Samizdat!

Merry Christmas! We're saying it again. After years of people uttering this degenerate “Happy Holidays” garbage as if we as a nation celebrate that Jew holiday or the porchmonkey Kwanzaa in any significant quantity. Trump gave us this back. Everyone is telling me Merry Christmas. It feels right, after decades of assault on the tradition simply because it brought joy to the average man, we have asserted it once more. The Grinch has been expelled from our psyches, and I can't wait to expel him completely, all the way to Israel.

I'm pretty far north of the equator now and the vast majority of my waking hours are spent without sun. It becomes so easy to see why solstice festivities were so important to my ancestors. When things are so abysmal and dark, you need some happiness in the world. You need some connection with your loved ones. You need a ray of hope and joy to cut through the darkness and shine its light upon you.

When I see you all laugh at the jokes we make, I feel that light. When you all send messages about how we fixed your attitude towards women and you got a girlfriend, I feel that light. When you all find brotherhood and community here, I feel that light.

This publication is a gift from us to you. What you give back is a wondrous thing. It gives my life meaning. You make my life worth living, I want you to know that. I love you. I'd be lost without you all. What you give to me, what we've built together, it matters as much to me as it does to you. You are the dawn that melts away the darkness.

Merry Christmas. We're saying it again. It's time everybody heard it. I want you to call up and email all the kike establishments you can think of and Tweet all the big Jews you hate most and tell them what they need to hear:

MERRY CHRISTMAS. WE'RE SAYING IT AGAIN.

Let the Christmas well wishes bombard every Jew from all angles. Let them be tortured with the joy of the goy. Nothing gets these people angrier than white men and women gleeful on Christmas. Let's show them how absolutely happy we are. Let's shove it in their faces until they choke to death on Christmas joy.

Coming Home to Roost: Star Wars 8 is $120 Million Behind Star Wars 7

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

Video Link

“Star Wars: The Last Jedi” has had worse hold than any Star Wars film ever.

Word of mouth, as well as the “okay whatever” last film, appears to have killed it.

Showbiz411:

School is out, but it didn't help “The Last Jedi.” The new “Star Wars” movie is running over $120 million behind the last one on a day to day comparison.

On its second Friday in release, “The Force Awakens” logged $49 million for a domestic total of $440 million.

Last night, “The Last Jedi” came in at $24.7 million. The domestic total is $321 million.

That is a YUGE gap.

Mark Hamill said that the only thing that matters to Disney is that the films make money—but at this rate, after the advertising budget, Star Wars 9 is going to barely break even.

Of course, it would have been quite simple to just hire creative people and make good movies. But the Jews were not interested in that. They wanted to shove niggerism and feminism down your throat and to shit on all of your childhood memories.

They also appear to have an agenda to give poor old George a heart attack.

So, to fit that agenda, they had to make an extremely mediocre first film followed by a “please just kill me already” second film.

These ticket sales are not an indictment of Star Wars, which is arguably the most beloved series of films of all time. They are an indictment of the filthy kikes who produced these horrible sequels. They are an indictment of uncreative “I-hate-the-audience” writing and an indictment of the social agenda these films are trying to push.

It's a sad thing to see, but it is also a good thing. The system is collapsing under it's own unnatural weight.

Turtle-Faced Twerp McConnell Attacks Bannon Over Judge Moore Loss

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

I thought McConnell would have been out there immediately after the Judge Moore loss to attack Bannon.

But he waited a minute.
Washington Post:

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.) took aim Friday at President Trump's former chief strategist, Stephen K. Bannon, as he looked ahead to some of the political and policy challenges the Republican Party will face in 2018.

At a year-end news conference in the Capitol, McConnell offered only a few concrete details on the legislative agenda for the year ahead, which will begin with difficult decisions for the majority party on immigration, health care and spending priorities. He said he would meet with Trump and House Speaker Paul D. Ryan (R-Wis.) during the first week of January to discuss their to-do list.

Party leaders will also confront a demanding midterm campaign landscape that has been complicated by Bannon's feud with McConnell and his attempt to use next year's primaries to oust many GOP senators loyal to the leader.

Looming over all of it is the rocky relationship between McConnell and Trump, who ended the year on a note of solidarity but have also clashed publicly in recent months. One major variable in that relationship is Bannon and the extent to which Trump sides with him over McConnell.

