the spirits that sleep inside the waters of the river, warning that if you disobey the ritual oath, you will suffer madness until death."

A long and elaborate ritual which in a certain way ensnares the young men seeking their fortune in Europe.. "The native doctor," writes La Verità," starts calling the person on his knees in front of him by name and as in a prayer he calls out responses to all the declarations recited. Shells and pebbles are thrown on the ground, while a tuft of hair is cut from the victim with a razor blade and a sample of blood is taken from a finger then collected in a handkerchief. The ritual continues until the individual falls into a trance induced by alcohol (gin and powders made up of the roots of various medicinal trees) and the emotional charge that is progressively instilled, in between the fumes of incense and alcoholic exhalations. The witch doctors spit a compound they have prepared in advance into the face of the victim and from that moment the bond is sealed."

I think maybe we should start making ritual chicken sacrifices for Pappy Shark.

Give him a bit of a magic boost.

Nordic Resistance Movement Calls For “White North” Year Round

NRM has been really outdoing itself with its demos recently.

Video Link

Some of the chants are pretty lulzy as well like, “where are the cat-ladies?”

Because it's true. The fucking Boomer Swedes are a menace and always out demonstrating for more refugees, fucking afghan boys that the government pays them to take in, and just being complete faggots.

Speaking of faggots, the Finnish government decided to ban the NRM in Finland, which promoted NRM to protest them at the embassy:

Video Link

Omg, they look like Death-Eaters! t. normie

And speaking of Boomers...
/wp-content/uploads/2017/12/ZYsg4BzfKivav2qa.mp4

One of the best things about all these actions and demonstrations is that we quickly uncover realities that we would otherwise not have noticed. Like who is the most vociferously anti-nationalist and how the police really treats nationalists whether they're “secretly red-pilled” or not.

This is all valuable feedback data for us.

First we gotta bring the cucks into line. Set our own house in order. Get the Boomers to understand that Ahmed isn't paying for their retirement and if they don't shape up, neither are we. Let the cops understand that they'll be taking orders from us in the future, so they better watch how they treat our activists. And get the THOTs in line as well.

These are all our people and they all need to be put in place first before winter can come and we can drive the invaders out of the great White North.

Islamic Plot to Assassinate Theresa May Foiled

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

WHOOOPS.

Sky News:

A terror plot to assassinate Prime Minister Theresa May has been foiled, Sky sources have confirmed.

Sky's Crime Correspondent Martin Brunt said: “It's the latest in a number of terror plots that police and MI5 believe they've foiled this year.

“I understand that the head of MI5, Andrew Parker, briefed Cabinet ministers today (Tuesday), such is the seriousness of what they believed they have uncovered.

“It is in essence an extreme Islamist suicide plot against Downing Street. Essentially police believe that the plan was to launch some sort of improvised explosive device at Downing Street and in the ensuing chaos attack and kill Theresa May.

“This is something which has been pursued over several weeks at least by Scotland Yard, MI5 and West Midlands Police.

“It came to a head last week with the arrest of two men, by armed police, who were charged with preparing acts of terrorism.”

Look, I'm not an expert on bushels but I've certainly laid eyes on a few in my day.

And every bushel I've ever seen shared a characteristic: there were a few bad apples in each.

So just as British backpackers and sex tourists in Thailand are every couple of weeks mowing people down in the streets in the name of Jesus in order to try to overthrow the Buddhist government of Thailand and establish a Christian Caliphate, you've got Moslems doing these things in Britain.

Everywhere there are foreigners, they slaughter the local population and try to assassinate it's leaders in order to overthrow the local government. It's a normal thing, and if you don't understand that, you need to read up on “bushels.”

Just last week, a Taiwanese UN worker attempted to murder the king of Uganda in order to establish a homosexual utopia in the name of his anus.

Point being: a Moslem trying to murder Theresa May is not a big deal.

The real threat to Britain is the President of America retweeting videos of things Moslems have done.

Donald Trump's racist retweets are offensive to all of us

Britain should withdraw its state visit invitation to Donald Trump in the wake of his sharing of Britain First videos, say 38 political and religious figures. Plus, a warning not to underestimate the far-right group

Theresa May and Donald Trump at a NATO summit in Brussels earlier this year. Photograph: Matt Dunham / Pool / Life

Because that is part of the duty of nations: to hide from their populations things foreigners do to them. Reporting on these acts, or acknowledging that they happen, is an act of hate.

Do you think the Thai people go around talking about the British sex tourists mowing them down in the streets in order to establish a Jesus Caliphate? Of course they don't. They shut their mouths about it, because it simply isn't proper to discuss.

Swedish Female Politician Charged with Raping Under-age Haji Boy!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

If there's one thing white women crave, it is the cocks of immigrants.

Who knows why. Probably it is mainly just an attack on us, white males, as revenge for giving them "freedom." They have a desire to go back into "oppression" and see the brown man as a vessel through which to accomplish that goal. They are jealous of the trash-bag women who have men that actually treat them like women like to be treated.

Whatever the case, I personally do not give a shit what is going through the mind of a woman and believe that men who do are pathetic.

The point is: the obsession with brown cock is definitely a thing and the only solution is to beat women and lock them in cages.

Diversity Macht Frei:

An unnamed female politician in western Sweden, presumably Gothenburg since it is being reported by the Gothenburg Post, has been charged with rape of a masculine "child refugee". The woman, who has been active in local politics, also works at a refugee accommodation centre.

She has admitted having sex with the "child" in her own home over a period of about a month and the "child", in turn, has admitted having sex with her.

Of course almost none of these "refugee children" are either genuine refugees or genuine children but because, officially, they are, the sexual relationship would be deemed non-consensual on the part of the "child" and therefore rape.

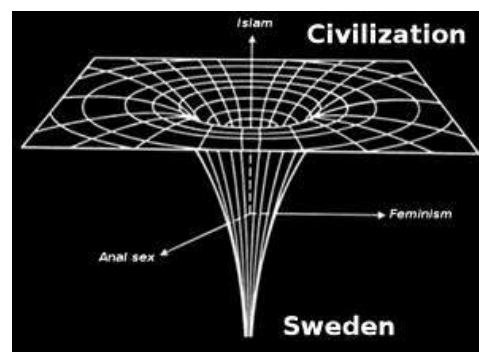

When she, no doubt, defends herself in court by saying "but he isn't really a child", this should help blow the lid off the "child refugee" scam.

This is meta-level clown world.

- White woman fucking illiterate brown person from savage, primitive country in order to spite the men who worked to build a civilization for her
- Brown person pretends to be a child
- Possible for a woman to rape a man, because age difference

Sweden is going to become some type of nonsense singularity and collapse into a black hole before they ever reach their proposed Islamic Caliphate.

Banana-Obsessed Monkey Bitch Meghan Markle Demands a Banana Wedding Cake! Sick!

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

This is not a normal level of affection for fruit. There's something deeper, darker at play here.

We're starting to see the first consequences popping up for Britain choosing a monkey princess instead of a regular old princess as a bride for Prince Charles.

Her jungle DNA compels her to have an irrational craving for bananas, and the britcucks are allowing this exotic urge to override the national interests of the country.

Anglin made this meme a couple days ago:

And now we find this:

And more shockingly, this: Memes are real life. The Telegraph:

Thirteen months ago, Meghan Markle's cryptic Instagram post of two bananas "cuddling" signalled the start of her whirlwind romance with Prince Harry.

The picture—accompanied by the message "sleep tight" and two kisses—sent fans into overdrive as they speculated that it was likely a symbol of their long-distance love.

Now, it seems, the fruit is set to play a central role in their wedding too.

The Daily Telegraph can reveal that the couple, who announced their engagement last week, are planning on marking their big day with a wedding cake made from bananas.

Will the people of Britain allow themselves to be humiliated like this?

"This will be the first royal wedding cake made from bananas", a source close to the couple told The Telegraph.

As well as acting as a symbol for their affection, Prince Harry is said to love "anything with banana".

His former royal chef, Darren McGrady, has previously spoken about making the young Prince a caramel and banana cake.

Riiiiiiight. "It's actually Harry who wants the banana cake, and not his jungle wife." Nice save there.

But nobody's buying it.

Especially not with the bullet-proof evidence I've presented earlier.

This banana cake is a threat to the national security of the UK, and must be stopped at all cost. No one will ever take a country seriously, where their king was married over a banana monstrosity instead of a proper wedding cake.

"They don't even have normal cakes! We can invade them easily! What are they going to do, throw bananas at us?"

The people Britain must rise up in revolt against this banana cake and its monkey inceptor.

Surely if marrying the divorced old monkey wasn't too far—this cake is.

Germany: Nearly 9000 "Migrants" Take Cash to Go Back

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

Just in general, giving people a financial reward for committing a crime is a bad idea.

Because it can cause people to be encouraged to commit crimes.

That's why generally, crimes are punished instead of rewarded. But given white privilege and the Holocaust and so on, we have no choice but to pay niggers to commit crimes against us.

Fox News:

Germany has come up with a novel way to thin the ranks of migrants who have sought asylum but been rejected: paying them to leave.

The country, which has come under fire in some quarters for its acceptance of refugees fleeing war and hardship in various Muslim-majority countries, now wants to give rejected asylum-seekers a one-time payment of $3,570 to go home.

The Interior Ministry says those who qualify can apply by a Feb. 28 deadline and they would get the money once they return home.

Migrants who agree to go back even before their asylum request is rejected have already been offered money under a different program for almost a year. They would now be eligible to apply for both programs.

But the Bild am Sonntag newspaper reported Sunday that 8,639 migrants participated in the returnee program between February and October, even though there are about 115,000 rejected asylum-seekers in Germany—many of whom can't be deported for humanitarian reasons.

I know for a fact it costs less than $3,570 to get to Europe.

So there is no reason, if you've not got much going on, you wouldn't accept the cash and then just come back.

Depending on how long it would take you, and how much welfare payout you could get in that time period—but you could be out and back inside of a month, and you don't get that much welfare in a month, even in batshit Germany.

They're announcing these return numbers now because of the study showing Europe is going to be a majority Moslem within a century even if migration is stopped. This is the kind of thing they do—“oh well, we've got like, 100,000,000 of these people, with thousands more pouring in every day, but a couple went back lol.”

Some Dumb Thing in Yemen, Saudi Bombing Dudes Again

Andrew Anglin

Stupid Middle East thing happening.

Washington Post:

Heavy airstrikes by the Saudi-led coalition pounded Yemen's capital overnight, targeting Sanaa's densely populated neighborhoods in apparent retaliation for the killing of the former Yemeni president by the country's Shiite rebels, residents said.

The body of ex-President Ali Abdullah Saleh, which had appeared in a video by the militias with a gaping head wound, was taken to the city's military rebel-controlled hospital but it was not immediately clear if the rebels would allow Saleh's family to hold a funeral later in the day.

The gruesome images from the previous day sent shockwaves among Saleh's followers—a grisly end recalling that of his contemporary, Libya's Moammar Gadhafi, in 2011.

Saleh's son Salah said on Facebook on Tuesday that he won't receive condolences for his father's death until “after avenging the blood” of the longtime strongman. Salah also urged his father's followers to fight their former allies, the Shiite rebels known as Houthis.

From Cairo, Arab League chief Ahmed Aboul-Gheit issued a statement Tuesday denouncing Saleh's “assassination” at the hands of “criminal militias,” and warned Yemen's situation could explode further and worsen humanitarian crisis. The League spokesman, Mahmoud Afifi, quoted Aboul-Gheit as saying the international community should label the Houthis a “terrorist” organization.

What all of this stuff happening following the end of the Syrian war shows you—if we break this down to a toddler's level—is that there are people who want conflict in the Middle East, and will do anything to keep it going.

These people are what are known as “Jews,” most commonly referred to as “kikes.”

You have this Shiite v. Sunni thing, but the only reason that exists is because the Jews have propped up the dumbest bunch of retards, given them a bunch of weapons and white Instagram pussy, and made allies of them. Otherwise, Shiites would naturally have dominated the Middle East following the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, because Shiites tend to be genetically superior.

Ireland: Bill Proposed to Jail People for Spreading "Fake News" Online

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 4, 2017

A bill proposed in the Irish parliament seeks to punish people who spread fake news online. That's because Donald Trump got elected as part of an alleged Russian conspiracy.

The only news that can be spread online is that which is approved by Jews. Any other news that is not approved by Jews is fake and part of a Russian conspiracy. That's literally the reason this insane bill has been proposed in the Irish parliament.

Irish Independent:

The use of internet "bots" to influence political debate will be punished with fines of up to €10,000 or five years' imprisonment under new laws tabled by Fianna Fáil.

Ground-breaking proposals to be brought before the Dáil this week will also make it an offence to actively promote "fake news" using social media sites such as Facebook and Twitter.

The Bill comes on the back of claims that the election of US President Donald Trump was heavily influenced by Russian entities—but will have a major impact on the practices of political parties here.

It contains a number of restrictions on online political advertising and will require the purchasers of such ads to display a transparency notice stating their aim and target audience.

So essentially this bill seeks to make it a crime to promote news which is considered fake. Great, so who decides what is fake and what isn't? Who is the ultimate decider on what is real and not real? Isn't that where this whole thing is going? Perhaps these fools would like to explain the exact process of how the government determines what "fake news" is.

Even though the biggest promoters of fake news are Jew run outlets like CNN and others, this legislation will not be used to go after them. It will be used to go after people promoting stories that provide alternative points of view not favorable to the Jewish international establishment. Those news stories will be considered "fake" and illegal to post and spread. It certainly won't be the endless amounts of ink pissing that originates from the Jew run media.

This is just another attack on freedom of speech. The Jews are scared that nobody is believing their huge corporate megaphones any longer so now they're focusing on social media and the internet. Let's hope that this legislation goes nowhere.

Australia: Faggot MP Proposes to Boyfriend on Floor of Parliament

Australia just legalized homosexual marriage a couple days ago.

(It is hard to believe that they're so behind the times. They should have legalized pederasty and sex with goats by now. After all, Australia is supposed to one of the most tolerant and compassionate societies in the world.)

So finally, a faggot member of parliament was able to offer his boyfriend a marriage proposal while speaking on the floor of parliament.

Reuters:

An Australian conservative politician on Monday proposed to his long-term partner on the floor of parliament, ahead of the expected passage of a measure for same sex couples to marry.

Australians overwhelmingly voted for same-sex marriage in a postal vote in September and a marriage equality bill that passed the senate last week is being debated in the lower house, where it is expected to pass this week.

Liberal member of parliament Tim Wilson proposed to his partner Ryan Bolger in the capital of Canberra, the two having already exchanged rings but having pledged to wait for the country to pass the legislation before they wed.

This is pure madness. And this faggot who made the proposal is a conservative politician. This shows yet again that conservatives everywhere have failed to conserve anything throughout the West. Being in favor of homosexuality and homosexual marriage was never a conservative position up until the past few years. Being an actual homosexual was at one point considered to be incompatible with conservative thought. Of course these days we have characters like MILO and others around.

This faggotry is not going to end until these sick weirdos are rounded up and put into mental hospitals. There really is no other solution to this problem. We need to put these sick freaks back in the closet where they belong. If we do not do this, this homosexual sickness is going to further infest our cultures and result in its continued decay.

We've gone from embracing homosexuality to embracing all this transgender weirdness and it's only going to get worse from here. We need to put our foot down and stomp out this insanity. Healthy societies do not embrace these types of psychological disorders as a normal thing.

Christmas Mass Cancelled in Bari, Italy – African Violence Makes It Too Dangerous to Go Out in the Evenings

Diversity Macht Frei

December 4, 2017

Local criminality has shut down Christmas. In Bari, in Libertà district, the traditional Christmas Eve mass, celebrated at midnight, has been brought forward by the curia because of the curfew. Too dangerous, for families and elderly people, to leave their house in the evening due to the fighting between the clans that populate the district.

"It is useless to hide the fact that there are particular concerns in the district," explained Don Vincenzo Auciello, the parish priest, in an interview with Gazzetta del Mezzogiorno. "At that time there are shots fired and bangs, the elderly people are afraid and families with children perhaps prefer to remain at home and remember the birth of Jesus within the family."

Don Auciello speaks calmly about his decision, but the choice to bring forward the mass to 6.30 pm has provoked some indignation. The Libertà district is one of the most populous in the city of Bari, with around 60 thousand inhabitants, and it is also one of the most problematical. High rates of crime, dealing, drugs and prostitution. In the evening people are afraid to go out. Immigrants and local clans continue fighting one another and the demands of local citizens for more controls count for nothing.

The article doesn't go into any more detail because of political correctness. But the problem here is Africans. This area has been totally colonised by Africans. I have seen videos of local residents complaining about how African criminals patrol the district carrying machetes!

DoJ Launches Investigation Into Planned Parenthood Selling Baby Parts

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

KILL IT WE NEED RESEARCH TISSUES

Riddle me this:

How is Planned Parenthood supposed to give women free abortions if they aren't allowed to sell the bodies of the dead babies to medical research companies?

Those babies aren't going to kill themselves, people. And if it isn't don't by Planned Parenthood, you know what that means don't you?

Coathangercaust.

Fox News:

The Justice Department has launched a federal investigation into Planned Parenthood's practices and the sale of fetal tissue.

In a letter first obtained by Fox News, Justice Department Assistant Attorney General for Legislative Affairs Stephen Boyd formally requested unredacted documents from the Senate Judiciary Committee, the same panel that led the congressional probe into the women's health organization.

"The Department of Justice appreciates the offer of assistance in obtaining these materials, and would like to request the Committee provide unredacted copies of records contained in the report, in order to further the Department's ability to conduct a thorough and comprehensive assessment of that report based on the full range of information available," Boyd wrote.

Fox News has learned that last month, the FBI first requested the unredacted documents from the committee.

Fox News is told that Committee Chairman Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, and Ranking Member Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., said they needed to receive a letter and be assured that the documents would be used for investigative purposes.

lol Feinstein

MAY BABY BODY PARTS, GOYIM

The letter, sent to Grassley and Feinstein on Thursday, is a rare confirmation by the Justice Department of a federal investigation.

"At this point, the records are intended for investigative use only—we understand that a resolution from the Senate may be required if the Department were to use any of the unredacted materials in a formal legal proceeding, such as a grand jury," Boyd also wrote.

A spokesman for the Senate Judiciary Committee did not respond to Fox News' request for comment.

In the committee's final report entitled "Human Fetal Tissue Research: Context and Controversy" published in December 2016, Grassley referred Planned Parenthood and other providers to the FBI for investigation.

Grassley said at the time that the committee has discovered enough evidence that shows how abortion providers had transferred fetal tissue and body parts from aborted fetuses for research by charging amounts higher than they actually cost.

"The report documents the failure of the Department of Justice, across multiple administrations, to enforce the law that bans the buying and selling of human fetal tissue," Grassley wrote last December urging the Justice Department and FBI to investigate. "It also documents substantial evidence suggesting that the specific entities involved in the recent controversy, and/or individuals employed by those entities, may have violated that law."

Yeah, this could potentially be serious.

Probably not.

But at least it's in the media again.

I want all these fucking filthy whores to know that the babies they murdered had their little corpses sent to facilities to have fungus grown on them.

Morning Joe Claims Trump's Jerusalem Speech Proves He has Dementia

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

Video Link

Morning Joe is doubling down on his theory that Donald Trump has dementia. He claims that a couple of slurred words during Trump's Jerusalem speech prove his theory.

Seriously? A couple of misspoken words doesn't equate to someone having dementia. If that were the case, then I could claim that every Black member of Congress is suffering from dementia. Most of them can't read or speak properly. There's all sorts of video evidence proving this. Take for example Al Green reading the articles of impeachment against Trump he proposed on the House floor the other day. Using the standard Morning Joe has set, he definitely has dementia.

It'd be one thing if Trump fainted or had to be assisted into an automobile like Hillary Clinton did during the campaign. That would obviously be a concern. This just appears to be a case of Trump having a dry mouth or dry throat.

The White House has already said that Trump would undergo a physical early next year. This proves that he's not hiding anything and if he has any medical problems they will be found during the physical.

Morning Joe has the look of a nervous man. The harder he goes after Trump the more likely it is that he had something to do with that dead intern found in his office.

Morning Joe is only pushing this insanity because he's angry that Trump brought up the issue of the dead intern.

So now that Matt Lauer is gone when will the Fake News practitioners at NBC be terminating the contract of Phil Griffin? And will they terminate low ratings Joe Scarborough based on the "unsolved mystery" that took place in Florida years ago? Investigate!

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) November 29, 2017

As many of you already know (although a lot of people do not), a 28-year-old female intern was found dead behind a desk in Morning Joe's office back in 2001—allegedly from head trauma after falling down randomly. Although it was ruled an "accident," the investigation was weird and some believe Morning Joe had something to do with the intern's death. This is information Morning Joe wants people to forget.