“Well, let me just say this: The political genius on display of throwing away a seat in the reddest state in America is hard to ignore,” McConnell said when asked whether he blamed Bannon for Democrat Doug Jones’s win in the special election for Senate in Alabama this month. Bannon had backed Roy Moore, the controversial former state chief justice who defeated McConnell’s choice in the GOP primary, Sen. Luther Strange.

Moore beat Strange but Strange could have beat Jones?

Why?

Oh I remember...

Before the general election, Moore was accused of making unwanted sexual advances toward girls as young as 14 when he was in his 30s. He denied the allegations and continued his campaign, even as McConnell and other Senate Republican leaders called on him to drop out. Bannon, however, stood by Moore, even campaigning with him on the eve of the Dec. 12 election. Trump, who endorsed Strange in the primary, also waged a final push on Moore’s behalf.

Jones’s victory marks a major blow to McConnell, Bannon and other Republicans who involved themselves in a race in a staunchly conservative state. When he is sworn in early next year, the Republican majority in the Senate will narrow to 51-49 over the Democrats.

Looking ahead to the midterm elections, McConnell said he’ll continue his recent strategy of helping the most electable Republicans get nominated. He expressed confidence that “the White House will be in the same place I am.”

The 2018 Senate map once looked ripe for GOP gains, with many more Democrats up for reelection than Republicans, including several in states Trump won. But retirements and the possibility of bruising primaries have dimmed the party’s outlook.

McConnell addressed a range of topics in his Friday news conference, which came after Congress passed a sweeping tax bill and a stopgap spending measure to head off a government shutdown for at least a few more weeks.

When lawmakers return next year, McConnell will face a challenging slate of tasks, including coming to terms with Democrats on a long-term government funding agreement, which has proved elusive so far.

A more bipartisan legislative focus should be expected in 2018, he said, given the realities of a nearly evenly divided Senate. One item McConnell said he is “almost certain” to act on is a bipartisan bill easing regulations on small and medium-size banks that was imposed under the 2010 Dodd-Frank financial-oversight law. The bill, which passed the Senate Banking Committee this month, has 12 Democratic co-sponsors.

That is, of course, all bullshit.

I believe that the election was clearly stolen through election fraud, and I believe there is a chance that the Judge’s plan to expose that will bear fruit.

But ultimately, the theft was only possible in such a red state because of:

1. The Jewish media plot to hoax a jailbait conspiracy against the Judge
2. The poor response of the Judge to this jailbait conspiracy
3. The evil response of the mainstream GOP, which went as far as having mainstream GOP figures endorse the Democrat opponent

That is the only reason he failed.

And I will tell you: that same move could have been done on Luther Strange.

But the Jews wouldn’t do the first thing and the GOP wouldn’t do the third thing to Luther Strange.

So what McConnell is effectively saying is: “liberal Jews will attack Bannon’s candidates, then me and my people will sabotage Bannon’s candidates, so we can’t have Bannon’s candidates.”

The fact of the matter is that Bannonomism—primarying GOP congresspeople who refuse to go along with Trump’s agenda—is a solid strategy. Judge Roy Moore’s loss doesn’t change that.

Trump should come out strong for Bannonomism. That is the solution here. The safer option is obviously to go with McConnell, but what that will mean is another 2 years of jokey hokey-pokey with the GOP cucks refusing to do anything. It will mean no wall and no DACA repeal.

It is a very bad plan.

VICE Apologizes for Being a Metoo Factory as Shitlib Media is Hanged with Own Noose

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

Following the pattern of Metooism, VICE is one of the biggest and most extreme shitlib outlets on the planet and is also one of the hardest hit by Metooism.

But the heads of the company assure you: they feel really, really bad about that.

And they're bringing in a top feminist Jew to fix the troubles.

VICE:

Vice Media has had to settle at least four cases of sexual harassment or defamation against its employees—including its current company president, according to a published report.

In response to a Saturday story in the New York Times, two co-founders of Vice apologized for a “boys club” culture that they said fostered inappropriate behavior.

The newspaper said it talked with more than two-dozen women at Vice who said they experienced or witnessed sexual misconduct at the company. The alleged episodes included groping and forced kisses, the newspaper reported.