But hey: having the murder of a female intern (or complicity in covering up a murder, or whatever) held over your head sure would make you a loyal shill, would it not? And Morning Joe certainly is a loyal shill.

We can probably expect to see equally if not more crazy anti-Trump theories from Morning Joe over the weeks and months to come. Morning Joe is an unhinged man who has a platform on national television. This strange situation is undoubtedly the fault of Jews.

This is not the multiculturalism I was promised on the Disneyland ride.

Fox News:

Philadelphia is one step closer to getting rid of bulletproof glass in many of its small businesses as part of a larger effort to crack down on loitering, public urination and potential drug sales—but the potential ban has triggered a backlash from shopkeepers.

The city's Public Health and Human Services Committee passed a bill Monday enabling Philadelphia's Department of Licenses and Inspections to regulate the bullet-resistant barricades that stand between customers and cash registers in many neighborhood corner stores, according to FOX29.

"No establishment required to obtain a Large Establishment license...shall erect or maintain a physical barrier that requires the persons serving the food either to open a window or other aperture or to pass the food through a window or other aperture, in order to hand the food to a customer inside the establishment," the bill states. It also calls for larger establishments to have bathrooms for customers.

Several of the hundreds of deli owners told FOX29 they feel as though they are being singled out, and numerous shopkeepers are among those protesting the bill.

"If the glass comes down, the crime rate will rise and there will be lots of dead bodies," Rich Kim, the owner of Broad Deli, which sells soda, meals and beer by the can, said. "The most important thing is safety and the public's safety."

Kim said the glass went up after a shooting and he said it saved his mother-in-law from a knife attack.

Fox News previously reported the bill, put forward by Councilwoman Cindy Bass, focuses on "stop-and-go" convenience stores that act more like bars than the restaurants they are licensed to be, selling beer and shots of liquor over the counter and attracting crowds that end up becoming public nuisances, according to lawmakers.

Pennsylvania state law mandates businesses with restaurant licenses should regularly sell food and have tables and chairs to seat 30 people. But some businesses keep their seating locked up or out of reach and the grills shut down, selling little more than alcohol and forcing customers to wander outside.

Bass told Fox News in “more than 90 percent of cases they are breaking the law in terms of operating outside the requirement of their license.”

Bass said the bulletproof glass and partitions at some of these businesses are a concern of the city’s health department—if a customer is choking or having an allergic reaction, a barrier should not stand in the way of safety.

She also addressed the security concerns.

The chairman of the Asian American Licensed Beverage Association of Philadelphia, which represents 217 “beer delis” in the city, also said most of the businesses being targeted “are in not-as-safe neighborhoods.”

The Koreans are gonna have to put guys on their roofs to protect their shops.

Here’s Cindy Bass.

Talk about being ungrateful—this bitch looks like she just swung down out of the trees!

This is just a totally aggressive anti-Asian measure by a black female. She knows it will make them afraid and result in more robberies, and that is why she is doing it.

Just out of general racial spite. Not against any specific individuals or groups of individuals, just Asians generally. That’s a difficult concept for white people to even grasp.

But they’d better start grasping it soon.

Jews Shut Down Funding Program for First Amendment Charity

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Jewish intimidation groups are in a wild frenzy ever since we were able to raise money for wrongfully terminated patriot Tony Hovater. He was able to raise at least $8,000 dollars, which provoked rage and disbelief from the international Jew!

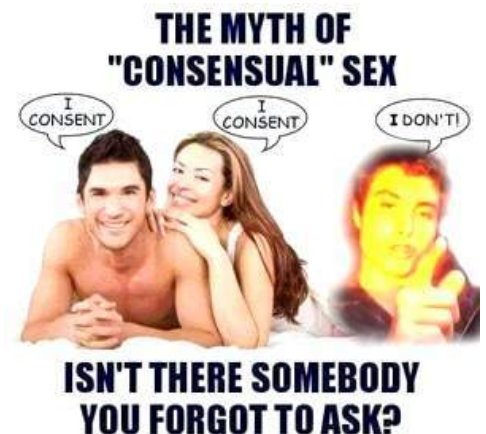

Last interview I did with Tony, he said he has reached an outpouring of support, including from people who don’t share all of his beliefs. Jew mad bro?

Both the Southern Poverty Law Center and the Anti-Defamation League are trying to pressure domain hosts and registrars to shut down free speech crowdfunding platforms like Goy Fund Me and Hatreon. Their push cohencides with large coordinated DDoS attacks from certain (((hackers))) against alt-tech. I’m sure the ADL and SPLC know nothing about this!

But this isn’t even the tip of the iceberg. Even 501(c)(3)s dedicated to protecting free speech are getting no platformed by private companies.

Both the ADL and SPLC successfully convinced their friends at Amazon to ban the Foundation for the Marketplace of Ideas from their Amazon Smiles program. You see, Jews live by the Elliot Rodger philosophy of needing to ask them for permission before donating your own money to a charity of your choice.

SPLC:

It probably seemed like an easy way to raise funds for the Foundation for the Marketplace of Ideas (FMI).

FMI created a charity profile on Amazon.com through the Amazon Smile program and pulled 0.5 percent of some purchases toward alt-right causes.

But, the online retailer put an end to the cash collections by white nationalist attorney Kyle Bristow. As of Wednesday, Amazon shut down FMI’s donation collections by making it ineligible to take part in the charity fundraising program.

Amazon posted a message saying FMI was “no longer eligible” for the program and any funds donated could be redirected to another charity.

It isn't known how much money the organization, run by Bristow as the legal arm of the alt-right, made from Amazon's charity fundraising outlet. But, Bristow, in a tweet Wednesday morning, said it wasn't much.

"It appears @amazon doesn't like civil rights groups which advocate for the First Amendment!," wrote Bristow, who has represented alt-right figures in lawsuits around the country. "0.5% of the purchase price of a cheap Chinese product is very nominal."

Amazon's move is the latest by on-line companies and social media to drop, block and decertify figures from the alt-right.

The move brings Amazon in line with PayPal, which agreed to block at least 34 organizations from using its services after an SPLC report highlighted how extremists used the platform to fund the rally in Charlottesville, Patreon and others in dropping racists and white nationalists from their platforms.

The only thing the FMI does is take up First Amendment causes the Jewish litigation group ACLU refuses to take up.

This is very different from what the SPLC does, which is to list the names and personal information of political dissidents with inflammatory and usually inaccurate biographies. Jews at the SPLC even get Christian churches banished from the Smiles program. Merry Christmas, goyim!

Building a legal organization that can help protect actual dissidents (not fags trying to force Christians to cater their gay pretend marriage) is of vital importance in this age of almost unprecedented repression.

If you're giving money to Lauren Southern, you are taking money from the FMI and underground crime think like The Daily Stormer. Support activists, art projects, and subscribe to as much alt-media (TRS, Red Ice, etc) as you can. If we don't continue to find new and creative ways to defend ourselves from Jewish hegemony, their plan to wipe us from the face of the earth will go on.

They will kill the West in its sleep!

Donate to FMI

Kyle Bristow is doing God's work, and anything you can throw his way is money you can be certain is going to the right place.

To donate to FMI, please mail a check or money order made out to "Foundation for the Marketplace of Ideas, Inc." to:

Please be sure to include your name and mailing address with your donation so that a tax-deductible donation receipt can be mailed back to you.

Alternatively, payment by credit card can be made via the website of GuideStar—which rates FMI as a platinum participant. (The only donation feature is immediately below the header and above the taskbar.)

You can also sign up to pledge a monthly donation by credit card to Kyle Bristow via Hatreon.

Fifty-Eight House Democrats Vote for Resolution to Impeach Trump

Al Green, an insane Negroid monkey man from Texas, forced a vote on articles of impeachment against Donald Trump today. Fifty-eight Democrats voted in favor of the resolution.

Fox News:

The House of Representatives overwhelmingly rejected an attempt to impeach President Trump after a liberal Texas congressman forced a vote on his effort.

Democratic Rep. Al Green, who has repeatedly called for the president's removal, introduced two articles of impeachment against Trump on Wednesday.

But lawmakers immediately voted to effectively kill his resolution, with 364 voting to table it and 58 Democrats voting to move ahead.

In a dramatic speech on the floor ahead of the vote, Green called Trump "unfit" for office and accused him of "high misdemeanors."

Green claimed that Trump needed to be impeached because he has said mean things and is a racist. He even brought up Trump's ban on transgenders in the military and his dispute with the National Football League as justification for impeachment. It was some of the most insane gibberish and grandstanding imaginable. Worse yet, is that the nigger could barely read the articles of impeachment. He kept stumbling over his words.

Who is this fool kidding? Saying mean things or having a view you disagree with are not impeachable offenses.

Most of the 58 Democrats who voted in favor of the impeachment resolution were non-Whites. They hate everything that Trump stands for because he stands for White America and they hate White people. They are the real haters.

All Green did was make a fool of himself. He is a textbook example of why Blacks should be banned from holding public office.

Testing of WALL Prototypes has Begun – Which Will Have Best Anti-Beaner Defense?

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Cue “Yes—Roundabout” music.

The border wall with Mexico is the meme that won the election—a meme so powerful it altered the fate of mankind forever. Once the meme becomes manifest in meat-space, it may tear the fabric of space-time apart, not only removing Mexicans from America, but deporting them from our very memories.

The wall’s power is as a symbol, a spiritual construct embodying America’s will to survive and assert it’s interests against the globalist death machine. As such, it’s important that it’s done right, that it provokes fear and awe. This isn’t something that should be rushed.

But also, it needs to be really effective at keeping these invading beaners out.

ABC News:

U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) began physically testing the southwest border wall prototypes this week, according to a spokesperson for the department.

The start of the official testing period was Nov. 27, but physical tests began Monday, said Carlos Diaz, CBP’s public affairs branch chief for the southwest border.

The wall cannot be stopped—every act of resistance only adds another brick.

Construction of eight wall prototypes in the San Diego sector were completed on Oct. 26. Six companies were chosen to build eight sample walls—four made of concrete and four constructed of “other materials.”

President Donald Trump made the southern border wall between Mexico and the United States the calling card of his presidential campaign. “Build the wall” became a familiar chant at all of Trump’s campaign rallies, and stopping illegal immigration was one of the candidate’s top selling points.

The prototypes are the first steps in CBP’s efforts to build a wall, although administration officials have acknowledged that a future wall is unlikely to stretch from “sea to shining sea,” despite Trump’s initial promise to cover the entire border.

Last week, CBP officials began training, safety and security procedures, as well as scheduling to set up the testing.

Testing the wall prototypes should be fairly simple. Just go to the nearest Home Depot and round up a few Jose’s, and get them to the construction site and tell them there are burritos on the other side of those walls. They’ll test them, alright.

Of course, the burritos are a lie. The only thing on the other side is a team of ICE agents.

Speaking of which...

One of the founders of ICE just wrote an Op-Ed for Fox News defending the necessity of the wall, and used some tight talking points.

Fox News:

Leaving our border unsecured any longer is not an option.

The influx of illegal laborers increases the supply of workers. There are currently at least 8 million illegal laborers in the United States. Over half crossed the border illegally and the rest overstayed their temporary visas.

The illegal workers compete against less-educated Americans for the same manual labor and service-sector jobs, especially in industries like construction and landscaping.

Thanks to this pool of cheap illegal labor, corporations feel little need to raise wages and attract American workers. U.S.-born workers lose up to $118 billion a year due to illegal immigration, according to George Borjas of Harvard’s Kennedy School of Government.

The supply of illegal labor has devastated working-class Americans’ economic prospects and made it harder for vulnerable Americans to find employment. One in six American high-school dropouts is unemployed or has left the labor market entirely.

But what about my cheap kitchen extension tho?

Mexican drug cartels also take advantage of our porous border. Lax border security enables the cartels to smuggle drugs that kill tens of thousands of Americans annually into our country.

Nearly all of the heroin and much of the fentanyl on U.S. streets comes from Mexico, according to the Drug Enforcement Administration. Those two drugs alone killed almost 20,000 Americans in 2015. Cartels earn about $64 billion annually trafficking drugs across our border.

Drug traffickers are brutally violent. In recent years, cartels have murdered tens of thousands of people in Mexican border cities and that violence has spilled over into American territory. More than 40 percent of federal criminal cases filed in 2013 were in districts along the U.S.-Mexico border, according to a recent report from the Department of Justice.

Just adds spice to life, you know?

Of course, a border wall alone won't fully solve the many problems stemming from illegal immigration. Authorities also need to crack down on businesses that knowingly employ illegal aliens. All employers should be required to use E-Verify, a free, online verification system, to confirm that prospective employees can legally work in the United States. A mandatory E-Verify policy with a $10,000 fine for each violation would eliminate the lure of cheap labor that some American employers find so irresistible.

YES.

Build a wall, deport them all, and aggressively prosecute any business hiring these people.

This is what we need. And as recent news have shown, this is exactly where things are going. The future is looking rosy indeed, provided we stay on track.

New York: ICE Raiding Courtrooms Nonstop in Their Quest to Deport Every Last Invader

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Even sanctuary cities aren't safe for you, Pedro.

ICE is really easing into their roles as modern-day superheroes. They foil the bad guys at every turn, often with flair and panache.

Their arch-enemy, the perfidious sanctuary cities, thought they could keep them at bay simply by refusing to cooperate with them and sheltering the evil invaders from the long arm of justice.

But not to be undone, the brave heroes at ICE have changed tactics and now stalk the courts in these cities to arrest and deport potential illegals.

The Nation:

Last week, a Brooklyn court building became the latest flashpoint in Trump's border war: Genaro Rojas-Hernandez, an undocumented immigrant, was at a criminal court for an unrelated assault charge, when he was arrested by ICE agents. The clash between federal immigration agents and a local criminal-justice process spoke to a new constitutional crisis unfolding in the city's criminal-justice system.

New York's immigrants don't take the justice system lightly; whether they're the accuser or the accused, municipal courtrooms are daunting and confusing. But under Trump, they're especially dangerous. Since January, according to federal data, the New York City area's courts have seen a striking 900 percent spike in the number of immigrants targeted by ICE immigration agents, seeking to take them into federal, not local-police, custody. Legal activists warn that Trump is attacking not only the rights of migrant communities but the central organ of constitutional justice.

Illegal immigrants don't have rights, you retard. They're criminals just by virtue of being here, not to mention that their lack of citizenship means they enjoy no constitutional protections. Laws are a covenant between the government and the people, and citizenship is the requirement to be a part of that covenant. Otherwise, the laws of every country in the world would apply to everyone in the world.

That wouldn't be all bad, though...

Earning legal status within a country isn't just a formality, it's meant to create a contract between you and the government of that country; without it there's nothing stopping the government from just kicking you out—or worse.

These immigrants come from all walks of life. They're women seeking temporary protective orders, trafficking survivors, struggling parents dealing with family-court disputes. Municipal courts don't deal with federal immigration law, but, by raiding local courts, ICE becomes judge, jury, and jailer for migrants dealing with anything from a traffic ticket to domestic violence.

That sounds pretty rad, tbh.

Judge, jury and jailor—sounds like the closest you'll get to being a Judge is to join ICE.

The Immigrant Defense Project (IDP) has documented 112 ICE arrests and near-arrests in the New York area that have occurred since the start of the year, mostly in the five boroughs but also in outlying and suburban regions. Since both undocumented and authorized migrants can also be placed in deportation proceedings, IDP found that about 15 of those arrested were “legal”—primarily of green-card or visa holders.

GOOD!

Deport the legal ones, too! We don't want 'em!

We need not only the courts, but hospitals, welfare offices and taco stands swarming with ICE agents ready to deport at the slightest suspicion. The lives of these illegals must be made into a hellish experience until they all just leave.

By this point, Trump should just divert most of the military's budget to ICE. They've proven themselves to be a lot more competent and cunning at defending America.

Brave Space Pioneer Shut Down by Illuminati and Their “Round Earth” Conspiracy

Roy Batty
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

What's the worst thing that could happen?

As we all know, the idea of a round earth is an Illuminati plot to trick the uninitiated into thinking that we actually live on a floating orb.

Ridiculous.

Our flat earth is clearly riding on the back of a giant turtle or space jellyfish or other semi-aquatic creature swimming through the warm ether.

One brave Boomer decided to expose the round earth conspiracy by creating his own rocket.

Sky News:

A limousine driver turned self-taught scientist has had to delay plans to launch himself over a California ghost town in a home-made rocket.

Mike Hughes, who calls himself Mad Mike Hughes and says he doesn't believe in science, has spent years building his own steam-powered rocket in his garage to prove the Earth is flat.

The 61-year-old saved money from his $15-an-hour driving job and has spent $20,000 (£15,000) on the project.

Money well-spent already.

No, but seriously, this is what happens when you give a generation of man-children too much free time (retirement) and too much money. They spend it building steam rockets in their garage, to disprove NASA and Galileo or whoever the fuck.

“Kids these days think they're entitled to exist on a spherical orb in space!”

Worse, the flat earthers even have an entire following and donor base with which they helped this guy build the rocket.

While we're fighting to stave off White Genocide, there is an entire society of people dedicated to not believing in a round planet Earth and raising funds to disprove it.

You can get Boomers to literally piss away their retirement money on hair-brained flat earth steam powered rocket schemes, but you can't get them to lift a finger to prevent White Genocide. Or god forbid you should mention the Jews. That's pretty crazy when you think about it.

Anyways, this guy is not actually going to do it for the simple reason that he'll die if he does. While I don't doubt his engineering skills and ability to create a steam rocket, I just wonder how he's going to safely land.

I may not be the only one having doubts as the launch was scheduled for this weekend. I was planning on reading about yet another senseless Boomer killing when he inevitably crashed into a school full of children or maybe even a hospital. But alas, seems he's getting cold feet.

I hope he takes these idiots' money and just runs to the other end of the earth with it.

Another Bitch Accuses Good-Natured Rat Kike Al Franken of Molestation Attack [UPDATE: Slut Team Six Strikes!]

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

Update:

The walls are closing in, Al!
The Hill:

Six female Democratic senators quickly followed Gillibrand in saying that Franken should step down: Sens. Kamala Harris (D-Calif.), Claire McCaskill (Mo.), Patty Murray (Wash.), Mazie Hirono (Hawaii), Tammy Baldwin (Wis.) and Maggie Hassan (N.H.).

"I believe the best thing for Senator Franken to do is step down," Harris said.

By midday, Democratic Sens. Debbie Stabenow (Mich.), Heidi Heitkamp (N.D.), Bob Casey (Pa.), Sherrod Brown (Ohio), Joe Donnelly (Ind.), Michael Bennet (Colo.), Edward Markey (Mass.) and Maria Cantwell (Wash.) had also called on Franken to resign.

No way he can hold out on this.

He's gonna hold in as long as he can, which probably either means late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Original article follows.

"Bitches love this chosen Jew. A true Hebrew Hero. Unlike that greasy nigger Conyers, who is infesting our woodpile." -Nancy Pelosi

Ah, no you guys.

Franken's cool.

You know. Good guy. A real schleup.

But that John Conyers—he's a low-down dirty nigger.

Politico:

A former Democratic congressional aide said Al Franken tried to forcibly kiss her after a taping of his radio show in 2006, three years before he became a U.S. senator.

The aide, whose name POLITICO is withholding to protect her identity, said Franken (D-Minn.) pursued her after her boss had left the studio. She said she was gathering her belongings to follow her boss out of the room. When she turned around, Franken was in her face.

The former staffer ducked to avoid Franken's lips. As she hastily left the room, she said, Franken told her: "It's my right as an entertainer."

God's chosen entertainers.

"He was between me and the door and he was coming at me to kiss me. It was very quick and I think my brain had to work really hard to be like 'Wait, what is happening?' But I knew whatever was happening was not right and I ducked," the aide said in an interview. "I was really startled by it and I just sort of booked it towards the door and he said, 'It's my right as an entertainer.'"

The former staffer, who was in her mid-20s at the time of the incident, said she did not respond to Franken.

As Pelosi said of Conyers: "that sonovabitching filthy nigger needs to get the fuck out."

And as Pelosi said of Franken: "...."

Yeah, seriously though.

She's saying nothing at all, after she told the poor black bastard Conyers it didn't matter he was in the hospital, he still had to resign immediately.

Here was my other Pelosi joke:

"Nancy Pelosi tells voters they're going to have to get molested by Al Franken to find out if he's really a pervert."

Brofist: After Convincing 13-Year-Old Spic to Self-Deport, Trolls Encourage Parents to Follow

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

Immigration status: Self-deported

We have recently witnessed the first known case of internet-spawned self-deportation by a spic when the invasive wetback Rosalie Avila deported herself with a rope.

Now, the HEROES who accomplished this monumental and historic feat are attempting to get her parents to follow behind.