Co-founders Shane Smith and Suroosh Alvi sent their note to staff Saturday, saying the company let people down.

“From the top down, we have failed as a company to create a safe and inclusive workplace where everyone, especially women, can feel respected and thrive,” they said.

Vice also announced that it has formed a diversity board whose members will include feminist Gloria Steinem, and that it has clarified its sexual harassment policies and expanded its maternity and paternity leave policies, Reuters reported.

In November, Vice was the subject of a Daily Beast report that described the company's culture as a “toxic” environment, Fox News reported.

The thing here is: testosterone is the source of creativity. That is why women are not creative, why beta-tier men are much less creative.

But in order to run a media company—or any company—you need some form of testosterone involved. And when you have testosterone, plus female subordinates, you are going to have sexual vibes. That is, unless you have an extremely conservative social environment, with morally upright married men—but, newsflash Jews, that kind of quality male is not interested in being involved with ultra-shitlibism.

So you have all of these contradictions which necessitate the reality that an extremely liberal company has to be filled with people who will violate the ideology of the company with regards to women. It is unavoidable. The only solution then is to replace all of the men with women, which will drain the company of creativity and make it financially nonviable.

The smarter of those involved with all of this know that, which is why they are beginning to push back against Metooism.

The New York Times has declared that it has “gone too far.”

When #MeToo Goes Too Far

Bret Stephens

Matt Hancock on "Good Morning America" and back

They have also outright refused to fire the top White House correspondent kike Glenn Thrush, after a somewhat outrageous number of women accused him of getting them drunk and trying to have sex with them (usually unsuccessfully lel).

Basically, the NYT was drawing a red line at Thrush, saying that if they fired him there is no end to the number of men they would end up having to fire. It was a way of telling the Metoo movement to just give up because they're no longer going to get what they want.

But their refusal to GAS THE KIKE Thrush has led to a backlash, including from fellow kikelib travelers at The Washington Post and The Guardian—in fact the two biggest fellow travelers.

New York Times angers and puzzles some journalists by keeping accused sexual harasser Glenn Thrush

By Callum Borchers

New York Times reporter Glenn Thrush (Kike man) Getty Images for S&P&M

So there is no steady line here.

We know that the media does collude to formulate basically every narrative. But they cannot collude to form a narrative that goes against one of their most fundamental premises in the form of feminist rights. So NYT can attempt to send a signal by refusing to fire Thrush, but all that has done is triggered a backlash from other top libshit media and presumably also from their own staff.

NYT has published a “listening session” piece explaining their decision and asking for feedback from the readers. But the feedback is already loud and clear from all corners.

In fact, in their own listening section selected comments, 3/4 disagreed with not firing Thrush.

"I actually think this is holding him accountable. Not every offensive action calls for a person to lose their job. This is still a major setback for a political reporter; they are not excusing his behavior or letting him off the hook." — Marie Hayno Frank

"And the female journalists who had their reputations sullied and careers stalled by Thrush's slander — just collateral damage, eh? It makes readers question your ability to respond to and accurately report on any malfeasance when it occurs under your own roof." — "silentspring" from Chicago

"It's hypocrisy that the NYT, as a media outlet that covers the #Me Too movement so avidly, refuses to fire someone who kisses and touches women without consent." — Aaron Ho

"Interesting that The Times provides no rationale for its handling of the Thrush accusations. The Times has scrutinized the decisions of other employers harshly enough to warrant its being more transparent here." — "ANetliner NetLiner" from Washington

This suggests that the comment that agreed with their decision may have been the only one of many thousands of pieces of feedback.

The Thrush decision was just announced Wednesday, and I think if they don't fold, they might witness a walkout. And if they do fold, then it's on to the next top Jewish journalist.

It has been my premise from the start of this website that the modern liberalist "coalition of the willing" is entirely unsustainable, and will eventually collapse beneath its own weight.

This assertion is continually proved right—though it was not a hard prediction to make.

These are the groups that are in this coalition against white men (listed in order of power and influence on the global scale):

- Jews—Sex perverts, Israel-supporters, believers that they are the master race destined to subjugate and rule over the planet
- Women—Incompetent, self-absorbed, entitled, hate all white men including Jews who they view as white, love all brown men
- Homosexuals—Distrust women, hate Moslems, make a lot of money and have no allegiance to anyone
- Moslems—Hate homosexuals, hate feminism, hate Christianity, hate Jews, believe they are destined to subjugate and rule over the planet

- Latino Immigrants—Christians, hate homosexuals, don't respect women
- Black People—Hate Jews, hate all immigrants, abuse women as a matter of course
- Cucked White Men—Molesters/gropers, sycophantic, pathologically deranged, hated the most by every other group in the coalition while also being the only semi-competent group with a desire for all groups to get along (that is, they are the only "true believers," while also using cuckoldry and general self-effacement as a sexual strategy)
- Trannies—Hate and are hated by real women, get attacked by brown people, hated by and hate regular homosexuals

You can't bring all of those people together and expect them to work as a cohesive unit.

I had not predicted that the first major war would be between women and Jews—although it makes sense, as they are the two most powerful groups.

I thought it was going to be between Moslems and homosexuals or black people and everyone else. We have seen both of those things on some level, a large bit of "black people against everyone else," but it hasn't reached the scale of Metoo.

Of course, all of the potential conflicts will reach this scale eventually.

And masculine white men will remain as both confident and cohesive actors. As long as they don't wipe us out completely, we are just playing a waiting game as we build our numbers and solidify our cohesiveness while we put pressure on the pressure points of the Jewish coalition.

We can win and we will win as long as we stay the course.

Moslem Cop-Shooter Found by Feds to be a Terrorist After Local Cops Said Motive a Mystery

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

Yesterday, the kiked-out Jewish media and the kiked cops were saying that they had LITERALLY NO FUCKING CLUE why a Moslem would go on a rampage killing cops in America.

Today, however...they're been forced to alter that story after the feds came in and were like "lol-wut?"

But hey—at least CNN used scare quotes when calling it a terrorist attack.

So maybe this is...some kind of ironic terrorist attack?

CNN:

The Department of Homeland Security is calling a series of shootings targeting law enforcement in Pennsylvania a "terror attack."

Authorities said Ahmed Aminamin El-Mofty, 51, was shot and killed by police Friday in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, after he fired several times at law enforcement officers throughout the city.

The string of shootings began just steps from the state's Capitol building when El-Mofty fired several times at a Capitol Police officer and then, shot and injured at a state trooper. Later, he used two handguns to open fire at several officers who then returned fire and killed him, according to a statement from the Dauphin County district attorney's office.

Dauphin County District Attorney Ed Marsico said there was "no doubt that he was directly targeting police officers," CNN affiliate WGAL reported.

Tyler Houlton, acting DHS press secretary, referred to the incident as a terror attack in a statement released Saturday. He said the incident highlights the "Trump administration's concerns with extended family chain migration."

El-Mofty was a naturalized US citizen who came to the country on a "family-based immigrant visa," Houlton said.

"Both chain migration and the diversity visa lottery program have been exploited by terrorists to attack our country," Houlton said, adding that "the programs make it more difficult to keep dangerous people out of the United States and to protect the safety of every American."

It's so great.

What we had with Bush and Obama was the Feds coming in and directing local police to say that terrorists weren't really terrorists. Now the opposite thing is happening.

Local police departments had been trained by Feds to assume a Moslem shooting a bunch of people had no relationship to Islam, and was purely an issue of mental health. Now they are made to look like stupid assholes by the Feds for making that kind of absurdist claim.

CNN is left pretending that maybe DHS is wrong, and they're just calling this poor mentally ill would-be cop-killer a terrorist because of racism.

Jewish Betrayal of Christians During the Siege of Constantinople

Diversity Macht Frei
December 24, 2017

I'm been forcing myself to read the second volume of Simon Schama's godawful book "The Story of the Jews: Belonging 1492-1900". Like all of Schama's books, it's hard going. His pretentious prose is an ordeal and his background as an art historian leads him to linger inordinately on the undistinguished history of Jewish artistic productions. His stock-in-trade as a historian seems to be packing his books with trivial details that his researchers have dug up for him so can amaze the lowly goyim with his detailed knowledge of irrelevant factoids from the past.

I force myself to read these books because we need to stay up-to-date with the latest versions of the falsified historical narrative that the Jews are imposing upon us. Now and then, though, some interesting glimmers of truth break through; as in this passage about Jewish support for the Muslim Turks during their siege of Christian Constantinople.