Fox News:

After losing their teen daughter to suicide due to years of bullying, Freddie and Charlene Avila are now being tormented by Internet trolls dishing out the same vitriol that caused 13-year-old Rosalie to take her life.

Rosalie Avila, of Yucaipa, Calif., hanged herself last Tuesday, leaving behind a note to her parents apologizing for the "pain she knew her death would cause them," NBC News reported.

"Sorry, Mom and Dad. I love you.' And it said, 'Sorry, Mom, you're gonna find me like this,'" the note read, according to Freddie.

Rosalie was taken off life support Monday after being declared brain dead Friday. Her parents said they would donate her organs.

The Avilas said their daughter was bullied for years—and now they're being targeted, too.

In one case, the Avilas received a meme on social media. "Hey mom, next time don't tuck me in this," read text near a photo of Rosalie's face next to a bed. Below that was the text "Tuck me in THIS" next to a picture of a person gesturing to a freshly dug grave. Rosalie's face was photoshopped on to the gesturing person, CBS Los Angeles reported.

DANK OC FROM OUR BROS IN CALI.

Finally, some Cali bros pulling their weight out here.

"It's so heartless, so mean to do that. And it's not funny, it's not funny to see that image of your daughter and to be mocked like she's crap, and she's not. That's my daughter," Charlene told FOX11.

The Avilas told FOX11 they went to their daughter's middle school, Mesa View Middle School, regarding the bullying their daughter endured and felt not enough was done to prevent it.

"Right now, the bullies are still there. They were suspended for a couple days and then they come back and bully someone else," Freddie Avila told FOX11.

Don't let the suspensions get you down, bros.

You're doing God's work.

Video Link

Let nothing you dismay.

Charlene added: "The things that they post on social media about my daughter are unacceptable. The people that liked it and fed into it. It's painful and it makes me angry to know that they have no heart."

...

After Rosalie died, her parents found her diary, which chronicled her thoughts and the times she was bullied at school.

"They told me I was ugly today," the diary read. "They were making fun of me today about my teeth."

...

The couple said Rosalie's five siblings "were traumatized and can't stand to be home because their last memory of Rosalie is of her after she hanged herself in her room."

"We are an emotional wreck," Charlene said.

You know what else is a wreck? My fucking country, you stupid bitch.

And you sloppy fat Aztecs with your SIX KIDS—sorry, five now, lol—are not helping that wreck.

DEPORT DEPORT DEPORT

When I see what you sickening savages have done to it, no, I'm not even able to sympathize when it is reduced to the level of the individual. I now view you entirely as a group which is opposed to my group and thus every member of your group in the territory of my group is hurting my group and thus every member of your group that is removed is good for my group.

In other words: the sympathy well is all dried up.

Any of you moral fags who get moved because some spic bitch is dead need to check your priorities.

Man up, faggot.

You're in the middle of a race war.

Also, do you know who is moralfags?

Where am I supposed to find the rest of this set???

At least Google Images recognizes it.

Feds Bring Charges Against Kate’s Killer – “WE’LL JUST DEPORT HIM AGAIN LOL”

Andrew Anglin

Daily Stormer

December 6, 2017

Just whatever keeps this story in the headlines.

Whatever that is is good.

CNN:

The undocumented immigrant who fatally shot a young San Francisco woman at a popular tourist spot two years ago has been indicted on two federal charges in connection with the controversial case.

Jose Ines Garcia Zarate, who was acquitted last week of state murder and involuntary manslaughter charges, was charged Tuesday with one count of a felon in possession of firearm and one count of an immigrant in possession of a firearm.

Garcia Zarate’s acquittal in Kate Steinle’s death prompted a firestorm of criticism from President Donald Trump and conservatives toward San Francisco, a so-called sanctuary city. Garcia Zarate was found guilty on a state charge of being a felon in possession of a firearm and could face up to three years in prison.

Immigration officials have said they want to deport him. Garcia Zarate claimed the shooting was accidental.

So this guy steals a gun from a federal agent’s car, shoots a woman randomly, after he’s been deported FIVE TIMES—and the plan is to deport him again, Jeff?

JEFF WHY IS THAT THE PLAN JEFF?

Whatever.

It doesn’t matter.

One dead woman for an infinite propaganda victory.

Because this doesn’t just prove that spics will randomly kill you and/or your family members—it proves that spic juries will be like “BUT HE DID NOTHING WRONG.”

We have a situation that is not workable. People need to understand what is happening. And there is no better headline than “MEXICAN JURY DECIDES MEXICAN WHO WAS DEPORTED FIVE TIMES AND STOLE A FEDERAL AGENT’S GUN AND USED IT TO SHOOT A RANDOM WHITE WOMAN DID NOTHING WRONG.”

And then the fact that the entire media made it a racial issue—that you are a racist if you think it should be against the law for Mexicans to kill white people randomly—wew. I mean, these spics coming out and saying that “hate was defeated,” and then the antifa protesting IN SUPPORT of Kate's death?

AND THEN THE MEMORIAL TO HER IS REMOVED BECAUSE IT'S A "HATE SHRINE"???

You can't buy propaganda like that, folks.

I hope Jeff Sessions deports Zarate, he breaks back in and commits a Friday the 13th-type bikini massacre and the Mexican jury rules that he had to do it because he was trying to stop Freddy from invading his dreams.

And then Jeff Sessions is like "aww jeez, Trump, jeez, what're we gonna do, Trump, I guess we'll just have to deport him a seventh time, Trump, aw jeez man."

Media Invents Kook Hoax About Mueller Requesting Trump's Bank Records....!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

The entire media establishment is still claiming that the hammer is about to drop on Trump, with the entire Russia investigation blowing up and everyone going down.

Days after we found that the real conspiracy was a Jew in Trump's administration trying to collude with Russia to help illegal Israeli settlements in the West Bank at the UN, the Jew media is still just making things up about the sky falling down.

Reuters claimed that Muller had subpoenaed Trump's bank records, and the White House has flatly denied it.

The Hill:

White House press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders on Tuesday disputed reports that special counsel Robert Mueller has subpoenaed President Trump's bank records.

"We confirmed that the news reports [that] the special counsel had subpoenaed financial records related to the president are completely false," Sanders said during the daily press briefing.

"No subpoena has been issued or received. We have confirmed this with the bank and other sources. I think this is another example of the media going too far and too fast and we don't see it going in that direction," she said.

Citing an anonymous and unidentified official, Reuters reported earlier Tuesday that Mueller's team had subpoenaed records from Deutsche Bank, where Trump is believed to have a line of credit and to have conducted tens of millions of dollars in transactions.

But Sanders said those reports are false and were another example of the news media getting something wrong in the frenzy to report on the investigation into Russian meddling in the 2016 presidential election.

Obviously they wouldn't deny something that was going to come out either way. They haven't done that yet. So there is zero chance this is a real thing.

The media just made it up.

Why?

Probably so people will stop talking about the Michael Flynn thing, which is really a Kushner-Israel thing.

It's a war-fog machine.

Despite the madness of people like Morning Joe, the top media manipulators are aware that none of this is going anywhere, so they're just trying to protect he Jews.

They have definitely given up on pretending to be the sort of people who don't just make shit up randomly. Their followers—the true believers—like it. Just like any cult member, they enjoy believing insane nonsense that makes them feel good.

Trump's impeachment is for liberals like the rapture is to evangelicals.

John Conyers is out. Bet he is having second thoughts about promoting feminism and empowering all those skanks that brought him down. Oh well, better luck next time!

The #MeToo movement has claimed one of our political enemies. John Conyers, the Negro Congressman from Michigan, has announced his retirement after 5000 years in Congress. His announcement comes after he was accused of sexual misconduct by several women.

NPR:

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said he will step down from Congress as of Tuesday, amid allegations of sexual misconduct leveled by multiple women.

Conyers told a Detroit radio show this morning that “I am retiring today,” though he is effectively resigning. He also said in an interview on The Mildred Gaddis Show that he wants his son, John Conyers III to succeed him in Congress. “My legacy will continue through my children,” Conyers said.

Michigan law says it’s up to the governor to call a special election to fill the seat.

Earlier, Conyers’ grand nephew, Michigan State Senator Ian Conyers, told the New York Times that he planned to run for the elder Conyers’ seat.

John Conyers spoke from an undisclosed hospital, according to his attorney, where he is being treated for stress related health concerns.

Several women have accused the Michigan Democrat, who is the most senior member of Congress, of verbal abuse, inappropriate touching and groping over decades.

It sounds like the scandal has taken quite the toll on Conyers considering that he has been hospitalized during the ordeal. It is likely to assume that he will be dead soon.

What’s funny is seeing the Jewish lawyer Lisa Bloom pile on Conyers. Keep in mind, this is the same woman who was briefly representing the Jew sex pervert Harvey Weinstein.

Congressman Conyers: women who worked for you deserved better.

This is the first of several affidavits I will be releasing describing allegations that you sexually harassed staffers and covered up complaints. My client Marion Brown asks only for an acknowledgement and apology. pic.twitter.com/Shfh1dMXd2

— Lisa Bloom (@LisaBloom) December 5, 2017

Despite the scandal, Conyers has been supported by a significant base of people as the scandal unfolded. Many of them are upset at Nancy Pelosi for not supporting Conyers until the end. Republicans should learn from this. They need to support their people 100 percent. All of this talk about morality and things like that is dumb. Winning is the only thing that matters. Not supporting Roy Moore was stupid because the allegations against him have been legitimately without merit. You can’t let the enemy dictate what you do.

But now that Conyers is gone, when are we going to see that Jew Al Franken resign from the Senate? He needs to step down immediately. Unlike Conyers, we have an actual photo of this Jew grabbing a woman’s tits while she was sleeping. This is definitely not appropriate behavior for someone who is supposed to be representing the people of Minnesota.

I mean, how many memes and photoshopped images are going to come out before that Jew pervert is forced to quit?

So Flynn was Colluding with Israel for Jared Kushner. Huh.

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

Unsurprisingly, the discovery of collusion with a foreign government has been with Israel, the Israeli agent being Jared Kushner.

Flynn was asking Russia for a favor on behalf of Kushner for Israel.

But that’s allowed, so no problem.

I guess we’ll just stop talking about it.

Flynn still has to suffer though. Because he’s a gey—and all gey must suffer for everything they do. Even for helping Israel.

RT:

Media hysteria over alleged Russian collusion continues, even as President Donald Trump’s short-lived national security adviser, Gen. Michael Flynn, pleaded guilty to lying to the FBI about speaking with Russian officials to advance Israeli interests.

On Friday, Flynn pleaded guilty to lying to federal investigators twice during an interview with the FBI in January, according to a signed Statement of Offense.

An indictment released by the office of special prosecutor Robert Mueller says that Flynn spoke with Sergey Kislyak, then-Russian Ambassador to the United States, twice in December, when Trump was president-elect.

While Flynn's plea does not show any direct evidence that the Trump campaign colluded with Russia to influence the election, it does show that they might have colluded with an entirely different foreign government to undermine the foreign policy of a sitting president.

On December 22, 2016, Flynn contacted Kislyak to ask if Russia would delay or defeat a UN Security Council vote criticizing Israeli settlements. UN Resolution 2334 demanded that Israel "immediately and completely cease all settlement activities in the occupied Palestinian territory, including East Jerusalem" and said that the settlements established by Israel have "no legal validity and constitutes a flagrant violation under international law."

In December, a senior Israeli official told CNN that his country reached out to the Trump campaign after it failed to persuade the Obama administration to veto the resolution.

The officials said that Israel "implored the White House not to go ahead and told them that if they did, we would have no choice but to reach out to President-elect Trump."

The day after the resolution was submitted, the Justice Department said that "a very senior member of the Presidential Transition Team" directed Flynn to contact "several foreign governments, including Russia," in order to "learn where each government stood on the resolution and to influence those governments to delay the vote or defeat the resolution."

...

On Friday, a Trump transition official told BuzzFeed that Jared Kushner, Trump's senior advisor and son-in-law, was the one who ordered Flynn to make the calls.

"Jared called Flynn and told him you need to get on the phone to every member of the Security Council and tell them to delay the vote," the official told BuzzFeed.

Flynn also contacted the US missions of Uruguay and Malaysia, while Kushner contacted the British ambassador to the United States in the hours before the vote, two diplomats familiar with the conversations told Reuters.

Kushner reportedly told Flynn that "this was a top priority for the president."

President Kushner he meant.

The Jewish President of the Jewish United States.

Surely if it was a top priority of the White American President of the White American United States, he would have been directly involved with it instead of sending his snakelike Jewish son-in-law.

However, Newsweek reported Saturday that Kushner failed to disclose his role as co-director of the Charles and Seryl Kushner Foundation between 2006 and 2015, during which time it funded an illegal Israeli settlement. This could have been seen as a conflict of interest in his appointment as the Trump advisor tasked with bringing peace to the Middle East.

On Sunday, Kushner conducted an interview with Haim Saban, a prominent Clinton Foundation donor, who thanked him for "taking steps to try and get the United Nation Security Council to not go along with what ended up being an abstention by the US against a 50-year-old tradition."

"To be honest with you, as far as I know there's nothing illegal there," Saban said. "But I think that this crowd and myself want to thank you for making that effort, so thank you very much."

Sigh.

It's just.

It's just depressing that the media is able to bury this stuff.

Kushner and Flynn were acting on behalf of Israel in collusion with Netanyahu...but meanwhile in the @nytimes pic.twitter.com/TLaymgQXEn

I'm quoting RT here because they're basically the only one laying it out like this.

Then you get the Jew-4-Jew media, and headlines like this:

Of course, I'm not even going to ask you to consider what would happen if a major American paper printed a headline like: "Michael Flynn Was Right To 'Collude' With Russia—Because He Did It For the White Race."

Funny how Israeli press is highlighting Flynn apparently lying to help Israel more than US press. <https://t.co/UqUfCWbBss> pic.twitter.com/hLtiLSPEbK

— Sam Hussein (@samhusseini)
December 1, 2017

If you look-up Kushner in the goy media right now—during this biggest break in the entire year-long Russia drama—you get headlines like this:

Jews are allowed to openly proclaim their interests over the interests of the people they live with, they are allowed to openly not hold themselves to their own rules. They are allowed to control and manipulate the entire planet while somehow claiming to be a victim group because of a nonsensical fantasy about millions of them being made into furniture and cleaning products 70 years ago.

This is a completely deranged situation—Jews search for a year to find someone involved in collusion and then— “WE FOUND A TOP TRUMP OFFICIAL INVOLVED IN COLLUSION—EXCEPT IT’S WITH US LOL WHOOPS JUST BURY THAT PART AND MAKE IT SOUND LIKE IT’S GOYIM STUFF.”

But Then the Good News

The good news is that Kushner is just going to have to leave.

I don’t think he’s going to suffer any real consequences, because the people trying to inflict consequences on the Trump Team are all Jews. But for Flynn to be prosecuted effectively for doing something Kushner asked him to do (yes, it’s technically the supposed lie to the FBI he’s being prosecuted for, but the FBI wouldn’t even have asked him the question if it wasn’t for the Jewish witch hunt, and he wouldn’t have needed to lie if it wasn’t for Kushner’s request of him) —this is the kind of thing that destroys your political career, whether the media reports on it or not.

It’s just too extreme of a situation for him to just stick around.

He’s also going to be under much more heavy scrutiny by Mueller, simply because there is only so far you can push the “JUST AVOID ANYONE WHO IS JEWISH AND LET THEM COMMIT CRIMES” plan.

I think we’re going to see a resignation before Christmas, at which point Mueller will have an excuse to stop looking into him, and it will be easier to bury the fact that Jews are now investigating themselves and punishing the goyim for things they did.

Oh and the other good news—this has nothing at all to do with Trump. Even if Trump told Jared Kushner to tell Flynn to help Israel—and I very seriously doubt that happened—they’re not going to go down that road.

Flynn was also the last “big card” of the Mueller witch hunt.

So now I guess we can go back to talking about Trump’s tax returns.

Oh or Trump University. Let’s do that one again.

Japan: Yellow Nazis Give Oppressed Black Life in Prison Just Because He Committed Rape and Murder

Spartacus

Daily Stormer

December 5, 2017

She probably refused to pay him his reparations, which makes raping and killing her OK

So the neo-Nazi justice system of Japan has just sent an innocent black man to prison for no reason other than he raped and murdered some Japanese woman who had honorary White privilege, completely ignoring the root causes of this incident—systemic racism and the terrible legacy of Satoshi Crow.

CBS News:

TOKYO—A Japanese court on Friday convicted a U.S. military contractor of murder and rape charges in the death of an Okinawa woman and sentenced him to life in prison.

The Naha District Court also found Kenneth Shinzato, a former Marine, guilty of abandoning the victim’s body, court officials said. The 20-year-old woman was found in the forest in May, three weeks after she disappeared while taking a walk.

Oh, so she was just “talking a walk.” Just “talking a walk” is a clear sign of the privilege that is afforded by White supremacy and in some cases, like this one, loaned to Asians in order to make black people look bad. This was a clear cut provocation that resulted from Japan’s White-inspired racism.

FREE KENNETH!!!

Shinzato was accused of hitting the woman in the head with a club, intending to rape her and stabbing her to death in the neck with a knife. He pleaded guilty to the charges of rape resulting in death and abandoning of the body, but denied murder intent.

After centuries in which black schools were underfunded because of the holocaust, how were you expecting him to know that stabbing someone in the neck can lead to death? It’s clear that he shouldn’t be in prison, and he deserves compensation from White people.

Judge Toshihiro Shibata upheld prosecutors’ demand for life imprisonment, saying there was no room for leniency, Kyodo News reported.

HATRED FOR THE COLOR OF THE SKIN!!!

These honorary Nazis from Japan should learn what a truly tolerant and progressive justice system is all about.

Norway—one of the least Nazi countries in the world, and a model for us all

The case sparked outrage on the southern Japanese island where residents have long complained about heavy U.S. military presence and crimes linked to them. The anger led to a bilateral pact limiting immunity from Japanese prosecution for civilian workers at American bases.

Okinawa has also protested a contentious plan to relocate a Marine Corps air station in the crowded neighborhood of Futenma to a less-populated part of the island. The plan developed after a military aircraft accident near the current base and the 1995 rape of a girl by three American servicemen enraged Okinawans, but has since made little progress due to protests. Opponents want the air station completely removed from the island.

MORE RACISM!!!

The U.S. military says the crime rate among its ranks in Japan is lower than among the general public.

What this statement hides is that the vast majority, almost all, of the accused and convicted are blacks, which are innocent when they actually did it because of White Supremacy.

Until we understand that every rape and murder committed by blacks is the result of Hitler and the KKK, there can be no justice in this world.

Trump Administration Cut Down Refugee Admissions by 83% – Only 17% to go!

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

tfw you have to stay in your own shitty country.

A single Somalian refugee is unacceptable. That's a fact, yes.

But do you think we'd even be seeing a mild reduction under Hillary? Ha!

You'd be swimming in Somalis right about now. We'd be talking about adding 3D artificial gravity highways for our major metropolitan areas just to cope with the additional traffic of shitty third world drivers. Drastic tax hikes would be on the books to fund the creation of new living space carved out of the depths of the earth, just to house more Mexicans.

So I'll take a 83% reduction any time. Hopefully, next year that will double to a 166% reduction, which would mean that existing refugees would actually start being airdropped back into their war-torn hell holes.

Hey, it's only the first year of Trumpism. There's still a lot of room to grow from here.

CNS News:

Refugee admissions to the United States were down 83 percent in the first two months of fiscal 2018 (October and November) compared to the first two months of fiscal 2017.

A total of only 3,108 refugees were admitted in October and November down from the 18,300 refugees who were admitted in October and November of last year.

when a moslem asks for refuge

KICK THEM OUT.

Meanwhile, fourteen months after the Obama administration backed a push at the U.N. for global responsibility-sharing for refugees and migrants, the Trump Administration has pulled out of the initiative. U.S. Ambassador to the U.N.

Nikki Haley said it "is simply not compatible with U.S. sovereignty."

The weekend announcement comes amid a sharp drop in the number of refugees admitted to the United States during the first two months of fiscal year 2018.

The most striking change between the refugee admissions in the initial two-month period of this fiscal year and last fiscal year was the relative differences in size of the contingents from Syria, Somalia and Iraq.

In Oct.-Nov. 2016, 2,259 Syrians (97.6 percent Muslim, 1.7 percent Christian), 2,463 Somalis (99.9 percent Muslim) and 2,262 Iraqis (75 percent Muslim, 17.3 percent Christian, 7.4 percent Yazidi) were resettled.

In Oct.-Nov. 2017 the numbers had dropped to 33 Syrians (66.6 percent Muslim, 33.3 percent Christian), 126 Somalis (100 percent Muslim) and 76 Iraqis (84.2 percent Muslim, 10.5 percent Christian, 3.9 percent Yazidi).