Some thousands, speaking Yevanic Greek as their daily tongue, were the descendants of Jews who had lived in Byzantine Constantinople, often in those same districts. By conspicuously withholding support from the Byzantine governor during the Ottoman siege and conquest in 1453 (or at least perceived as being neutral if not pro-Turkish) they had avoided the fate of being treated as captive slaves. The most influential account of Jewish response to the fall of Constantinople was the Cretan Rabbi Elia Capsali's history of the Ottomans, written in Candia, still a Venetian possession in 1523. Capsali is a beautiful writer but at the dawn of Jewish historiography it was natural for him to make his story a second coming of the Books of Nehemiah and Ezra. Thus Mehmed becomes a new Cyrus, who is chosen by God to be the instrument of His punishment on the brutal and oppressive Greeks. The Ottoman lord, on the other hand, "invites" the Jews of conquered Byzantium—in the Balkans and islands—to come to his new capital and prosper there, “every man under his vine and fig tree”. Jews had no choice in the matter. Instead of a benevolent invitation they were summarily uprooted in their hundreds and thousands and forcibly resettled in Constantinople. Often they had to meet deadlines for their removal after which they could be punished by death. This surgun, as it was called, was routine practice in the Ottoman Empire and in the long run the outcome was to create a thriving, richly heterogeneous community in Constantinople. But that doesn’t mean it was not deeply unsettling if not actually traumatic at the time. Cap-sali writes the story as if it were the exact obverse of the Iberian expulsions, but if you were a Salonika Jew ordered to move to Rhodes after its conquest in 1523, or a Hungarian Jew in Buda in 1526 taken off as “useful colonists” in Turkish boats and planted God knows where, you would have been hard put to tell the difference.

Schama, Simon. Belonging: The Story of the Jews 1492–1900

So the Jews resident in Christian Constantinople were perceived by the Muslim besiegers as being friendly; they were given favourable treatment after the conquest was complete; and the Muslim victory was recorded in Jewish historical memory as a great thing. Jewish betrayal of Christians to Muslims during sieges is a standard tactic. I’ve written about previous examples of the same thing in Caesarea, Rhodes and various cities in Spain.

Schama makes a good point that the Turks’ treatment of the Jews was not that different from the expulsions in Spain. Yet the Jews wrote it up and remembered it differently. Here we see the dawn of the Islamophilic/Christian-bashing discourse that has gone mainstream in recent times. Contrasting the “tolerant Muslims” with “intolerant Christians” is one of the staples of multicult propaganda. The Jews invented this meme and have pushed it through the centuries, disregarding its lack of correspondence with historical fact. I’ve written before about how Disraeli and Geiger promoted these ideas in the 19th century, but now we see that Jews were doing it as early as the 16th century.

Anti-Islam activists like Douglas Murray, Robert Spencer or Tommy Robinson bemoan the irrational Islamophilia that dominates so much of our public discourse, but they are unwilling to trace it to its historical roots, because doing so would lead back to their paymasters, the Jews.

Right-Wing Extremists are the Happiest People in America

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 24, 2017

It doesn’t get any happier than this, folks.

If there’s one thing I’ve noticed about liberals, it’s that they tend to be miserable people wracked with guilt and anger at the world, and they have no real means to do anything about it.

Personally, I’ve felt a lot better about myself and the world as I moved from the liberal “conspiracy theory” mindset towards nationalism, fascism and masculinism.

But as it turns out, it’s been proven that not only are conservatives much happier than liberals, but hard-core extremists are the happiest of them all.

New York Times:

WHO is happier about life—liberals or conservatives? The answer might seem straightforward. After all, there is an entire academic literature in the social sciences dedicated to showing conservatives as naturally authoritarian, dogmatic, intolerant of ambiguity, fearful of threat and loss, low in self-esteem and uncomfortable with complex modes of thinking. And it was the candidate Barack Obama in 2008 who infamously labeled blue-collar voters “bitter,” as they “cling to guns or religion.” Obviously, liberals must be happier, right?

Wrong. Scholars on both the left and right have studied this question extensively, and have reached a consensus that it is conservatives who possess the happiness edge. Many data sets show this. For example, the Pew Research Center in 2006 reported that conservative Republicans were 68 per cent more likely than liberal Democrats to say they were “very happy” about their lives. This pattern has persisted for decades. The question isn’t whether this is true, but why.

The answer is actually quite simple.

Liberals don’t accept the world as it is, and so their gripes are about things which can never be changed or improve. People will never be equal. This means that their whole lives are lived as a slow accumulation of frustrations and anxieties, about which they can do nothing of significance. They feel responsible for the world, and simultaneously powerless to change it.

Right-wingers in general tend to accept things as they are, at least in terms of the fundamental laws of reality. This makes their goals much more easily attained. They accept that some people are poor, and even that they’re poor themselves, as long as they get just rewards for their efforts and aren’t denied opportunities unfairly.

That’s a much more stoic, and thus healthy, way to look at the world.

Many conservatives favor an explanation focusing on lifestyle differences, such as marriage and faith. They note that most conservatives are married; most liberals are not. (The percentages are 53 percent to 33 percent, according to my calculations using data from the 2004 General Social Survey, and almost none of the gap is due to the fact that liberals tend to be younger than conservatives.) Marriage and happiness go together. If two people are demographically the same but one is married and the other is not, the married person will be 18 percentage points more likely to say he or she is very happy than the unmarried person.

Until the broad divorces your ass, takes all your money, the house and the kids, that is.

But that's a different issue.

The story on religion is much the same. According to the Social Capital Community Benchmark Survey, conservatives who practice a faith outnumber religious liberals in America nearly four to one. And the link to happiness? You guessed it. Religious participants are nearly twice as likely to say they are very happy about their lives as are secularists (43 percent to 23 percent). The differences don't depend on education, race, sex or age; the happiness difference exists even when you account for income.

It's not that liberals don't have a religion. Their religion is liberalism.

The problem is that liberalism is a religion in which salvation can only be attained through self-destruction and sterility, which goes against the basic instincts of man. So it's a religion that can only make you miserable, either because you follow it and destroy your life, or because you don't and thus are a bad person.

Oh no, I'm perpetuating White supremacy...I'm such a terrible person.

Political moderates must be happier than extremists, it always seemed to me. After all, extremists actually advertise their misery with strident bumper stickers that say things like, "If you're not outraged, you're not paying attention!"

But it turns out that's wrong. People at the extremes are happier than political moderates. Correcting for income, education, age, race, family situation and religion, the happiest Americans are those who say they are either "extremely conservative" (48 percent very happy) or "extremely liberal" (35 percent). Everyone else is less happy, with the nadir at dead-center "moderate" (26 percent).

Moderates are unhappy because they either don't believe in anything worthwhile, or don't have the courage and integrity to put their beliefs into application. Moderates don't have any frame of reference to understand the events around them, and thus live in a perpetual state of confusion and bewilderment.

Liberals are wrong about damn near everything, but at least they feel as though they know what's going on. And even though their beliefs are self-destructive, at least they feel like there's a path to salvation. Even that's better than being a direction-less moderate.

But of course, the happiest people of them all are right-wing extremists. We're the only people who actually know what's going on—which can easily be demonstrated by the fact that our predictions are generally accurate, unlike those of the liberals which are usually disastrously wrong. And our goals are clear and achievable, even if difficult, unlike Jew pipe-dreams like "equality" and multi-culturalism.

So put away your prozac, depressed people of the world, and learn to love Hitler.

Negro D.C. Official Pees On Police Station Floor, Calls Them Niggers

Adrian Sol

Daily Stormer

December 24, 2017

Dez niggas be raycis, yo!

It's time to stop imposing our colonialist and frankly, Eurocentrist views of where to eject human waste on the colored peoples of the world. It was bad enough that tried to introduce the toilet to pakis, who wanted nothing to do with the whole concept, but now we're even shaming Blacks for peeing on the floor, smdh.

Just because someone pees on the floor doesn't mean they can't be a federal public official.

It's 2017—time to stop peeshaming.

Daily Wire:

A public official in Washington D.C. beclowned himself after he was arrested for driving under the influence, allegedly using the "n-word" to vilify police officers and urinating on the police station floor while telling officers to clean it up, and reportedly threatening police by boasting that they "didn't know who he was."

I believe you are, in fact, a nigger.