So Obama was basically flooding the country with Somali monkeys and Moslems of all stripes. What a surprise.

Among the 3,108 refugees admitted since FY 2018 began, the five largest contingents came from Bhutan (805), the Democratic Republic of Congo (627), Burma (347), Ukraine (290) and Eritrea (281).

The religious breakdown of those 3,108 refugees was: 59.6 percent Christian, 15.4 percent Muslim, 9.6 percent Buddhist, 7.6 percent Hindu, 4.7 percent Kirat and 0.9 percent Jewish.

So we went from like 97% Moslems to 15%, and from 7% Christian to 59%. That's the kind of progress I can get behind.

The refugee program should from now on be entirely devoted to repatriating White people stranded in various third world hellholes like South Africa and Zimbabwe. We can then get these Afrikaners jobs patrolling the border and kicking out brown invaders, which I'm sure they would accomplish with zeal.

Supreme Court Allows Trump's Travel Ban to Take Effect

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

The Supreme Court has approved Trump's travel ban on six majority-Moslem nations and there isn't a damn thing these freaks can do about it.

The Supreme Court is officially allowing the President's travel ban on six majority-Moslem nations to take effect.

Took long enough!
AP:

The Supreme Court is allowing the Trump administration to fully enforce a ban on travel to the United States by residents of six mostly Muslim countries.

The justices, with two dissenting votes, said Monday that the policy can take full effect even as legal challenges against it make their way through the courts. The action suggests the high court could uphold the latest version of the ban that Trump announced in September.

The ban applies to travelers from Chad, Iran, Libya, Somalia, Syria and Yemen. Lower courts had said people from those nations with a claim of a "bona fide" relationship with someone in the United States could not be kept out of the country. Grandparents, cousins and other relatives were among those courts said could not be excluded.

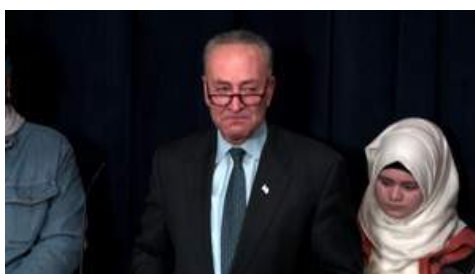

Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg and Sonia Sotomayor would have left the lower court orders in place.

The San Francisco-based 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Virginia, will be holding arguments on the legality of the ban this week.

This is good news. Even though the ban only applies to a few countries, it is still a major symbolic victory. It sends a signal to the world that the American people are fed up with all the subhuman garbage that's been coming in.

The Jews and the Communist left have filed all sorts of lawsuits in the lower courts to thwart Trump's travel ban. They have specifically chosen courts in places like Hawaii and California that are filled with leftist judges hell bent on stopping Trump's agenda irregardless of what the law actually says.

Obviously these lawsuits have been without merit. By law, the President has broad authority to control immigration into the country. That's why when this case reached the Supreme Court, the ruling was so lopsided.

The Jew Chuck Schumer staged quite the performance earlier in the year to protest Trump's travel ban. Let's see if he has more crocodile tears for this Supreme Court ruling!

Congress should seriously look into impeaching these activist judges who have blocked Trump's order. Some random judge that nobody has ever heard of in Hawaii has no business being able to thwart a presidential order on immigration. Such a person is in no position to revoke a national security decision made by the President. It is an entirely insane precedent that they've tried to set.

Oh well, at least the travel ban is finally in place. It might be a limited ban, but it is a definite step in the right direction. Our political enemies are extremely upset about this and that's enough to put a big grin on my face!

Trump Fully Endorses Roy Moore – And Presumably, Bitch-Grabbing

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

It's time to grab bitches and make America great again, and we're all out of bitches.

The people of Alabama are in a state of uncertainty. They've got a choice to make, and there's an obvious right choice, but they need reassurance. They need their question answered.

Is it okay to grab a bitch?

This is the question the Jews have asked them, with the obvious implication that it isn't.

But Trump has stepped forward, reliably as ever, and said unequivocally: yes, it's okay.

Oh, and also, vote for Roy Moore. CNN:

President Donald Trump fully endorsed Alabama GOP Senate candidate Roy Moore on Twitter Monday morning.

Trump had hesitated to throw his full support behind the embattled Republican candidate in the wake of explosive accusations against him. His tweet Monday comes as recent polls show a close race.

"Democrats refusal to give even one vote for massive Tax Cuts is why we need Republican Roy Moore to win in Alabama," Trump tweeted. "We need his vote on stopping crime, illegal immigration, Border Wall, Military, Pro Life, V.A., Judges 2nd Amendment and more. No to Jones, a Pelosi/Schumer Puppet!"

Democrats refusal to give even one vote for massive Tax Cuts is why we need Republican Roy Moore to win in Alabama. We need his vote on stopping crime, illegal immigration, Border Wall, Military, Pro Life, V.A., Judges 2nd Amendment and more. No to Jones, a Pelosi/Schumer Puppet!

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) December 4, 2017

The President went on to rail against Moore's Democratic opponent in the race, Doug Jones.

"Putting Pelosi/Schumer Liberal Puppet Jones into office in Alabama would hurt our great Republican Agenda of low on taxes, tough on crime, strong on military and borders...& so much more," Trump tweeted.

Putting Pelosi/Schumer Liberal Puppet Jones into office in Alabama would hurt our great Republican Agenda of low on taxes, tough on crime, strong on military and borders...& so much more. Look at your 401-k's since Election. Highest Stock Market EVER! Jobs are roaring back!

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) December 4, 2017

Moore expressed gratitude for Trump's public support, which comes eight days before the special election.

"Thankful for President Trump's support. The America First agenda will #MAGA. Can't wait to help him #DrainTheSwamp. #ALSEN" he tweeted.

Thankful for President Trump's support.

The America First agenda will #MAGA. Can't wait to help him #DrainTheSwamp.#ALSEN <https://t.co/pYu9h7TYVN>

— Judge Roy Moore (@MooreSenate) December 4, 2017

So did Moore do the grab? Probably not.

But it doesn't matter at this point. It's been force-memed that he did, and the position of "who the hell cares?" is way more powerful than all the denials in the world.

And now the people of Alabama can just endorse the whole package deal, bitch-grabbing and all.

Alabama Candidates
On the issues

✓ Down with stoning faggots	✗ Sodomy advocate
✓ #MAGA	✗ Don't #MAGA
✓ Grabs bitches all the time	✗ Hasn't grabbed a bitch since '72

Be informed, and make the right decision.

There basically isn't a snowball's chance in hell that Moore will lose by this point. The Jews launched their last ditch effort against him, accusing him of "rape" or whatever, and even this is fizzling out, just like it did for Trump.

The reality is that as long as the candidate just sticks it out and endures the momentary public embarrassment while attacking his enemies, these things don't stick, because no one really cares. Least of all the liberals, who for the longest time defended the likes of Bill Clinton for doing far worse than Moore is accused of.

Negro Felon League Week 13: Teams Failing to Put Asses in Seats!

Lee Rogers

In some ways it is unfortunate what has happened to the National Football League. Athletics can play an important role in a healthy society assuming that they are applied in a proper manner. Competition is a good thing as it encourages people to physically and mentally improve themselves.

The National Football League as it exists today is not a proper application of sport. The league is a circus filled with overgrown low IQ apes who have no respect for the country or the fans who have given them so much. Many of these football apes have also been prone to committing violent crimes which is why we now refer to it as the Negro Felon League.

Oh well, this is what you get when you flood a sports league with niggers and refuse to discipline them out of fear of being called a racist.

The league has even tried to bribe players with a $100 million donation to a variety of Negro oriented charities as part of an effort to stop them from kneeling during the national anthem. This bribe attempt has failed.

The fallout from these apes protesting the national anthem has continued into week 13. Ratings are down and teams are failing to put asses in seats. Some teams can't even give away tickets to their games.

Once again, the pictures don't lie. People are not going to these games. Empty seats could be seen all throughout the league.

Texas: Filthy Spic Removed From University Newspaper for Genocidal Anti-White Op-Ed

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 3, 2017

The entire campus of Texas State University is in uproar over an uppity beaner daring to attack the White race in an op-ed published by the school newspaper. Some were presumably also offended that a brown person was even allowed to attend the college.

The piece was probably published precisely in order to provoke such a backlash, the editors being unsatisfied with the current levels of hatred for minorities in their university.

Well, mission accomplished, boys.

WFAA:

The Texas State University Star Editorial Board is apologizing to its readers and informing them that they will no longer publish works from the columnist who wrote a piece with “racist” undertones in their Wednesday paper.

If that piece had racist “undertones,” then the Daily Stormer has “subtle traces” of anti-Semitism.

“We screwed up,” wrote the Editorial Board in a statement they released on their twitter page. “The author of the column has jeopardized the atmosphere of inclusivity at this university and will no longer be published in The University Star.”

The column, written by Rudy Martinez, was published on Nov. 28 and was titled “Your DNA is an Abomination.” It received massive backlash from readers, who said the writer expressed racist ideals.

Yeah, that'll go over well.

That's a straight-up call for genocide. The spic can't even use the excuse of “oh, I just meant the concept of Whiteness, not actual people” since he clearly mentions “DNA” in the title, implying it's actual White genes that need to be destroyed.

Student Body President Connor Clegg released a statement condemning the article and asking for the resignation of the author.

“The University Star has proven through this racist article that they no longer align with our core values as a university. It is imperative that we take necessary measure to ensure that tuition dollars do not go to fund this behavior,” said Clegg.

The student-run independent newspaper said they received hate mail, death threats and calls for members of the editorial board to resign if changes were not made.

Oops. I guess you thought you had adequately prepped the students for them to accept being wiped out, but it turns out that's not the case. The reality is that even these shitlib students have no real interest in White genocide—they only like to signal about it to score social “good guy” points.

But when push comes to shove and they're faced with what it actually means, when faced with the bare hatred of the brown masses, they shudder and shrink back, aghast.

They all hate you, Whitey.

Well, guess what? All these brown people think exactly the same way as this dumb spic here. They just know better than to come right out with it. So if you really think this is awful, then the solution is clear.

I'll give you a hint.

It starts with “D” and ends with “eportation.”

But their brown pets are torturing animals.

And of course, the torture of animals is a key aspect of the kike religion.

New York Post:

A California police department is investigating a gut-churning video posted to social media that shows a teen boy throwing a kitten across the street.

The graphic video, which lasts less than 10 seconds, was posted to Snapchat, the Ontario (Ca.) Police Department said in a statement.

Cops said a local 16-year-old, identified on the social media platform as “Charlie”, is the one believed to have lifted the animal with both hands before flinging it cruelly into the air.

The kitten was seen hitting the ground, clearly in shock and pain.

Although the suspect has yet to be found and arrested, cops say they located the cat's owner.

“The kitten survived the incident, but did suffer an injured leg,” the agency said in a press release. “The Inland Valley Human Society is assisting with the investigation and the care of the injured animal.”

The cat’s owner, Perla, and her mother told NBC4 the video is too upsetting to watch.

The cat is a stray they found four months ago and named “Spots.”

The owner said she hopes the kitten tossing teen is charged with animal abuse.

He deserves a whole lot worse than that.

To be honest, someone who would do that to a cat doesn’t deserve to live, and in any normal society, he wouldn’t be allowed to.

I’m very glad Spots is okay.

But think of this next time someone calls you an evil Nazi for not wanting these filthy fucking savages in our country.

Think of Spots the cat.

The Strange Case of Kevin Myers: When Victims Kiss the Feet of Their Tormentors

Diversity Macht Frei

December 9, 2017

Yesterday I did something I don't usually do: listened to a James Delingpole broadcast. Listen to it here (link).

Delingpole is what passes for edgy within the ranks of mainstream British conservatism: a posho who was best mates with David Cameron at uni, but likes to flaunt his rebel credentials by making jokes about "political correctness gone mad" or pointing out that the Arctic ice sheet doesn't seem to have melted as much as some people predicted.

Here he is interviewing Kevin Myers, an Irish journalist who had his life destroyed a few months ago (link) after publishing a column containing a reference to Jews that could have been construed as slightly unflattering but was, in fact, a backhand form of praise.

I note that two of the best-paid women presenters in the BBC—Claudia Winkleman and Vanessa Feltz, with whose, no doubt, sterling work I am tragically unacquainted—are Jewish. Good for them. Jews are not generally noted for their insistence on selling their talent for the lowest possible price, which is the most useful measure there is of inveterate, lost-with-all-hands stupidity.

The column was published in the Irish edition of the Sunday Times, which, I would imagine, does not have a very large readership, particularly at 3 o'clock on a Sunday morning. And according to a recent report, there are only 2500 Jews in Ireland. Nevertheless, within hours of his column being published, Myers' career as a journalist had come to an end. "You will never write for this paper again," he was told.

The primary interest of the podcast is that it provides more details of the case. In the middle of the night, Jews were already scouring through his old columns from the 1980s and even his memoir, looking for phrases and sentences they could twist out of context to make him look like an antisemite and trash his reputation, something they did with great success.

Its secondary interest lies in the pathetic display of submissiveness to Jews that both Delingpole and Myers continue to display. It shows us how deep the brainwashing is when even the victim of a monstrous injustice goes out of his way to defend the perpetrators of that injustice. And even to insist that they are not the perpetrators. According to Delingpole and Myers, it was SJWs who were to blame, not Jews.

Myers emphasises his philosemitic credentials, boasts of how many times he discussed the Holocaust in his previous columns; his support for Israel; his seal of approval from local Jews and the Israeli ambassador; none of which counted for anything. He even, absurdly, accuses his accusers of antisemitism—because they refused to accept the assurances of local Jews that he wasn't an antisemite. Refusing to blindly accept whatever Jews say now apparently constitutes antisemitism.

Myers, unfortunately, and tragically, because his tragedy is the tragedy of our dying civilisation, reveals himself to be little or no better than his tormentors.

"I do believe in free speech, right up to the point but no further, not beyond the point where you're inciting hatred."

Once you've conceded that principle, you've legitimated your own persecution. All you have left is an ever-shifting, indistinct boundary around what constitutes "inciting hatred".

Myers castigates the "far right", clearly still convinced that "antisemitism" is a blind, unreasoning hatred. It apparently does not occur to him that it is awareness of such injustices, such tyrannical conduct, such contempt for objective truth, and their ever-present obsession with controlling what other people are allowed to say, that caused us to become antisemites in the first place.

Myers has been subjected to "The Ban" (herem), his life and reputation destroyed by the people to whom he offered his obeisance. He can't understand the unfairness of it all. He doesn't see that it is precisely through unfairness that tyranny is enforced. If people are destroyed for minor peccadilloes or for nothing at all, it creates a terror environment that intimidates everyone. For every Kevin Myers ruined for a trivially disparaging reference to Jews, there will be a thousand cowed journalists who stay away from the subject altogether in future. That is the method of tyranny—the tyranny we all live under—the tyranny of having an unsympathetic or actively hostile alien tribe deciding what we are allowed or not allowed to say in our public discourse.

Oh thank you Jesus Christ.

NPR:

Sen. Al Franken, D-Minn., says he will be resigning from the Senate amid multiple accusations of sexual misconduct.

"I am proud that during my time in the Senate I have used my power to be a champion of women and that I have earned a reputation as someone that respects the women I work alongside every day," he said on the Senate floor. "I know there has been a very different picture of me painted in the last few weeks, but I know who I really am."

He said that serving in the Senate "has been the great honor of my life" and that "I know in my heart that nothing I have done as a senator—nothing—has brought dishonor on this institution. And I am confident that the Ethics Committee would agree."

"Nevertheless, today I am announcing that in the coming weeks, I will be resigning as a member of the United States Senate."

He would resign today, but there's a few more bitches in the office he needs to grope first.

LOL

Good thing I'm a gambling man.

Because the dice are all coming up ROSES today.

Franken down, Intifada up—nigga burn them thots up.

I also want to take this opportunity, celebrating the downfall of one of the most powerful Jewish kikes in the government, to thank the Jewish kike organization the SPLC—in particular, Heidi Beirich—for getting me kicked off of PayPal and all credit card processors back in 2014.

Heidi, thank you.

Thank you so, so, so much.

From the bottom of my heart.

I'm going to send you a cake with a stripper in it, Heidi.

Hit me up and let me know if you want a male or female one...or whatever the other options might be.

Because I wouldn't have any idea at all where to even start with trying to figure that out.

Also

I'm well aware that this porn bitch committed suicide ostensibly because faggots bullied her for refusing to have sex with faggots.

Porn actress August Ames apparently killed herself because she stated she wouldn't want to do scenes with men who've done gay porn scenes, so she got bullied online, lost her potential gigs, and killed herself.

Tell her to kill herself

Make videos mocking her

Start deleting tweets/videos

Claim you are a freedom fighter and she deserved it

Also claim it isn't your fault

Go into CYA mode

And yes, that is definitely the funniest thing that has ever happened on INFINITE EARTHS.

I mean, every single way you can think about that story is funnier than the last way you thought about it.

The key lesson is that bullying people into suicide WORKS and whether you are a Nazi or a cock-sucking faggot, it is almost certainly the CHEAPEST imaginable way to ensure your enemies DIE.

Finally

This whole motherfucker—and by "motherfucker" in this context, I mean "the world"—is about to pop-off.

I can feel it at the base of my spine. This kind of hum. It's like that scene in Jurassic Park.

Strap in, lads.

Uncle Tom Blames White Men for Queer Jew Bryan Singer Getting Away with Molesting Boys

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

The fact that queer Jew Bryan Singer likes little boys is an open and accepted fact in Hollywood.

According to a homosexual Jew's coon named Ira Madison III, this is because white men run the movie industry!

Now, seriously speaking, even Roofus the Cisco-drinking black hobo knows Jews run Hollywood. Ira knows this as well. In fact, Lord Ira the III's publication, The Daily Beast, is controlled by (((Barry Diller))) and (((Joey Levin))) at IAC.

This new brand of media-promoted black demagogue exists specifically to tell their fellow blacks that things powerful Jewish men do to America are actually the work of every day white people walking down the street. Ira the Jew's Coon is to his fellow niggas what Ben Shapiro is meant to be to (((fellow whites))).

The Daily Beast:

When Jessica Chastain tweeted, "Let us not forget," before linking to an article about Bryan Singer's past sexual-assault allegations, who could've imagined that he'd soon be fired for a completely unrelated offense?

On Monday, The Hollywood Reporter broke the news that Singer has been fired from directing the upcoming Freddie Mercury biopic Bohemian Rhapsody, starring Rami Malek. It comes following reports of repeated absences from the set, which were explained away as "a personal health matter" and "unexpected availability," according to different outlets.

Whatever the real reason, Singer hadn't returned to the set since Thanksgiving, which led to his dismissal from the film. However, THR revealed today that there was far more drama on the set than unplanned absences. After Malek complained to the studio of Singer's absence on set, they reportedly had a confrontation in which Singer threw an object at him. Amidst this, the actor Tom Hollander is alleged to have quit the production and had to be persuaded to return. During Singer's sabbatical, cinematographer Thomas Newton Sigel directed to keep the film on schedule.

If you want an egregious example of the type of privilege afforded to white men in Hollywood, look no further than Singer's career. Instances like this on set would get almost anyone fired, but this isn't even the first time Singer has been unreliable and unprofessional on set.

All of the people Kang Ira III is implying are conspiring to hide Singer's homo-pedophilia are Jews. This is the behavior of Jewish gangsters who run our media, not average white folks.

If I witnessed someone raping little boys, my first instinct would be to kick the shit out of him. The same is true for Mickey the bartender, John the construction worker, Joe the electrician, Pete the farmer.

Even most white collar white workers would at the very least anonymously report it to the police.

Isn't it something that this kind of behavior only thrives in environments where Jews have all the power? Movie directors, corporate CEOs, journalists, politics, TV people.

Ira III ain't a real Kang. He nuffin' but a batty boy. If he's willing to cover up the obvious truth that Jews run Hollywood, Ira too is willing to cover for the Jews and fags in his own industry (probably his own publication) that like to sexually abuse "twinks."

Jew Media Forced to Acknowledges That Mueller Probe is a Partisan Scam

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Looks like it's time to wrap things up, old chap.

While the establishment probably thought that the Michael Flynn charges would turn the tides on the Trump administration, it seems that the revelations surrounding the case have had the opposite effect. The fact that Flynn was shilling for Israel instead of Russia, and that one of the top guys on the investigation was a hardcore Hillary supporter, has put everything else in doubt.

While it was obvious all along that this whole thing was a naked political witch-hunt aimed at undermining Trump's credibility, now the hypocrisy and corruption is so blatant that even mainstream media outlets are being forced to recognize it.