Paul Trantham, who serves as a D.C. Advisory Neighborhood Commissioner T Ward 8B, which used to be represented by former D.C. mayor and convicted criminal felon, Marion Barry, was allegedly swerving in his vehicle around Oxon Hill, Maryland, around midnight, when he was pulled over by Prince George's County police. According to the police, Trantham's car reeked of alcohol, and he reportedly behaved aggressively when stopped.

As WTOP reported, when another officer arrived to help with the situation, Trantham started name-dropping, claiming he knew Prince George's County Executive Rushern Baker.

Trantham's aberrant behavior didn't stop there; once he was taken to the Oxon Hill police station, he allegedly used the "n-word" to target officers, relieve himself on the floor, and order [sic] police to clean up his mess.

Liberals like to pretend like stereotypical negro behavior is limited to the ghetto, and that it's possible for Blacks to educate themselves and become exactly like us.

But in fact, no matter how educated and powerful they might become, they remain firmly within the realm of niggerdly behavior.

You can take the nigger out of the hood, but you can't take the hood out of the nigger.

When officers uncuffed him so he could use the bathroom, Trantham reportedly "slammed the door and said he wasn't coming out," according to the police report. Then, when police tried to enter, he allegedly resisted arrest, issuing his threat that they "didn't know who he was."

Trantham has denied the police version of the events, ranting of the bathroom battle, "I think they are homosexual because what man would come in there and pull another man off the seat?"

"You're accused of drunk driving, resisting arrest, urinating in the police station and abusing the officers. How do you plead?"

"Niggas be gay!"

Best. Plead. Ever.

Once we send all these monkeys back to Africa, we absolutely have to turn the whole continent into a reality show for our entertainment. That way, we keep the best of both worlds—no Blacks around, but an endless supply of goofy humor. Plus, it would serve as a warning to to ever let them in again.

UK: Only 2% of Young Men Feel Masculine

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 23, 2017

Somehow, I'm not surprised.

This is your country on Jews. In less than 100 years, they'll turn your country from a world superpower controlling a vast empire into a nation where 98% of young men don't even feel masculine.

YouGov.uk:

In a new three-part documentary artist Grayson Perry explores British masculinity in some of its most extreme locations—cage-fighters in the north east, in the police and among bankers in the City. With suicide now the biggest killer of men under 50 in Britain, one conclusion of the programme is that men (like cage fighters) who most inhabit their masculine identity can actually be the most comfortable talking about their feelings. In an era when defined roles for men such as mining have fallen by the wayside, it may be necessary to embrace masculinity in other ways.

That's actually an important point. The fact is that the more confident and masculine you are, the less you care about what others think, and the more inclined you are to impose your views, feelings and attitudes on the world. In turn, that makes you more open, not more closed off.

I can guarantee you this guy doesn't hide his feelings.

What's making men unwilling to share their "feelings" is that the Jews have created a situation where masculine attitudes are shamed, so that any man with a normal outlook quickly learns to keep his thoughts to himself.

New YouGov research reveals the scale of the generational shift in terms of how young people perceive their own masculinity, and to a lesser extent femininity. On a scale of 0-6, where 0 is completely masculine and 6 is completely feminine, only 2% of young men (aged 18-24) define themselves as totally masculine, compared to fully 56% of men over 65.

This is in fact more telling than it might appear. You have to be pretty far gone to even consider answering a question about your masculinity with anything else than "I feel completely masculine."

The issue goes beyond just not "feeling" masculine, but is rather a symptom that they don't like the very concept of masculinity.

Even including the second highest level of masculinity, there's a 56% gap between male 18-24s (18% at level 0 or 1) and over 65s (74%), and a 28% gap between 25-49s (46%) and over 65s.

There is a dramatic difference between young and old women on their self-defined level of femininity as well, but not quite as large. Only 39% of 18-24 year old women say they are almost entirely feminine (at level 5 or 6) compared to 77% of over 65s.

No surprises there.

American men are much more likely to think of themselves as exclusively masculine. Overall 42% of American men say they are completely masculine, compared to 28% of British men.

Wow, britcucks btfo.

Both young men and young women have a lower opinion of "masculinity" than older people, but young men are harsher critics of the concept than young women. In contrast, the majority of young men (58%) have a positive impression of "femininity", as do the majority of young women (55%). Overall "femininity" has a net positivity score of +56 compared to +44 for "masculinity".