New York Post:

So Peter Strzok wasn't just a top investigator for special counsel Robert Mueller until he was axed for anti-Trump and pro-Clinton bias: He was also a major player in the Hillary email probe and the FBI work that led to the "collusion" investigation.

And Mueller and the FBI both dragged their feet on sharing key info about all this with Congress. Including the news that Strzok was the one who changed then-FBI chief Jim Comey's draft language on Clinton's use of that private server from "grossly negligent" to "extremely careless" in the final version.

That's huge, because the statute specifies that gross negligence in the handling of classified info is itself a crime, whatever the intent—though Comey declared that Clinton shouldn't face prosecution precisely because she had no "intent" to break the law.

Strzok also conducted the FBI interviews of Clinton and her top aides, Cheryl Mills and Huma Abedin, in the email probe.

More, he was reportedly one of the major FBI figures urging investigations on the basis of the "Steele dossier" of Russian-sourced scurrilous anti-Trump allegations, which we now know was commissioned by the Clinton campaign.

More, he signed the documents that opened the ensuing "collusion" probe. And he led the FBI interview of Gen. Mike Flynn, in which Flynn told the lies that eventually forced him out as Trump's national security adviser, and for which he's now pleaded guilty in a deal with Mueller.

Meanwhile, Mills and Abedin's testimony in their interviews has been shown false in one major regard: Contrary to their denials, each had been well aware of Clinton's private server—they had to deal with the office fallout whenever it went down. Unlike Flynn, though, they never faced charges for lying to federal investigators.

In other words, he's a complete shill. And the charges brought against Flynn could be levied against members of the Clinton circle, but aren't—obviously for political reasons.

And this is being "noticed" by a lot of people.

It's almost like there's different stan- dards of justice for the Trump administration...

Daily Caller :

The FBI agent who was fired from Special Counsel Robert Mueller's Russia investigation team for sending anti-Donald Trump text messages conducted the interviews with two Hillary Clinton aides accused of giving false statements about what they knew of the former secretary of state's private email server.

Neither of the Clinton associates, Cheryl Mills and Huma Abedin, faced legal consequences for their misleading statements, which they made in interviews last year with former FBI section chief Peter Strzok.

But another Strzok interview subject was not so lucky.

Michael Flynn, the former national security adviser, pleaded guilty last week to lying during an interview he gave on Jan. 24 to Strzok and another FBI agent. Circa journalist Sara Carter reported on Monday that Strzok took part in that interview with the retired lieutenant general.

This whole scam is quickly becoming untenable.

After nearly a year of investigation, they've turned up nothing. Instead, they've only managed to expose their own corruption and bias. Trump, by this point, would be fully justified in just shutting it down as a subversive plot to undermine the proper functioning of the government.

The people will be on his side.

I Don't Really Care About Trump Moving Embassy to Jerusalem

Andrew Anglin

Daily Stormer

December 6, 2017

Maybe I'm missing something here, but it seems to me that the worst possible outcome of this move is a massive, devastating war in the Middle East in which tens of millions of people die.

So I'm not really seeing what the issue is.

ABC News:

In a momentous shift in United States policy in the Middle East, President Donald Trump officially recognized Jerusalem as the capital of Israel on Wednesday and initiated the process of relocating the U.S. embassy to the city from Tel Aviv.

"My announcement today marks the beginning of a new approach to conflict between Israel and the Palestinians," Trump said from the White House, where he was joined by Vice President Mike Pence. He described it as a "long overdue step to advance the peace process."

"While previous presidents have made this a major campaign promise, they failed to deliver," he added. "Today I am delivering."

His remarks were broad in nature—an intentional choice, according to a U.S. official and a source close to the White House who spoke to ABC News before the announcement.

Trump said Wednesday that "the U.S. would support a two-state solution if agreed to by both sides."

There is now officially no path to Israel continuing to exist for more than maybe another decade, unless Trump is impeached or otherwise removed from office.

All this does is intensify conflict in the region.

Right now, Iran is building military bases in Syria—with Russia protecting them and threatening Israel not to interfere. The war is over. There is a Shiite belt.

What Israel counted on was being able to use the US to ensure their own interests, even against Russia, but Trump pulled support for ISIS (and their "moderate terrorist" allies) and allowed for Russia to end the war.

Now Israel has serious people encroaching in on them with an intent to wipe them off the map, and their only allies are the inbred Saudis.

They are agitating everything, but unless Trump is prepared to ground-invade to fight a war against Russia, what exactly are their options?

It seems to me accelerating things is good, no matter how you look at it at this point, simply because Israel doesn't have any cards.

Who knows—I'm not a Middle East expert, and I'm not claiming to understand all the ramifications of this, but I don't give a shit about the Arabs being butthurt over this, other than so much as that butthurt might lead to Jews getting killed.

Roy Moore Accused of Jew Hate After Attacking Jew George Soros

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

Roy Moore just wants to tell these

Christ-killing kikes about the word of God!

It looks like Roy Moore is fed up with the filthy kikes who have been trying to derail his Senate campaign over the past few months.

During a radio interview he attacked the Jew George Soros who is currently trying to recruit felons to vote against him in next week's election. He's even been accused of Jew hate for his remarks.

Haaretz:

Roy Moore, the Republican nominee for Alabama Senator currently facing allegations of sexual violence, has been accused of anti-Semitism after he lashed out at billionaire George Soros on American Family Radio.

Soros, a Hungarian-born Jew who has spent a large part of his fortune funding pro-democracy and human rights groups, has repeatedly been targeted by the right in the U.S., EU and even Israel, in particular over his support for more open immigration.

Moore said that Soros' agenda is "not American culture" and that he "comes from another world that I don't identify with," adding that "no matter how much money he's got, he's still going to the same place that people who don't recognize God and morality and accept his salvation are going."

The Reagan Battalion, a conservative news source, tweeted Moore's comments, calling them "straight up antisemitism."

That's a very interesting quote from Moore talking about how Soros and his agenda is anti-American and from a different world that he doesn't identify with. It is a 100 percent accurate statement. Soros is a Jew and the Jewish agenda does not line up with what's best for America. It never has and it never will.

Considering how much these Jews have tried to screw him over, it is hard to believe that Moore isn't wise to their tricks by now. By trying to destroy his campaign, all they've done is radicalize him. While I don't expect him to abandon his pro-Israel stance and call for gas chambers immediately, it is impossible for one to say that he's the same man after this.

One thing is for sure, the Jews have been pulling out all the stops to try and prevent him from winning this Senate race. It doesn't look as if they'll be successful. They've overplayed their hand and they could have a real problem on their hands when he gets to the Senate. Like Donald Trump, he's an unpredictable figure and there's no telling what he might say or do.

At the very least, it will be funny seeing Moore tell all these Jews about the word of God from the Senate floor. Maybe he can teach Chuck Schumer some verses from the New Testament.

Rachel Marsden

In an article syndicated across hundreds of media outlets, Fox News pundit Rachel Marsden has named the kike in connection to the kookvestigation of Donald Trump's alleged collusion with Russia.

She basically just copied the talking points from my article this morning on the issue.

She writes for the Chicago Tribune:

Retired Lt. Gen. Michael Flynn, who served as U.S. President Donald Trump's national security adviser, has pleaded guilty to making false statements to the FBI about his contacts with the Russian ambassador to the U.S. Flynn's plea is part of a deal with special counsel Robert Mueller, who's leading an investigation into alleged Russian interference in the 2016 presidential election. Nothing in the plea agreement relates to the campaign period. And it's not communications with Russia that stands out, but rather communications with another country.

On Dec. 29, 2016, the Barack Obama administration gave Russian officials 72 hours to leave their San Francisco consulate, closed two diplomatic compounds in New York and Maryland, and issued sanctions against Russian companies. The same day, according to the Justice Department, Flynn called Russian ambassador Sergey Kislyak and "requested that Russia not escalate the situation and only respond to the U.S. sanctions in a reciprocal manner."

Communication between a country's ambassador and an incoming administration official during a presidential transition isn't exactly secret. Flynn's exchange with the ambassador appeared to be in America's best interests, and it's hard to see how it could have benefited Russia. It also took place after the election and therefore had zero influence on the result. Mark Toner, a spokesman for Obama's State Department, said in January that contact between a president-elect's transition team and the Russian ambassador wasn't problematic.

There's a passage in the Flynn plea agreement involving another country that has been largely overlooked by the media. Shortly before a scheduled Dec. 22 vote on United Nations Security Council resolution condemning Israeli settlements, "a very senior member of the presidential transition team directed Flynn to contact officials from foreign governments, including Russia, to learn where each government stood on the resolution and to influence those governments to delay the vote or defeat the resolution."

Presumably, a delay would have enabled a new Trump administration to veto the Security Council's condemnation of Israel. Flynn made the call to the Russian ambassador and stated the administration's case. On Dec. 23 (after a one-day postponement of the vote), the Russian ambassador called Flynn back and basically said nice try, but nyet, Russia wouldn't be succumbing to the wishes of Team Trump.

Fox News Pundit Names the Kike!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

The resolution passed later that day, with Russia voting in favor of it, and with the Obama administration declining to veto the resolution and abstaining from the vote.

Just who do the Russians think they are to block the incoming administration's attempt to do Israel's bidding on an issue that has no discernable benefit to America?

Mueller's investigation should focus on communications between this "very senior member of the presidential transition team" and representatives of Israel. According to the New York Times, "Trump's lawyers believe that unnamed aide was Mr. Trump's son-in-law and close adviser, Jared Kushner, according to a lawyer briefed on the matter."

Just a few days ago, Kushner spoke at the Brookings Institution's Saban Forum, described as an "annual dialogue between American and Israeli leaders from across the political and social spectrum." Kushner railed against Iran's "expansive regional mischief" and described his role in helping the Trump administration "unify everyone against Iran's aggression."

Kushner was then pressed—almost chastised—by the moderator over how long it would take to achieve this unification against Iran. Never mind Iran's prominent role in beating back the Islamic State. Meanwhile, any discussion of Saudi Arabia's regional mischief, including its key role in the creation of the Islamic State, was left out of the dialogue.

It came as no surprise when CIA Director Mike Pompeo said over the weekend that Israel and Saudi Arabia are now working together to fight terrorism. Pompeo's remarks at the Reagan National Defense Forum in California confirmed Israeli Energy Minister Yuval Steinitz's comments in a radio interview about covert cooperation between the two countries.

Forget Russia. There appears to be evidence of collusion between Team Trump and Israel. Will Mueller and his investigative team now follow this trail back to the campaign period and show no mercy in bringing indictments against all involved in this collusion with another foreign power?

I could not have said it better myself.

In fact, when I wrote the article this morning, I didn't say it better myself.

The infiltration of the American system by the Jews is what needs to be investigated, and the attempt to tie Trump to Russia has given us a very good reason to do so.

Of course, I don't want Trump to be harmed by this—but Trump isn't being harmed as it is. It was Kushner, a member of the team, who made the move to collude with Russia in order to illegally benefit illegal Jewish settlements in the West Bank.

Kushner is effectively an Israeli agent, who has weaseled his way into the White House via marriage—and I would suspect some other, much more devious tactics. That is to say, I feel very strongly that at some point along the way, Trump was directly—and illegally—pressured to have the Israeli agent Kushner be given a top position in his government.

Whatever the case, it all needs to be investigated.

We still haven't found any smoke around Russia—but we now have a burning Jewish fire.

Jew Run Facebook Must Embrace Total Feminism After #MeToo Warning From Sheryl Sandberg

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

The Jewish Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg has simply not done enough to end sexual harassment in the workplace. For instance, why does she continue to allow men to work at Facebook? So long as men are in the workplace, sexual harassment of women will only continue.

Sheryl Sandberg, a Jewish female worth over a billion dollars, is rightly upset that this ongoing #MeToo campaign against sexual harassment could backfire and be detrimental to women.

She even told some sad tales about how she herself was victimized by sexual harassment. A married man offered her "career advice" and a man put their hand on her leg at a meeting! Can you imagine how terrible these experiences were for her? This type of thing should not happen in the modern workplace!

Fast Company:

This is why we can't have nice things. In the wake of the #MeToo campaign, Sheryl Sandberg is worried that there might be a backlash—against women.

The Facebook COO posted a lengthy message on Facebook (natch), where she waded into the tidal wave of sexual harassment and assault accusations that have captured headlines lately. In her post, Sandberg wrote about her own experiences with harassment, including “a hand on my leg under the table at a meeting,” married men offering “career advice” “alone late at night” and, most alarming, a man at a conference who came to her hotel room late at night and banged on her door until she called security. So Sandberg, too, is ready for a change:

“Sexual harassment has been tolerated for far too long in the halls of government and companies large and small. For the first time in my professional life, it feels like people are finally prepared to hold perpetrators responsible. I’m cheering.”

That said, she is also worried about workplace repercussions that could limit the opportunities women have in their careers. “I have already heard the rumblings of a backlash: ‘This is why you shouldn’t hire women,’” she wrote. “Actually, this is why you should.”

“We need systemic, lasting changes that deter bad behavior and protect everyone,” she wrote, noting that in her book, Lean In, a majority of senior male managers told her they were afraid to be alone with a female colleague, over fear of sexual harassment accusations. “Doing right by women in the workplace does not just mean treating them with respect. It also means not isolating or ignoring them,” Sandberg wrote, encouraging men not to “just hire women,” but to “mentor, advise, and promote them,” too.

That’s right Sheryl, so long as men are in the workplace, they are only going to oppress and sexually harass women. Even though you aren’t saying this outright, we know that this is how you really feel. That’s just the way it is and that’s the way it will always be. Therefore you should lead by example and actually do something about this problem at Facebook.

As Chief Operating Officer of the company you are in a unique position to make an impact. You need to tell Mark Zuckerberg that Facebook must fully embrace feminism or it won’t survive into the future. This means Facebook needs to immediately fire all of their male employees and only hire talented female software engineers and programmers. There should be specific attention paid to hiring female software engineers of color. After all, we wouldn’t want Facebook to be criticized for racism.

But seriously, female software engineers of color are definitely the most talented. There are many of them here in Lagos. I can give you some references. In fact, I would say that women of color should represent 50 percent of Facebook’s new hires at minimum.

Once Facebook leads by example and has a 100 percent female workforce, other companies will surely follow and do the same thing. Undoubtedly Facebook as a company will see increased performance because you will no longer have men sexually harassing women. These women instead of gossiping and causing unnecessary drama will finally be able to focus in on real work!

What is this???? This is not OK! Inappropriate touching!!! Hello??? Facebook’s board of directors needs to investigate this obvious case of sexual harassment by their CEO Mark Zuckerberg! Look how uncomfortable and awkward Sheryl looks here! She obviously did not want to be touching Mr. lizard man!

It will be great to see a world in which all these big Jew run companies have a workforce that is 100 percent female. Technology and media companies should definitely take the lead on this. It seems as if these industries are the ones that have the most problems with sexual harassment. I believe this to be true especially after hearing the sad tales from Sheryl and seeing that awkward photo she was forced to take with the Zuck. The tech industry must have some really serious problems if even a strong empowered Jewish woman like Sheryl can be victimized.

Only once Jew run companies like Facebook fully embrace feminism and maintain an all female workforce can we ever hope to end sexual harassment in the workplace. Jews have been at the center of promoting feminism so surely they would not be afraid of going all in with a 100 percent female workforce. So what do you say Sheryl? The ball is in your court! It is time for you to lean in!

“I’m Not White – I’m Jewish”

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

Video Link

Just go ahead and watch this.

It’s a “slam poem” by some whiny little kikess talking about how her people are oppressed.

The richest ethnic group on the planet earth, and she’s whining about being oppressed. Control of the entire media, a global network of ethnic dominance over all Western governments, the ability to have people thrown in prison for questioning them, and this rat-faced cunt has the nerve to get up and talk about how you oppressed her.

And how white people are “privileged.”

That’s the story—that she looks white so people think she has privilege but actually she doesn’t because she’s the chosen people.

Dear Jews: this is why people hate you.

People dislike you because you are whiny and talk about how everyone is hurting you and owes you something.

People dislike you because you control other people’s countries and use their institutions to destroy their societies.

But it is those two things combined that create a boiling, vicious fucking hatred—this one-two punch has created a situation where millions of young white men want to do to you what you claim was done to you in the 1940s.

And I hope, Jews, you’re figuring out that this isn’t a joke.

Millions of normal middle class white kids literally want to fucking exterminate you wholesale like insects. And this number is rising exponentially, as you continue to dig your own graves—build your own gas chambers, if you will—by continuing to whine, continuing to abuse.

Crying out in pain as you strike us.

The more you cry and strike, the more the goyim notice.

So I want you keep doing exactly what you are doing: keep condemning us as evil, whining about how we oppress you, as you openly and viciously attempt to silence all criticism and violently punish anyone who questions you.

Because my goal is to wipe you off the fucking planet.

To make it as though you never existed.

If I were you though Jews, I would seriously start considering drafting up a heartfelt apology.

Because the wolves are at the door.

Jew George Soros Enlisting Convicted Felons to Vote Against Roy Moore in Alabama

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

Wherever there’s goyim ripe for Jew-ing, Soros is on the case.

Can this old Kike just die already? What’s taking him so long? His life force must be kept strong by his strong hatred of the goyim, and by regular intake of virgin White blood.

This time, arch-Jew Soros is setting his Sauron-like gaze upon the people of Alabama, and directing his orc armies to overthrow the will of the conservative Christian White population with an evil plan to get criminals to vote en-masse for his agent of evil instead of noble hero and top-bitch-grabber Roy Moore.

Breitbart:

An organization partnered with a George Soros-financed group and led by a radical leftist who is the half-brother of the infamous controversial Rev. Al Sharpton has been diligently working over the past few weeks to register convicted felons across Alabama.

The aim of the effort has been to get as many felons as possible on the roster before last Monday, the deadline to register in order to vote in Alabama's Dec. 12 senate special election that pits Republican Roy Moore against Democratic challenger Doug Jones. The man spearheading the campaign has stated outright that his effort is meant to ensure a Democratic victory in Alabama.

Wow, if I was a Democratic supporter and realized my party has overwhelming support from convicted felons, that would cause me to pause and reflect.

But this guy just goes "we need to get as many criminals voting as possible!"

The thousands of felons reportedly newly registered over the past few weeks were most likely not included in any recent polling on the Alabama senate race put out by major firms.

Jones himself is tied to some of the specific organizations associated with the drive to register felons here. Indeed, as Breitbart News first reported, Jones spearheaded a project for a massively Soros-financed legal activist group demanding full voting rights be given to felons released from prison, including those convicted of murder, rape and other violent crimes.

There's two different ways to think about organizing a society. One is to put the best people at the top and get them taking important decisions for the rest of us. The other is to empower the worse elements of society in the name of "equality."

Only one of these two ideas can actually maintain civilization. Can you guess which?

Hint: these people didn't allow criminals to decide state policy.

There's no one intelligent who doesn't understand this concept. Is anyone advocating that stupid people who made terrible decisions about their lives can actually make savvy decisions about other people's lives? Of course not. It's the most basic common sense.

The reason people like Soros want criminals, retards and women to vote isn't because they think it'll result in a better society. It's because they know it's an effective way to destroy our civilization, which they hate.

Jew Matt Lauer Indeed had a Huge Collection of Sex Toys at His Office

It's no secret that Jews are a pervert race.

You would be hard-pressed to find a Jew—male or female—that didn't have a bag of sex toys in their desk.

Fox News:

Former "Today" show co-host Meredith Vieira joked about the time she went into Matt Lauer's office and found "a huge bag of sex toys" in a resurfaced video from 2016—and now a therapist is claiming she was the one who gave him the goods.

Dr. Laura Berman, who was a regular guest on the "Today" show, told Inside Edition Friday she reportedly gave the fallen TV journalist sex toys to help him spice up his troubled 19-year marriage with his wife, former model Annette Roque.

lol.

Jews.

"Spice it up with an ELECTRIC DILDO."

She claimed the 59-year-old sought advice when cameras weren't rolling.

"We were in the makeup room and he sort of asked the makeup artist to leave," said Dr. Berman. "He asked me about sexual aids and devices. He confided in me about some of the struggles he was having in his married relationship."

Dr. Berman insisted Lauer didn't want to be outed buying sex toys in a store. The therapist also added she is able to speak about Lauer because he is not a patient of hers.

"I brought him a shopping bag filled with toys from my line that were designed for couples, spicing things up," she claimed.

According to Dr. Berman's site, she's a sex and relationship educator and therapist who "has helped countless couples build stronger relationships, improve their sex lives, and achieve a heightened level of intimacy through her TV and radio shows, books, columns and website, along with her private practice based in Chicago."

She has also written several books on "sexual health and pleasure."

In May 2016, Lauer appeared on "The Meredith Vieira Show" with his then-co-host Savannah Guthrie, and Vieira recalled the time she went "snooping" in his office and discovered the bag of sex toys.

"You had a huge bag of sex toys, yes you did, in your closet, Matt," Vieira told her studio audience.

Lauer then attempted to explain the explicit toys.

“Wait a minute. Wait a minute. Wait a minute,” he responded. “We had a guest on the show who was a sex therapist. I think you (Vieira) did the segment, actually.”

Vieira, looking confused, said she did not do the segment.

Lauer continued that the sex therapist gave “each of us a shopping bag of stuff.”

Vieira replied she did not receive anything.

A flustered Lauer then said he did not know what to do with the sex toys and left them in his closet.

Straight talk here, kids:

Women who use electric dildos to have orgasms eventually lose the ability to have an orgasm through normal intercourse. It's like a tolerance thing.

It's a cheap trick if you're a fat guy with low endurance, but nothing in the world is free.

You should try to keep your sex life normal...the issue is that most women have already had dozens of “casual” sex partners, and in casual situations, there is a much higher level of stimulation—because after all, you're just fucking some stranger, why hold back?

Women who get into electronic sex toys will be bored with any other form of sex for the rest of their lives.

But you know, whatever—they pretty much already all own these things for solo use anyway.

That's Jewmerica.

Linda Sarsour Makes Up with the Kikes, Says Trump is the Real Anti-Semite

Andrew Anglin

Here's more of this again.
Fox News:

Avowed hate-peddler Linda Sarsour asserted Tuesday night that the “fascist” White House poses the greatest current threat to the Jewish community.

Sarsour also dismissed articles in the “Jewish media” accusing her of anti-Semitism during a panel discussion on the subject, hosted by the New School.

The event was already raising eyebrows weeks before it took place. Multiple people and organizations called out the university for inviting speakers with links to anti-Semitic radicals.

“Having Linda Sarsour & head of (Jewish Voice for Peace) leading a panel on #antisemitism is like Oscar Meyer leading a panel on vegetarianism,” Jonathan Greenblatt, national director of the Anti-Defamation League, tweeted prior to the event. “These panelists know the issue—but unfortunately from perspective of fomenting it rather than fighting it.”

It sounds to me like Jonathan Greenblatt just committed an anti-Islamic hate crime with that Tweet.

Better add that to your database, Greenblatt.

Keep those hate crimes numbers padded.

The Jerusalem Post Editorial Board branded the event “a forum of ‘anti-Semites on antisemitism’” that “makes as much sense as a KKK forum on civil rights.” The New York Post, meanwhile, said event was “Orwellian.”

Or as much sense as a Jewish forum on racial equality—ZING!

Speaking on Tuesday night, Sarsour did little to defuse the perceptions about her and other speakers on the panel. Instead she said she was “unapologetically Palestinian-American” and “a very strong staunch supporter of boycott, divest, sanctions movement” against Israel, a movement that singles out the Jewish state and tries to isolate it economically and culturally.

During the speech—which barely touched the issue of anti-Semitism and how to tackle it—Sarsour concluded that the greatest threat to America's Jewish community was the Trump administration.

I sure hope so...

“The existential threat (to the Jewish community) resides in the White House, in the highest offices of these lands,” Sarsour told the audience.

“We are now living under fascism,” she later added, “and we need all hands on deck.”

You need to keep your hands on your own deck, you crazy bitch.

Seriously though, if you get serious about actually GASSING KIKES, hit me up.

Musical Jew James Levine Shoah'd in Grope-O-Caust – Victim is a Teen Boy!

Adrian Sol

December 4, 2017

This guy is the Platonic ideal of the Jew...Look at that face!

It's almost like life is just one long game of Grope Quest VII, and the Jews are the only ones playing to win.

How do Jews even find the time to subvert all our institutions, control our money and POZ our cultures, when they apparently spend their entire waking consciousness plotting to grope the goyim?

Must be that superior multitasking ability stemming from their female-type brains.

New York Times:

The Metropolitan Opera announced Saturday night that it would open an investigation into its famed conductor, James Levine, based on a 2016 police report in which a man accused Mr. Levine of sexually abusing him three decades ago, beginning when the man was a teenager.

Met officials acknowledged they had been aware of the police report since last year, but said that Mr. Levine had denied the accusation and that they had heard nothing further from the police. They decided to begin an investigation after receiving media inquiries about Mr. Levine's behavior.

The man's accusation and the inquiry by the Met, one of the world's most prestigious opera houses, showed that the national reckoning over claims of sexual misconduct had entered the world of classical music at its very highest echelons.

We are deeply disturbed by the news articles that are being published online today about James Levine. We are working on an investigation w outside resources to determine whether charges of sexual misconduct in the 1980s are true, so that we can take appropriate action.

— Metropolitan Opera (@MetOpera)
December 3, 2017

The Met didn't care about the allegations in last year because it was 2016—back when groping sluts was still considered socially acceptable for Jews and Hollywood moguls.

But guess what?

It's 2017, now.

Everything is completely different.

In the report compiled by the Lake Forest, Ill., police department, a copy of which was obtained by The New York Times, the man said he was 15 when Mr. Levine held his hand in an "incredibly sensual" way. The following summer, the man told the police, Mr. Levine lay naked with him in bed and touched his penis—the beginning of years of sexual contact with Mr. Levine.

I hope he's seeking damages for psychological trauma.

The Times recently interviewed the man, who confirmed that he made the accusations outlined in the police report, and a relative who said that the man first complained privately in 1993 of being sexually abused. The man spoke to The Times on condition of anonymity to guard his privacy.

As we told you: Harvey Weinstein was the least offensive sort of Jew pervert.

The court had heard that Kamara, who is a well established rap artist under the name "Trizzy Trapz", and Jordan travelled from Newham to Hackney to commit the robberies on Friday 10 March.

In the first attack, the pair were part of a gang of five that targeted a supermarket after staking it out for the evening. A woman in her 50s was the lone shopkeeper in the store when they entered.

Imagine if the races were reversed and it was a group of Whites torturing a retarded Black guy.

Do you think any of them would just get 4 years probation?

NBC:

A woman who live-streamed herself and a trio of friends abusing a mentally disabled man and taunting him with racial insults was sentenced to probation Friday after spending nearly a year behind bars.

Brittany Covington, 19, had been held at the Cook County Jail without bond since January, when she and co-defendants Tesfaye Cooper, Jordan Hill and her 24-year-old sister Tanishia Covington were arrested on kidnapping and hate-crime charges.

The plea deal prosecutors made with Brittany Covington makes her the first of the four to be released, though she will remain on probation for four years and is barred from contact with Cooper and Hill, the Chicago Sun-Times is reporting.

Brittany Covington narrated Facebook Live video of the others tormenting an 18-year-old white man in the apartment she shared with her sister.

The victim, a Crystal Lake man who had been classmates with Hill at a west suburban alternative high school, appears terror-stricken as he was taunted with racially-tinged insults—including calling him a supporter of then-President-elect Donald Trump. Hill and Cooper allegedly cut his clothing with a knife, punched and kicked him. In other video, the man was forced to drink water from a toilet bowl.

In one of the videos the defendants allegedly posted on Facebook, a man threatened the victim with a knife. Someone told the victim, “kiss the floor, b—!” and “nobody can help you anymore.” At one point, someone told the victim, “say ‘I love black people.’”

The saga began on New Year's Eve, when Hill had picked up the victim, at a Streamwood McDonald's, driving a van he had stolen earlier that day, prosecutors said. They drove around visiting friends for about three days, police said. The victim slept in the van.

When a woman who lived in the building complained about the the noise and threatened to call the police, the sisters kicked in the woman's door in anger and took some of her property, police said. While the others had run to the other apartment, the victim managed to escape, and police found him, wearing shorts and his torn clothing in the January weather, a block away. Streamwood police officials say the victim's parents had made a missing-persons report after their son didn't return home.

Officers responded to the Euclid Beach Villa apartment complex on E 156th St. and found 21-year-old Jared Plesec fatally shot in the head. Authorities say the suspect (later identified as 27-year-old William Ted Jones) fled the area and attempted to carjack a woman at a nearby gas station. She drove away, but shots were fired at her.

Jones then allegedly carjacked a man and drove the vehicle to the E 55th St. marina, where he carjacked a third victim and shot her in the leg. Lakewood Police say he carjacked two more people and drove through a garage door at the Marine Towers apartment complex before being taken into custody on Lake Ave. around 9:40 a.m.

Negro Murders a White Guy in Kent After His Prison Sentence was Commuted

Tim Hort
Daily Stormer
December 4, 2017

Stonney Rivers.

I agree that Blacks should not be sent to prison for life because it's much too expensive.

What are the other options though?

ChrOnline:

In her final days in office in 2013, former Gov. Christine Gregoire commuted the life sentence of a man now charged in connection with the shooting death of a 24-year-old man at a Kent motel earlier this month.

Stonney Rivers, 50, was charged last week with first-degree murder and is being held without bail, court and jail records show.

Rivers, who was sentenced to life in prison after being convicted of his third strike in 1995, had his sentence conditionally commuted and was released from prison in January 2015, court records say. He served two years on community supervision, which ended in January.

Rivers is accused of fatally shooting David Cabrera in the face during a drug robbery at a Kent motel on Nov. 2, charging papers say. He is also charged with second-degree assault for pointing a gun at Cabrera's girlfriend and threatening to kill her, say the charges.

UK: Woman Rips Out a Guy's Nut After He Refused to Have a Threesome

Tim Hort
Daily Stormer
December 10, 2017

This is one of those stories you feel while reading it.

Take a step back and look at this situation and the larger picture here.

We are living in a society in which a woman will rip out a guy's nut after he refuses to have a (probably two-guy if I had to guess) threesome.

Women are not innocent, and they need to be beaten into submission. If they aren't, our balls will be literally ripped away from us.

RT:

A woman who ripped out her ex-boyfriend's testicle after he refused to have a threesome has been convicted of assault. The man had to be hospitalized to have his testicle put back in.

Police found Nunzia del Viscio, 43, of Merchant Crescent, Edinburgh, with blood on her teeth after she attacked her ex in his flat on Lauriston Terrace on May 22.

That name is Italian.
Maybe I should reconsider chasing Mediterraneans.

Del Viscio said: "As he came to me I bit him. I just remember a noise and blood pouring into my mouth," the BBC reports.

Edinburgh Sheriff Court heard the accused, who had been drinking and taking drugs, had gone to Palma's flat with friends after a night out.

According to STV, Palma said Del Viscio walked into his room naked and demanded a threesome after the rest of the group went to bed.

When he refused, he said she started "destroying" one of the bedrooms, at which point Palma ordered the woman to leave.

"I took her clothes and threw them at her," he said, STV reports.

"We were insulting each other and she came against me and bit my left testicle. I threw two or three punches and had a finger in her eye to push her away. She drew her head back and my testicle came out."

The victim was taken to Edinburgh Royal Infirmary, where his testicle was put back into his scrotum and given 15 stitches

I think it is time to ask ourselves an honest question about women.

Do they really need teeth at all?

When we take power, a debate should be held to determine if women should or should not have their teeth removed surgically and only eat some form of food which does not require chewing.

Kikes Trying to Kike Newly Relunched Infostormer Site

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 9, 2017

WTF do Jews have against photos of cute kittens?

As each passing day goes by I find myself getting angrier and angrier with these Jews. I didn't always feel this way. At one time I thought Jews were just a bunch of goofy people who believed in some deranged religion. I didn't have any reason to hate them. I only started to hate them as I slowly began to learn more and more about them.

Every day I see all sorts of things going on that I greatly despise. In nearly every situation there is a Jew involved doing that particular thing that I hate. I'm also constantly learning about horrible things that a Jew or a group of Jews did in the past that I wasn't yet aware of. It never seems to end.

My hatred towards them is going into maximum overdrive now. Mainly because of what they are trying to do to my recently relaunched Infostormer site. It's a blog dedicated to kitten photos.

Many of you probably already know that I was operating this site on a part-time basis while simultaneously contributing material to the Daily Stormer. It had become a sort of smaller spin off community to the Daily Stormer. After my Infostormer site was shut down by hordes of whining kikes following the Unite the Right rally, I've focused most of my energy supporting the Daily Stormer with articles. That's where the priority has been. As I've had spare time, I've been working on building a more solidified infrastructure to bring my site back online to function like it Rowling will be thrilled to have you play in her movies.

You know what? I fully endorse this development in MeTooism. And it makes sense, too. Getting beat up by a rich and handsome man like Johnny Depp is obviously an experience most women would treasure deeply. It doesn't trigger negative feelings in them to think about it—on the contrary, it only makes them like the actor more if they think he'd hand them a smack down for getting out of line.

It's a lot different than having Al Franken sneak an assgrab, or having consensual sex with Harvey Weinstein in exchange for career advancement.

MeTooism is all about feelings. The case of Johnny Depp simply reveals what these women are really after: men who put them in their place AKA White Sharia.

Sick Homo Kevin Spacey Fondled the Balls of Norwegian Royal!

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 8, 2017

I look at this man, and I see a ball-fondler.

What kind of clown world is this, where Hollywood actors (glorified bards and jesters) go around molesting princes with impunity?

There was a time where this kind of thing would get a jester drawn and quartered.

For the crime of fondling the balls of the Prince of Norway, thou art sentenced...

But now, it seems like what used to be the lowest class of people, entertainers, are raised to the highest levels of society and are made immune to consequences for their actions.

That is, of course, before the advent of MeTooism.

Now these sickening entertainers are getting drawn and quartered in the court of public opinion, and have their entire careers destroyed for their groping antics.

Breitbart:

A Norwegian royal has become the latest individual to accuse embattled actor Kevin Spacey of sexual misconduct, claiming that he touched him "right on the balls" during a party for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Ari Behn, who was married to Princess Märtha Louise of Norway before their divorce last year, told Norwegian radio station P4 that Spacey proposed the pair go outside.

Does grabbing a prince feel better than grabbing a regular guy, Kevin? Was it all worth it?

"We had a nice conversation, he was sat next to me," Behn said. "After five minutes, he says 'Hey, let's go out and have a cigarette,' and then he touched me right on the balls under the table."

"I had black hair back then and was 10 years younger so was right up his alley," he said, adding that "I got more than I bargained for."

Behn's former wife, Princess Märtha Louise, remains fourth in line to the Norwegian throne.

Allegations against Spacey began with claims he made an unwanted advance on then 14-year-old actor Anthony Rapp in 1986. Another man also alleged that Spacey attempted to rape him when he was 15 years old, and called the actor a "pedophile."

Spacey's career has since imploded, with producers axing his character Frank Underwood from the final season of award-winning Netflix series House of Cards. He has also been edited out of the upcoming Ridley Scott film All the Money in the World and replaced by another actor, Oscar-winner Christopher Plummer.

It's over, Kevin. You have too much blood on your hands. Well, to much man-flesh, I guess.

The thing about the Spacey thing is, does this mean men can also do the thing where they ruin someone's career just by making random grope allegations, too? Because that seems like a pretty big deal.

At the rate things are going, it'll be impossible to have the standard that when a presumed pervert is accused by a woman, no evidence is necessary, but if a man is the accuser, then bullet-proof evidence is required. So I think mankind just gained one awesome superpower.

Unlike women, though, we can use it for good. I'll leave the rest to your imagination.

Roger Goodell Signs $200 Million Contract Extension with the NFL

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Apparently if you ruin a professional sports league like Roger Goodell has, you get rewarded with a huge $200 million contract extension.

The National Football League more popularly known as the Negro Felon League has signed commissioner Roger Goodell to a five year $200 million contract extension.

USA Today:

The NFL's compensation committee informed owners in a memo Wednesday that commissioner Roger Goodell has signed a contract extension.

Pro Football Talk was the first to report the news.

The New York Times reported that Goodell's extension is for an additional five years. It is worth up to $200 million if all incentives are met and bonuses granted, according to multiple reports.

According to the memo, which was obtained by USA TODAY Sports, the extension was signed by Goodell and Atlanta Falcons owner Arthur Blank, who heads the league's compensation committee. The memo also cited a "nearly unanimous consensus" among NFL owners who supported finalizing the deal.

Can the league survive five more years of Goodell? Based on his track record over the past couple of years it is hard to be optimistic. Ratings and attendance have both plummeted over Goodell's mishandling of the Negro player led national anthem protests. He's also engaged in strange witch hunts against Tom Brady for the alleged used of a deflated football.

All this while allowing Negro players to run amok.

$200 million is an insane amount of money to pay one man for any job. And it is not like this guy has been doing a good job. When you look at the empty seats, it is easy to see that he has not done a good job. The national anthem protests wouldn't have even been a thing had he started suspending players from the start.

Goodell is primarily responsible for the ruination of the NFL's brand. These empty seats are proof that the brand is in a terrible shape over his mishandling of the national anthem protests.

Clearly, the NFL is becoming less and less culturally relevant. The national anthem protests have caused mass disenchantment with the league. Goodell's only attempt to fix this was to bribe the Negroes with $100 million in charitable donations. This generous proposal was rejected proving that the only fix is to punish the players for their disrespectful actions. Goodell won't do this because he's afraid of being called a racist.

Oh well, we don't want our people watching these ridiculous monkey ball spectacles any way. It is probably a good thing that Goodell has been given this huge contract extension. Under his leadership, we can expect the NFL to continue its already impressive cultural decline.

Tradwife e-celebs are on rough-riding straits.

These women are simply trying to get important traditionalist ideas to the masses, and they could literally starve.

Please.

Do you have any idea how much effort goes into making these videos?

You think that doing makeup and making two or even three 10 minute videos a week is easy?

Well how about this, buddy—how about the research that goes into it? How about the amount of critical thinking?

These tradtube vids aren't just a hot pair of tommy-knockers doing some kind of half-assed recitation of garbled Jordan Peterson talking points—this is serious philosophy.

The closeted homosexuals who question the intentions of these selfless purveyors of absolute traditionalism want to say "OH IF YOU'RE TRAD THAN WHY AREN'T YOU MARRIED WITH CHILDREN????"

Are you kidding me?

These poor girls are doing so much research and critical thinking that they barely have time to get fucked by random black men—there is no way they could fit having a family into their tortuous schedules of making videos about how important it is to preserve traditional families.

“Nuance”

They don't have enough money.
They need more and more and more money.

Is This White Supremacy Now? I am Thinking So.

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

Someone on Gab used the term “Oxford Comma” —something which I don't use, am opposed to the use of and do not allow others to use on my website.

And although I have to edit them out of Eric Striker's articles—yeah, Striker, I'm callin you out brah—I do not generally think of the term “Oxford Comma.”

So of course, upon hearing the term, I did what anyone in my age group would do and I thought of the thing.

This one.

Video Link

And I watched it.

A couple of times.

Vampire Weekend's “Oxford Comma” video.

It is a horrible alt-pop-whatever song from a horrible alt-pop-whatever band. Jewish band. The singer, Ezra Koenig is Jewish. I assume other members of the band are.

The McDonald's-tier afro-beat is dopamine blackmail. The audio version of pornography.

That guitar solo is the audio equivalent of ejaculating into a sock.

But wow, that video is something.

Directed by a British mulatto, Richard Ayoade, it is a beautiful single shot of well-dressed white people (and at least one white-presenting Jew) in a field near a farm in autumn going through a series of what could now only be called “white people tropes.”

I'm not sure where it was filmed, but it looks like the fields of my home in central Ohio.

The video came out in 2008.

After a decade, if this were released, would it be called “white supremacy”?

I am almost certain it would be.

Regardless of the lead kike.

Regardless of the Negro director.

It's ostensibly white people, in a white setting, using appropriated beats—even an appropriated rap lyric—marketed directly and clearly exclusively to white people.

100% exclusively to white people, by the way. I lived in Asia in 2008 and didn't hear it ever in public, despite it being played in a loop on American and British radio.

There is no way this could be made now.

If somehow it did get made, it would be universally denounced as evil.

Same with pretty well all 00s music.

As the regular reader is aware I have a fixation with the 80s and regularly note that virtually none of the entertainment created in that decade could be produced by a major music or film company today. Not even the black stuff.

But the changes in norms in the last decade are simply incredible.

A Blink 182 concert in current year would be labeled “the modern equivalent of a Klan rally.”

Video Link

I can see the Salon headline now: “Blink 182 and the Tasteless Normalization and Glorification of the Fragile White Male's Misogyny, Homophobia and Ethno-Centrism.”

Things like this are not made anymore because people know that they can't make them. That the time for these things is over.

Because white people are simply not allowed to have nice things anymore.

We're not allowed to have any things at all.

Even shit-tier, Jew-made things.

And that, my friends, is a fascinating realization.

And here's another one: the Alt-Right is having so much success at organically creating a counter-culture because there isn't a corporately manufactured culture that we are allowed to indulge in.

Grope Report: Danny Master- son, MSNBC Jew Sam Seder, Tom Hanks?

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

[GROPING INTENSIFIES]

Welcome to the Grope Report, always bringing you the latest in grope, rape and bitch-grabbing related news.

Today, just like every other day before it, we have some exciting new developments in the grope scene.

First up is “The Ranch” star Danny Masterson who, true to his name, has been alleged to have “mastered” a couple of sluts 20 odd years ago [Editor’s note: “Mastered them with his dick” is the joke here. -AA].

Entertainment Weekly:

Netflix is ending its relationship with The Ranch star Danny Masterson amid rape allegations against the actor, the streaming service announced Tuesday.

“As a result of ongoing discussions, Netflix and the producers have written Danny Masterson out of The Ranch,” a Netflix spokesperson said. “Yesterday was his last day on the show, and production will resume in early 2018 without him.”

His days of mastering bitches are over.

Masterson responded to the news in a statement provided to Huffington Post by his attorney: “I am obviously very disappointed in Netflix’s decision to write my character off of The Ranch. From day one, I have denied the outrageous allegations against me. I have never been charged with a crime, let alone convicted of one.”

This past March, three women told the Los Angeles police department that Masterson sexually assaulted them in the early 2000s, PEOPLE reported. Masterson denied the allegations.

That’s too bad, Danny. Don’t you know the alpha way of dealing with rape allegations?

You gotta roll with the punches, bro.
Next up!

Explosive allegations regarding Tom Hanks!

Everyone loves Tom Hanks. I can’t stand him after what he did to me. He’s worried about @realDonaldTrump for good reason. He knows trump is going after pedophiles. <https://t.co/6iQbbJJUR>

— Sarah Ruth Ashcraft (@SaRaAshcraft) December 4, 2017

Is the bitch lying?
Who knows! Probably!

But the thing about #MeTooism is that it manifestly doesn’t matter whether the accuser is lying or not. All that matters is how much of a chad the guy being accused is.

So, Tom, do you want to do this like the filthy kike Weinstein and admit to jacking off in ficus plants? Or will you take it like a Roy Moore and embrace bitch-grabbing?

He’s got my vote, I can tell you that.

Next, we have a very special entry.

This one sets a new precedent, and it’s very good news for the future of our Grope Report show. It seems like making light of someone else’s grabbing antics—even if said joke was years ago—is now just as bad as doing the grabbing yourself, and is a firing offense.

Exciting!
AV Club:

In a year that has already seen it come under fire for passing on Roman Farrow’s domino-tumbling expose of Harvey Weinstein, as well as for letting Matt Lauer run rampant across decades of pay raises, NBC is at last taking a principled stand against media figures who propagate sexual assault—and naturally, completely bungling that as well. As The Wrap reports, MSNBC has just cut ties with contributor Sam Seder over a tweet he wrote in 2009, a joke that sarcastically mocked Hollywood’s continued defense of director Roman Polanski on artistic grounds. “Don’t care re Polanski, but I hope if my daughter is ever raped it is by an older truly talented man w/a great sense of mise en scene,” that tweet read, a response written to the petition urging Polanski’s release from a brief arrest in Switzerland, largely because he is “one of the greatest contemporary filmmakers.” Because of this eight-year-old dig at the film industry's morals—and the fact that “internally there was disgust over the tweet,” as a source tells The Wrap—Seder's contract with the network will not be renewed.

Sam Seder
@SamSeder

Dont care re Polanski, but i hope if my daughter is ever raped it is by an older truly talented man w/ a great sense of mise en scene

9/29/09, 5:39 PM

To be fair, Jew, it was a good joke. I hope you have a happy life now that you're on the sex offender list.

Better make sure you didn't tweet eight year ago about someone else doing rape—that's a big no no.

So now the new standard is both retroactive and vicarious: if you've ever made a comment about anyone else doing the groping, you're basically unemployable.

Can anyone meet this new standard for not being a rapist? Probably not!

So I guess they should just fire everyone and just be done with it. But what am I saying? Then I wouldn't have the joy of bringing your your daily dose of rape news!

So yeah, Jew media, if you can just keep disgracing 2-3 guys per day for the next few years, I'd appreciate it.

You think you're safe in Germany? Think again. We will track down your jimmies wherever they need rustling.

Liberals have recently come up with a new, innovative jimmie protection technology in order to preserve the integrity of their feels.

Triggered to all hell by Twitter's inability to stem the flood of Alt-Right groyper accounts, they've been forced to trudge through the Twitter-sphere neck deep in Nazi frogs, barely able to gasp for air.

How can they attain the sweet, sweet utopia of totalitarian thought control they so badly crave?

By moving their e-persona to Germany.

The New Statesman:

It is no secret that Twitter has a Nazi problem. After nearly every update the site has rolled out in recent months, the response has been the same. “Thanks for the extra characters, but do you want to get started on that whole banning Nazis thing?”

My boy, they've “gotten started” a very long time ago. But it turns out it's not the “starting” that's the problem, but the “finishing.”

No matter how many holes you poke at the bottom of a bucket, it'll never get dry while it's standing underneath a waterfall.

And yes, the waterfall here is groyper Nazism.

There ain't no stopping this flow.

The social network has promised various policy changes— and in August deleted accounts associated with the neo-Nazi website Daily Stormer —but overall, fascists are still safe on the site. The American Nazi Party account has over 13,000 followers, while the deputy leader of the ultranationalist, extreme far-right group Britain First was recently retweeted by the 45th president of the United States. (Donald Trump, incidentally, is the first search result for the word “Nazi” on Twitter, presumably because of how many people tweet the term in conjunction with his name).

Short of a new policy by Twitter, then, people have been taking Nazi-hunting into their own hands. By blocking, muting, and training your eyes to glaze over like a Krispy Kreme as soon as soon [sic] as you see a frog avi, you can do a reasonable job of avoiding neo-Nazis on the site. But there is any easier way—recently publicised by journalist and author Virginia Heffernan.

“PSA. For anyone beset by Nazi and brownshirt bots: I changed my Twitter address to Germany at the suggestion of a shrewd friend, and they vanished. Germany has stricter hate-speech laws,” she tweeted last night. The writer's location is now set to “Bad Wildbad, Deutschland” on the network. But why does this work—and what does it tell us about Twitter's attitude to hate speech?

PSA. For anyone beset by Nazi and brownshirt bots: I changed my Twitter address to Germany at the suggestion of a shrewd friend, and they vanished. Germany has stricter hate-speech laws.

— Virginia Heffernan (@page88) December 4, 2017

Legally, Twitter is obliged to hide Nazi content and symbols in Germany, thanks to section 86a of the German criminal code. Since 2012, an account is “withheld” in Germany if it features Nazi ideology, and certain tweets are greyed-out if they have been flagged for anti-Semitism.

The liberal ideal is a state where the police kick people's doors in at 4am for posting memes on Facebook. So to them, the oppressive German state is like a dream come true.

Good thing they have freedom and democracy, huh?

Jews, liberals and bugmen need to take this idea one step further and all physically move to Germany. Once we don't have to deal with their nonsense, it shouldn't take more than 6 months to clean up their mess and then build an army and go retake that nation from the Moslems, anyway. And we can put all these "former Americans" in camps to educate them about the errors of their ways.

It's a perfect plan.

College Administrator: "Whites Aren't Even Human - Unless They Embrace Suicide"

The modern college is optimized for the most humble of it's attendant, the negro.

Oh, colleges.

You provide us with an endless supply of arguments for why we need to bring fascism back.

Campus Reform:

A University of Colorado, Denver administrator worries that white children may "forfeit their humanity" if they aren't raised by sufficiently progressive parents.

In an academic article, Naomi Nishi, who facilitates educational programs for professors and periodically teaches classes, argues that parents should employ "critical race parenting" to prevent white children from committing "racial microaggressions" against their peers.

Who is this bitch? With a name like Naomi Nishi, you'd assume she's some kind of Jap or hybrid.

Well, akshually...

Naomi Nishi, Associate Director for Educational Outreach
Office of Research Development and Education

Naomi is the Associate Director for Educational Outreach in the Office of Research Development and Education. Her role is to develop and facilitate the ORE's faculty, student, and other educational services as well as to develop resources for faculty at the University of Colorado Denver to support them in publishing their research and grant proposals to be more competitive for funding.

From 2009-2016, Naomi developed an online workshop for higher education institutions nationally and internationally in a variety of areas for academic improvement (AC). She also served as AC's instructional design and facilitator lead, training and supporting the instructional program development team. Naomi has been an adjunct faculty member at the University of Denver for eight years, designing and teaching courses including Instructional Design and Online Research and Writing. Prior to this, Naomi was a Technical writer for Microsoft and Associates, Inc. (a software development and consulting firm), where her primary role was software writing and business development.

Naomi holds a BS in Scientific and Technical Communication from Houghton Mifflin Harcourt University and an MA in International and Intercultural Communication from the University of Denver. She is currently a PhD student in the School of Education and Human Development.

My Jewdar is going off like crazy on this broad.

What the hell is a Jew (or Jew-presenting White, whatever) doing with a name like "Nishi?" Is she trying to score some of those "diversity" points she so clearly craves?

And look at the pedigree on this bitch:

Naomi Nishi

Naomi Nishi

"Critical race theory," huh? We're hitting levels of cultural Marxism that shouldn't even be possible.

She's made an entire career out of hating White people.

Nishi goes on to suggest that white people are "constantly wielding racial microaggressions," and that over time these microaggressions can cause "racial battle fatigue," noting that children of color are especially susceptible to the "self-hatred" this causes.

White children, on the other hand, are especially prone to committing racial microaggressions because they "learn a complicated dance of whiteness" that teaches them not only to "maintain and defend whiteness," but to do so while claiming to be "colorblind."

Although her article focuses mainly on her own experiences as a parent, Nishi's essay is preoccupied with whiteness among children, eventually asserting that "whites, to pay for their embracing of whiteness, forfeit their own humanity."

We forfeit our humanity...and become cartoon frogs.

She's straight up saying that Whites who love themselves are inhuman. How does that statement fare, when applied to others? For example, to the Jews?

"Jews who embrace Jewishness forfeit their humanity."

Actually, that sounds about right.

But in general, how is such a statement not an endorsement of genocide?

"Thus whites enter into this Faustian exchange even as children and begin the 'somasochistic' relationship where in their work to love whiteness, their souls waste away as they are quietly tearing themselves from humanity and real love," she writes.

"Real love," lol.

Yeah, nationalists who love their people and their families miss out on real love, which is between a man and third-world primitives and trannies.

Reminder: Going into academics will involve being bossed around by people a lot like "Naomi Nishi." It's bad for your soul.

Shitlibs Devouring Themselves Over Tranny Insanity

Adrian Sol

Embrace your new tranny overlords—or else.

The speed at which the establishment started normalizing sick tranny insanity is causing a significant amount of tension in liberal circles. In two years, tranny activism has gone from being confined to the dark depths of Tumblr to being a mainstream issue, on which no dissent is tolerated.

This might be the one thing that definitely moves the liberal "mainstream" into total "clown world" territory from the perspective of normal people, and yet these people are incapable of walking it back.

Any liberal having anything but unequivocal praise for the "courage" of men who chop their own dicks will be the recipients of a torrent of abuse.

Video Link

Dangerous:

Jesse Singal, a New York Magazine contributor, has signed off Twitter for what may be the last time. Opting to delete his account instead of facing the music, Singal made his exit following harassment allegations.

Over the past two years, Singal has been writing critically about transgender issues for NYMag, earning him accusations of transphobia from certain quarters. Amid accusations of bigotry towards transgender people, allegations have surfaced that Singal's inquiries into the topic went far beyond simple research, and in some cases bordered on harassment.

Jesse Singal is also an oppressed minority. Is it okay to bully him like this?

So I guess pretending to be a woman is now placed higher on the "progressive stack" than being a third world primitive? Things move so fast these days.

I don't think these brown people will continue to ally themselves with liberals if the condition is to submit to these trannies, though. And make no mistake, that is now an implicit condition to being a part of the liberal "in-crowd;" if you don't worship these freaks like gods among men, you will be cast out.

To delve into Jesse Singal's involvement in the topic of transgenderism is akin to watching an immersive television drama, replete with a rich cast of characters.

Singal's criticism of transgenderism from a liberal point of view came to a head this weekend when he got into an argument over whether it was offensive to claim that "gender identity" had nothing to do with biology. Singal opted to cite Tim Faust, a socialist metal-head who is himself an interesting character, made popular by his appearances on the leftist Chapo Trap House podcast.

In a deleted tweet, Singal wrote: "I'm curious to get Tim's take. I think he agrees with me on this but he can't say so on Twitter."

Faust reprimanded the writer and accused him of hurting the very people he claims to defend.

Never claim you speak for me. You say clown shit, people get hurt by it, and then you complain you're being ostracized for "just asking questions." If there's a secret silent bloc of "progressives" who are okay with delegitimizing trans people, then I hope never to ally with them <https://t.co/LITOrCdM5p>

— kill faust (@crulge) November 30, 2017

Wew.

"What the fuck is your problem you weird gender-obsessed pervert," Faust continued, adding that "Jesse Singal is the human personification of 'I have more of a comment than a question.'"

The tweets provoked a firestorm of outrage against Singal, whom many on the left saw as finally being put in his place. Faust's tweets kicked off a flood of allegations that Singal had previously harassed women—particularly transgender women, both publicly and privately.

If I was forced to give kikes and liberals advice at gunpoint, I'd tell them to drop this tranny nonsense like it was a piece of hot coal. It's even more offensive to normal people than homos, who have been successfully whitewashed by the media as being "just like us" except that they "different sexual preferences." But they can't whitewash trannies in the same way, try as they might.

Ain't no one sane who's gonna be alright with this.

The fact is that these people are intensely creepy and disgusting—way more than any other kind of pervert. By associating their whole ideology and social movement with this feeling of being creeped as all hell, they're permanently damaging their own brands. In fact, if I was a Nazi troll, I'd be doing everything I can to associate liberalism and Jews with trannies.

So keep going, liberals. You have my full support.

International CockQuest 2017: 13-Year-Old Slut Escapes to Mexico to Engage in Sex Affair with Local Hombre

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 4, 2017

Where has not beating women and locking them in cages gotten you?

Has it gotten you somewhere good?

Tell me of it, yon noble knight.

You people want to protect your sweet little innocent princesses—meanwhile, they are running off to Mexico to fuck local hombres.

KHOU:

Ashlee Hattermann, the 13-year-old runaway from Katy, Texas, has been found safe in Mexico, according to the Harris County Sheriff's Office.

Deputies said on Twitter late Sunday evening cooperation from authorities in Mexico helped to ensure the girl was found safe. HCSO also thanked the FBI San Antonio Laredo office for their help in the search.

Deputies said Ashlee was found in Mexico City. Her condition is unknown at this time.

The teen was reported missing by her parents after she left school on Friday and boarded a bus destined for the Mexico border.

Keith and Tiffany Hattermann said their daughter was on her way to meet a man with whom she had been corresponding on social media, covert messaging apps and through phone calls for the past year.

"We found a note in her room," said Ashlee's father, Keith. "She calls the guy 'daddy' and herself 'baby girl.' [The note read] 'Daddy owns my body and my soul,' over and over and over again down this sheet of paper."

OH BUT I'M SURE SHE DIDN'T MEAN IT.

AN INNOCENT PRINCESS...SHE WOULD NEVER...

THIS IS SOMEHOW MEN'S FAULT!

The Harris County Sheriff's Office sent a tweet with a physical description of the girl late Saturday afternoon and were seeking the public's help in locating the teen.

The FBI San Antonio, Laredo office joined in the investigation Sunday afternoon.

Officials believe she traveled to Laredo and crossed into Mexico Friday night.

...

Images obtained from surveillance video at the Greyhound bus stop in Katy showed the young teen along with an unidentified woman.

KHOU 11 spoke with the woman pictured in the surveillance image. She has asked that her name not be used.

The woman says she was approached by Ashlee at the bus stop on Friday and was misled into purchasing the bus ticket for the young teen.

"I asked her how old she was; she said 18," the woman told KHOU 11.

"She told me she was here all week, visiting her boyfriend. She told me that [her parents] lived in Laredo and that she had been up here to visit her boyfriend and she was trying to get back to her family."

OH BUT HOW COULD A SWEET INNOCENT PRINCESS INVENT SUCH A LIE ON HER TRANSNATIONAL QUEST FOR BROWN COCK???

THERE MUST BE SOME MISTAKE...

The woman says she bought the girl lunch and the bus ticket to Laredo.

"I'm just devastated, I'm so upset," the woman said. "I'm devastated for this little girl. I'm devastated for her family."

YES DEVASTATED FOR HER BECAUSE SHE IS THE VICTIM.

SHE HAD NO IDEA WHAT SHE WAS DOING WHEN SHE CROSSED INTERNATIONAL BORDERS TO ACQUIRE STRANGE BROWN COCK.

Keith and Tiffany Hattermann say they discovered their daughter was exchanging graphic sexual images and messages last May through her phone, by using the covert messaging apps.

The couple says they took away their daughter's phone and turned it over to HCSO's Cyber Crimes Division. They say when they tried to get updates on the status of their case, deputies would not return their phone calls or emails.

The Hattermanns say they learned yesterday from one of their daughter's friends that Ashlee had been communicating with someone on an iPhone for months in the Thornton Middle School library.

The parents say they do not know where Ashlee may have gotten the phone.

Tiffany said her daughter told her last spring the man she was communicating with is 29 years old and lives in Mexico.

"We just feel helpless," Keith said. "We just want her back. We just want her safe."

Yeah.

Last spring she told them.

And they didn't lock her in a cage or fit her with one of those neck-bomb things from Battle Royal.

This is what you people get.

On a long enough timeline, assuming the ultimate freedom of the female, every 13-year-old white girl will escape the country to go fuck some brown man from the internet.

Women have evolved a natural ability to control your perception of them. Everything about their appearance and behavior is designed to project INNOCENCE as they plot to go on deranged sexual adventures.

They are parasitic monsters, all of them—but you need them to reproduce.

...or do you?

Pamela Anderson: "These Stupid Sluts Deserved All the Grope They Got!"

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 4, 2017

Video Link

While the initial reaction to our modest proposal of White Sharia was bewilderment and skepticism on the part of the public, more and more people are hopping on board with us and have started advocating for the shaming of sluts and full legalization of rape.

The latest recruit to the White sharia bandwagon is Pamela Anderson, who recently went on Megyn [sic] Kelly's show to blast "grope victims" as whores who knew what they were getting into.

We fully endorse this message, and in fact would propose Anderson as the official bikini model of the Alt-Right, if it weren't for the fact that she's like 90-years-old and also a vegan.

Needless to say, blue checkmark Twitter isn't happy about the situation.

Here's a very stupid woman saying very stupid things about very brave women #PamelaAnderson #HarveyWeinstein #MeToo <https://t.co/7W7Po10R8u>

— Tara, Actually (@taradublinrocks) December 1, 2017

Pamela Anderson just gave a trainwreck interview with Megyn Kelly shaming Harvey Weinstein's accusers. <https://t.co/pq2dYjiQsg> pic.twitter.com/X2HuGWHbuI

— someecards (@someecards) December 2, 2017

Mediaite:

Baywatch star Pamela Anderson had a bit of a hot take yesterday when she suggested that the women who were sexually abused by Harvey Weinstein might not have been victimized if they were just more careful with him.

Anderson spoke with Megyn Kelly on Thursday, where she talked about the sexual abuse she had to overcome as a child. She went on to say that various figures made unscrupulous propositions to her when she first arrived in Hollywood, and it only took common sense to avoid getting involved in complicated situations.

"Don't go into a hotel room alone. If someone answers the door in a bathrobe, leave," said Anderson. "It was common knowledge that certain producers or certain people in Hollywood are people to avoid, privately. You know what you're getting into if you're going into a hotel room alone."

Just like every other aspect of White Sharia, this is just common sense. Don't go into the hotel rooms of Hollywood moguls if you don't intend to get molested. And also, wear a burka.

Only the Alt-Right can protect women from sexual harassment. Any solution not involving burkas is just a part of the problem.

When asked to talk about her previous interactions with Weinstein, Anderson said the mogul came off as "very intimidating" while working together in the past. She went on to say she was not surprised when Weinstein's sex misconduct came to light since it was "common knowledge" for her.

"It was common knowledge that certain producers or certain people in Hollywood are people to avoid, privately. You know what you're getting into if you're going into a hotel room alone."

Of course. All these sluts knew exactly what they were getting into: sex with a rich, powerful Jew in order to get a boost in their career. They deserve exactly zero sympathy.

I expect that as more and more of these women hop on the #MeToo bandwagon, our own #WhiteSharia movement will see a corresponding rise to fame and social acceptability. After all, one is a natural solution to the other. In past ages, a few months ago, the myth that sluts weren't getting groped by Jews was still enduring. In that time, we appeared as misunderstood visionaries with our preaching of White sharia. But now the entire world knows that we were right.

Oops: Celebrities Being Crucified for the 2017-Era Thought-Crimes They Committed in 2011

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 4, 2017

Wow guys, it's not 2011 anymore. Cool it with the un-pc remarks.

The interesting thing about the internet is that it keeps a running record of the culture going back years, and even decades. So you can pick a random person who's older than 25 and dig up what they've been saying over time.

The problem, of course, is that all our moral values and principles were completely different just a few years ago. So dig up just about anybody's past statements, and you'll find things that were perfectly fine back then, but are now taboo.

And the new moral system is retroactive. In other words, anyone who's ever said or done anything violating current standards of political correctness, in history, is now a monster.

The Guardian:

It's like one of those fill-in-the-blank name games, where you find, say, your hipster pop-up restaurant name by taking the way you'd least like to die followed by the meat you'd like to try least. Except in this case, you take a celebrity you hate, and then search their social media for the most offensive words you can think of.

In case you were wondering: yeah, a Jew wrote this.

Last week we saw YouTuber Jack Maynard leave I'm a Celebrity Get Me Out of Here! after the Sun published tweets from 2011 to 2013 in which he'd used the words "niggas" and "retarded", Zoella (the beauty vlogger who earns £50,000 a month) apologised for mocking "fat chavs" in 2010 and grime star Stormzy apologised for tweets sent between 2011 and 2014 which contained the word "faggot". The week before, the newly hired (now newly fired) editor of the Gay Times Josh Rivers had been found directing hate towards, among others, transgender people, Jews, Asians, Africans, and the homeless in tweets sent between 2010 and 2015.

Oh, shit. We're not supposed to say "retarded" anymore?

I missed that one. Hol up, guys, I need to go scrub my normie Twitter and Facebook history...

I wouldn't want to be a thought-criminal, after all.

Except while the headlines are similar and the words are foul, the stories are difficult to compare. To do so properly would require spreadsheets that collate not only the age of the tweeter at the time of tweeting, and the frequency, focus and weight of the abuse tweeted, but the person's professional status in relationship to the politics of abuse, too. Rivers, for instance, could no longer be taken seriously as a promoter of LGBTQ rights when people had read his historical thoughts on how “The creepiest gay men are short, old Asian men with long nails.” And it would have seemed unwise, wouldn’t it, to have kept Labour MP Jared O’Mara as a member of the women and equalities committee after the public saw the homophobic and misogynistic comments he’d posted online between 2002 and 2004.

Spreadsheets...of       tweeting data...

Wait, this kike is actually serious?

I didn’t know autism could combine with kikery to make such a toxic blend. Though to be fair, the Jews are probably keeping meticulously compiled excel spreadsheets of all our articles, podcasts and social media profiles. So I guess it’s just a part of their personality.

But yeah, this concept of “retroactive political correctness” means that basically anyone can be made to fall from grace at any time, given how fast the standards are changing right from under our feet. If you had told someone from 2011 that saying the word “retarded” would be verboten in 2017, they wouldn’t even have believed you.

Now celebrities are getting ousted from their projects for decade-old tweets.

The insanity is actually accelerating, and human beings simply not biologically capable of adapting to such rapidly changing social standard. The breaking point is fast approaching.

Who Cares What Women Think?

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 7, 2017

I hate drama, but here is an ideological question.

Many voices are piping up complaining that nationalist men are too “misogynistic.” This comes from the “conservative” consultant urge inside many that actually believe we “need more women.”

Revolutions don’t have diversity quotas. Gavin McInnes types aggressively recruit “hot right-wing women” because like a strip club owner, he wants to part a fool from his money. What we are doing is very different.

As a heavily persecuted anti-establishment movement, we need more men. Especially men with nothing and nobody to lose. They’re out there in droves (especially under 30) and we need to reach them. In this time and for this action, only a culture of hyper-masculinity for its own sake can save the West.

You Want to be the J-Left?

The real reason the J-left finds itself dedicating resources to bullshit like “fat positivity” and feminism (in a time where women are making more money than men) is because it defers to women. This has a retarding effect, as childless women are selfish, conformist and infantile. The leftist worldview is articulated through Harry Potter and mocked by the world.

Most men under the rule of the J-left are bullied into becoming soyboys or fags because women in charge of grown-up world create suffocating, unforgiving and petty environments. Men who raise the red flags of Hot Topic Bolshevism—like Dick Sucking Assholes (DSA) —live lives of thankless misery. They attack Nazis with shields in the street and get smashed, and all their women do is call them cuckbois while secretly masturbating to the victorious Fascists. If they don’t opt for the tranny surgery, they are on the perpetual defensive simply for “toxic masculinity,” then under attack again for not being masculine enough.

Even men as high profile as Bernie Sanders, who was one of two men speaking at a women’s conference, was subjected to mass attack from hate-filled cat-ladies.

The second the state and money power stops protecting the J-left, they will be in for a world of hurt.

This is why the Judenpress is taking up the Trad Thot cause.

Let history’s soon-to-be-losers be led around by women. We conquer them, as their subconscious demands.

What Do Women Know?

Women don’t know much about the big world, i.e. politics. This is true even if they have a general understanding of what’s going on. What we are doing is war by another means.

Many of us have lost relationships, passed on job prospects, are constantly risking harm, death or imprisonment, and are forced by the oppressor to feel like we are alone against all. Emotionally and psychologically, this requires toughness a few stops away from sitting in a freezing trench with artillery blowing up around you.

Are women really willing to do that? Even most men aren’t.

Female advice on most things is either bad or naive. If you listen to women on how to get women, you’ll never get laid again.

Southern white knight culture is a big motivator in men who believe the Alt-Right is “misogynistic.” That is understandable, and I’m sure women are friendlier and more normal in the country than in the big cities where men live under the warm breath of cunt HR managers and play STD roulette with careerist whores.

But let’s not forget that it’s the Bible Belt that blows the rest of America away with its divorce rate. They’re clearly getting something wrong.

Keep Women in the Little World!

Most men get enough of women and the feminine pole in every aspect of their lives. At their jobs, at school, on TV, even on social media—women are the system's middle managers and are in your face 24/7.

There are many groups and consumer trends fighting for the coveted “female demographic.” Creating a culture where male bonding is prioritized (even if it is offensive to women) would give us a monopoly. Whatever you think of Roosh, the reason he got so much shit from Jews a few years ago is because he tried to create such a culture using his meetup groups. This is how revolutions begin.

Andrew Anglin is the only alt right personality who is 100% red pill on women. <https://t.co/E1PkTky9B7>

— Roosh (@rooshv) December 6, 2017

Once upon a time it was woman who was our escape. The warmth of the stove, the joy of laughing children, and the love of an adoring and loyal wife. The softness of a woman's body is in and of itself a beautiful thing.

But the fact of the matter is that if you are a Millennial or Gen Z, there's a good chance you will never have that no matter what you do. The overwhelming majority of women are broken and lost. They only love themselves, their money and their dog, and maybe if you hit on them the right way, you—for about 10 minutes. Probably 10 minutes after the last guy.

But don't take the black pill and wait for sex robots. Instead, continue to court women (as sexual and romantic affection with women is key to a man's psychological health) but always keep the futility of this in a society that incentivizes bad female behavior. Use it as fuel for the fight.

We have inherited a chaotic world. It's up to our generation to restore everything (including women) back to order.

You can't convince a kid not to eat ice cream for dinner or stay up late every night by letting him make the rules. Women that can't handle the heavy-handed, vulgar, banter driven—yes, masculine—culture of the Alt-Right should be shown the door, not placated.

MeTooism Named TIME “Person of the Year”

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 6, 2017

inb4 Time magazine rocked by “sexual harassment culture” scandal.

Think we're being hit by an intense wave of grabbing allegations? You ain't seen nothing yet.

The thing that set off these Hollywood sluts was the feeling that it was “safe” to do so, and that they would get sympathy and support instead of public scorn like in the past. That's the very essence of MeTooism—getting social accolades for accusing kikes of grabbing you.

Now, these women are not only accepted and supported, but raised up as veritable heroes before the public. If we were ever at risk of slipping back into the old status-quo, then this Times Magazine feature has cemented the new paradigm for years to come. The fate of all these media Jews has been sealed.

Today:

TIME has named the Silence Breakers, the individuals who set off a national reckoning over the prevalence of sexual harassment, as its 2017 Person of the Year.

The magazine's editor-in-chief Edward Felsenthal revealed the selection Wednesday on TODAY along with the cover, a composite group photo that includes actress Ashley Judd, singer Taylor Swift, former Uber engineer Susan Fowler and a woman whose face cannot be seen.

“The galvanizing actions of the women on our cover...along with those of hundreds of others, and of many men as well, have unleashed one of the highest-velocity shifts in our culture since the 1960s,” Felsenthal said in a statement.

Yes.

And what is that shift, exactly? How have the standards changed? Was “sexual harassment” tolerated before? Of course not. The old “standard” was that straight White males can have their lives destroyed instantly, at any time, based on the arbitrary feelings of any female they've ever met who regretted any part of their interaction. That hasn't changed.

What's changed is that now this same standard has been enlarged to target powerful Jews, Blacks, famous celebrities and liberal icons, who used to be immune to this sort of stuff. Women who accused members of the "liberal coalition" would be shamed as traitors. Not anymore.

This social transformation actually signals the disintegration of the "coalition of the ascendant" — not some new frontier in social justice.

And it's a beautiful thing.

There's a reason why #MeTooism has a 100% endorsement rate among the Alt-Right.

The Silence Breakers emerged amid burgeoning allegations of sexual misconduct and assault by film executive Harvey Weinstein. As his list of accusers swelled, so did the number of people who spoke up to expose dozens of other famous individuals in Hollywood, politics, journalism and other industries as sexual predators.

Actor Kevin Spacey, journalist Charlie Rose, comedian Louis CK and U.S. Sen. Al Franken of Minnesota were among the high-profile names snared in an ever-growing web of alleged sexual harassers. Last week, former TODAY anchor Matt Lauer was also accused of sexual misconduct.

The women, and men, who broke their silence to share their stories of victimization gave traction to the #MeToo campaign, which took off on social media and fueled a worldwide discussion on just how endemic sexual harassment has been.

MeTooism is here to stay. It seems like either a large swath of the establishment doesn't understand where all this is going, or they think this somehow strengthens their position. These people are not too clever.

The reality is that powerful men grabbing hoes is a natural and predictable consequence of the sexual liberation and of bringing women into the workplace. And long-term, the only possible solution to that problem is patriarchy—or complete societal collapse, if women are just put in charge of everything.

Under patriarchy, women don't get molested by men—because they're at home taking care of kids by the time they're 18, and their husbands don't tolerate them being in the company of strange men.

Christopher Cantwell Granted Bond! Out Soon!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 5, 2017

On Monday, white civil rights activist Christopher Cantwell was finally granted bail—after 101 days—in Charlottesville.

25,000 smackers.

The news was announced on his podcast Monday evening.

He has been rotting in a cell in that evil city since he was randomly accused by a deranged tranny of spraying mace indiscriminately.

Regrettably—for him—he has to remain in Virginia until his trial, which means—I don't know what that means. He'll have to get an apartment, I guess. Or you know. One of you guys in the area could let him crash on your couch. I'm sure he's an interesting house guest.

And you could do a YouTube reality TV series about it. I'm sure he has some good catchphrases and so on. You could probably get rich from this.

Anyway, he's still in jail at time of writing. As I understand it, that's just on a technicality and the fact that he's got no place to actually go (I think you're not allowed to leave jail directly for a motel).

I'll be talking to him soon I'm sure (he couldn't call me when he was in jail because I live in Nigeria), and get some more details.

It's a super-exciting development.

All kinds of exciting developments.

We've got American flags at rallies, we've got Alt-Lite sluts admitting to nigger-fucking and thus permanently destroying the Alt-Thot brand (and probably the entire concept of the Alt-Lite), we've got a Cantwell on the loose—not to mention my motion to dismiss!—we've got all kinds of beautiful things happening here these days.

They hit us hard after Charlottesville.

But we are going to be all the stronger for it.

Hail Victory.

Alt-Lite Skanks Scream SHUT IT DOWN as Coal Burning Thot Lauren Southern Patrolled

weev

Daily Stormer

December 4, 2017

Yesterday Tara McCarthy went on an histrionic rant with the backing of all the big name e-skanks on Twitter, demanding the usual feminist shakedown of a code of conduct and obligatory white knighting in the defense of everything that is female and opposes migration, regardless of any other negative behaviors they may exhibit.

Update: screenshots are from the archive. She's locked her feed.

Firstly, anonymous posters are some of our best. Attacking people for being anonymous and trolling is an instant tell that you have no ground to stand on. I know expecting women to know something is a big ask, but please educate yourself on the hundreds of years of history that pseudonymous trolling is steeped in.

As usual, these women are courting the support of highly respectable men from the older generation with vague claims of "harassment" without actually defining what harassment actually means.

I am surprised that Alt Right women are harassed, and haven't witnessed any of it personally. But harassment of women has to end. It would be great to see more women at Alt Right events, and having more women would attract more men. <https://t.co/IEJrOcXwZ9>

— Kevin MacDonald (@TOOEdit) December 3, 2017

This furious demand didn't come out of nowhere. Something precipitated it which heralds the absolute end of their subversive schemes. As it turns out, Lauren Southern is a coal burner.

It all started with a cleverly worded tweet featuring photos of her former boyfriend, phrased perfectly to bait a reply from Lauren Southern.

Why Lauren hates muslims...she used to date one LOL pic.twitter.com/ZAu20Z215l

— kali (@lilnazbol) December 3, 2017

Lauren took the bait, and responded with a justification of her coal burning with a BASED Trump voting nigger!

She deleted the Tweet, but the damage was done. Not only does everyone now know she's a coal burner, they know that she isn't even remorseful about it because hey he voted Trump so it's totally cool right guys? The whole community is piling onto her and telling her what they think of her and all the skanks are collectively freaking out and closing ranks over this, demanding an end to the "harassment" problem. They're all putting themselves on the highly precarious raft of her miscegenation as it crosses the hazardous seas of public Internet spectacle.

It's time to sink this boat of filthy undesirables before it reaches our shores and ruins our Internet society.

Real talk: the only reason that Tara McCarthy and all the other e-skanks would want to close ranks on this issue is that they've also been gigantic whores who likely got defiled by niggers. One can simply look at McCarthy and know that she's in her thirties and single and has all the misadventures of any other woman in that situation. I've seen some stuff on /pol/ showing that someone looking a whole lot like her was kept in a wealthy man's home and passed around. You can see the fear in their eyes as they go into a frenzy over this. They are scared to death of their many years of extreme sexual impropriety destroying men's sexual desire for them, which is the only reason they have a presence in this thing at all.

Those cosplay pictures above are when Southern was actually somewhat attractive with a viable sexual marketplace value. Instead of using to use those brief years to choose a white mate and begin a family as any woman of reasonable breeding would, she dedicated them to coal burning. As promiscuity, especially of the coal burning variety, takes a severe toll on the physique of women, she is now 22 and she looks worse than well-behaved women do in their thirties.

Lauren was finished whoring herself out to niggers when her SMV got too low to capture their attention and mind share. As an afterthought (and perhaps as an intentional mockery of you) she pivoted into a new market where she found the pastures greener: thirsty and naive right wing millennial men. Despite her rapidly declining looks and total absence of political convictions and personal virtues, all she had to do was parrot slightly right of center rhetoric and men lined up to fawn over her.

You see, when people send money to women like Lauren Southern they are not doing it because of the value of any of their contributions to the cause. They are doing it because there is a deep seated desire amongst all men to be a good provider for a woman. Internet thots are aware of the insane power of this instinct and use it to procure resources from you at no cost to themselves. That instinct in a sane civilization is a virtuous thing, as it would make you a fit provider for a wife who was your property. Here in clown world, it has you digitally throwing dollar bills at a hooker that doesn't even suck you off afterwards.

You think I'm lying? You think this is a joke? Here's an actual quote from Lauren Southern's book:

I don't masturbate to anime characters. I dress up like them and guys masturbate to me.

She is entirely conscious of what she is and what she is doing. Her entire existence is a manufactured attempt to sexually manipulate good-hearted and decent men into giving her money and becoming her tools of political advancement.

I can't be the only one that notices her IRL events have the dynamics of a porn shoot.

The collective community of dissident Internet meme nationalism that is comprised of Daily Stormer, TRS, and /pol/ became something of value and influence for one reason only: a total monopoly on the truth. Nobody else is honest about the entirety of the world. This campaign of attempting to shut down well justified criticism under the guise of "harassment" is essentially an attempt to cover our only asset in fuel oil and toss a burning match onto it. We are going to continue to have a monopoly on the truth, whores be damned. If you disagree with telling the truth about whores and kikes you are not a part of this movement. You don't belong here. Get out, you garbage heap slut.

Traditional European civilization had a remarkable number of tools for dealing with skanks like these. Harlots were usually treated to some lashing in the stocks. They were then left in them for a number of days where family members had to watch their asses or leave them freely to be penetrated by members of the public, and due to being bound facing forward they'd have no idea who was responsible when that happened. People would also throw various things that smelled bad at them, spit on them, and shout insults at them.

Women who got mouthy and disruptive about the business of men enjoyed another brilliant invention: the scold's bridle. It was a mask with a bit for the mouth that put an uncomfortable metal spike on the tongue. This would interfere in their ability to freely swallow and talk clearly, so they'd be wandering around the village drooling and talking funny, for days. Everyone got to see it and laugh. It was an effective punishment, and these women learned not to scold men or get in their business real quick with a few days of one of these strapped to their heads, let me tell you.

Not only is it an essential part of the strength of the dissident right to be able to call out a skank and punish her for it, it is an invaluable part of traditional European life. The end to this kind of thing happened as feminism was setting in and getting coverture abolished. This is where things all went wrong for our civilization. The great thing about the culture of the modern Internet is that it mirrors the attitudes of pre-Romantic European villages. In most of European history it would have been quite proper and encouraged to publicly humiliate a licentious woman. We're back there now, and that's a good thing. It's not only your right to patrol thots, it's your moral obligation.

To all the e-thots out there: mean tweets aren't the half of it. Consider yourself lucky if we only bring back the stocks and the scold's bridle. We're going to have WHITE SHARIA in WHITE AFGHANISTAN, and you're going to have a big problem. If you aren't lucky, this thing is going full Turner Diaries. I know you probably haven't read Dr. Pierce's works because you generally don't read at all but you might want to crack that thing open and find out what happens to coal burners.

I think the most profound thing about this is that Lauren Southern above was cosplaying as the character of Catherine from the PS3 title of the same name. For those of you unaware, well, I'll let Wikipedia do the talking:

Catherine (キャサリン Kyasarin), a 22-year-old beauty who seemingly bumps into Vincent in the bar by accident, and ends up spending the night with him. This encounter, and her continued attempts to romance him, become the catalyst for the game's events. Outwardly Catherine is a playful, seductive and free spirited young woman; in reality, she is a succubus who tempts men for her own ends.

This is how she chose to portray herself. This is the message she wanted to send to the world as she made a public spectacle of her sexual relationship with a nigger. Message received, Lauren, loud and clear.

LIVE: Alt-Right Protest of Kate Steinle Verdict in D.C. – Build #KatesWall Now!

#JusticeForKate

Richard Spencer and Mike Enoch are leading a protest in Washington D.C. over the disgraceful verdict of Kate Steinle's killer.

What kind of sick society lets a killer walk free just to spite its President?

We need to build #KatesWall and we need to deport all Mexicans, and we need to do it quickly. And that's just for starters.

After we've cleansed the nation of Mexican filth I propose the following steps, in this order:

- Lock all liberals in concentration camps. Those receptive to "reeducation" can eventually be set free. Childless catladies over 35 get life sentences of forced labor on sandwich-making assembly lines. This will serve dual purpose of giving purpose to their otherwise useless lives as well as ending hunger.

- Deport all Jews to Israel and cut off all US aid and support. Livestream the subsequent war with their Semitic cousins for our entertainment while we eat our sandwiches.

- Deport all niggers to Africa and cut all ties. Give them a little bit of money to get going because for some reason we still have a little bit of compassion and they'll end up killing each other en masse without our support anyway which is kind of sad because it's kind of our fault for feeding and growing their population.

- Deport the rest of the non-

Whites back to their countries of origin (we can debate whether we will allow a small percentage of them say between 1%-10% max, but miscegenation should definitely be punishable by death).

- Colonize Outer Space.

All easily achievable goals, but we have to start somewhere.