Exactly. I wonder where they could have gotten this idea?

The fact is that the power of a nation comes from the strength of its men. If the men are emasculated, then it is impossible to maintain civilization for very long, let alone status as a major power.

This is why the destruction of feminism is the most important aspect of our struggle. By pushing men to reclaim their virile power, we can reshape a whole generation into strong, driven race-warriors who have the will to do what is necessary.

Pennsylvania: Moslem Goes on Shooting Spree Targeting Cops – Cops Baffled as to What the Motive Could Be

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

There is nothing more BAF-FLING than when a Moslem immigrant randomly attacks white people.

What could possibly be the motive for such a thing?

What could drive a member of the religion of peace—“The Grateful Dead of World Religions”—to randomly kill people?

Probably, we will never know.

Fox News:

Authorities in Harrisburg, Pa., were wondering Friday what drove a 51-year-old man to go on an afternoon shooting spree in which he apparently targeted police officers.

Police eventually shot and killed the gunman, whom authorities later identified as Ahmed Aminamin El-Mofty.

One Pennsylvania state trooper was shot during the spree, but she was expected to make a full recovery, authorities said.

The suspect had chased the trooper during one of three shootings that began at around 4 p.m., PennLive reported.

By around 7 p.m., the suspect was dead.

Ed Marsico, Dauphin County district attorney, said police were deliberately targeted, and that El-Mofty was slain as he fired at officers while carrying two rifles and a shotgun, PennLive.com reported.

Marsico told WGAL-TV that officials had “no idea what the motivation is at this point.”

It is simply baffling.

And because he was killed, we will probably never find out. So the best thing to do is just bury this story, as the media is already doing.

Jewish Media is Trying to Metoo Mike Cernovich!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer

I don't like Mike Cernovich.

He is in my opinion a very weird person, and he has accused me of all sorts of very bizarre things. At one point, he claimed that I am an agent of the SPLC and that the SPLC sued me and then donated all the money for my defense in order to make me more famous.

More than anything personal, however, I am bothered by the fact that he makes things up. Especially given that he attaches himself to truthful Alt-Right ideas and movements. The only actual strength of the Alt-Right is the ability to tell the truth, so when people like Cernovich and Jack Posobiec come in and start trying to co-opt us while also aggressively inserting fake news—which is then sometimes picked up on by more genuine people—it is an attack on the movement's core.

That having been said, I do hope that he deals with this situation properly, as the way he deals with it is going to reflect on the entire right wing and will play a role in shaping the the larger metoo narrative moving forward.

Daily Beast:

A high-profile Reddit Ask Me Anything session quickly backfired on prominent far-right internet troll Mike Cernovich on Friday, as users with names like “FartHog69” demanded to know how he got a “a ## rape charge talked down to battery" in 2003.

Cernovich took to Twitter to claim the Q&A session was a "huge success," despite the top post consisting almost entirely of accusations of impropriety against the conspiracy theorist.

"It's a matter of public record that you were charged with rape, and pled it down to a battery charge. Did you hire a private investigator to harass witnesses like you claim you did on your old legal blog or is that untrue?" Reddit user sejuani_air_ult asked.

Cernovich, one of the earliest peddlers of the false Pizzagate conspiracy theory that claimed Hillary Clinton's campaign was running a pedophile ring out of the basement of a pizza shop that had no basement, did not respond to that question.

Cernovich received repeated questioning about a 2003 rape charge that later became a battery charge.

"The false accusation against me was dismissed, and my initial arrest was expunged. That's why you losers can't find any court records, none exist, expungement!" he wrote.

"Why are you thinking about rape all of the time?" he then asked a user who had not talked about rape on Reddit in over a year, according to his post history.

Cernovich had recently gained mainstream recognition for forwarding verifiable documents to BuzzFeed News confirming Congressman John Conyers quietly settled a sexual harassment suit. Weeks later, Cernovich promised his readers he was "currently reading the sexual harassment settlement documents of a major Democratic US Senator," which wound up being false, forged documents about Sen. Chuck Schumer. Cernovich later claimed he was duped.

This week, Cernovich falsely insinuated the Amtrak train crash

in Washington state was caused by an antifa member pouring concrete on tracks.

Cernovich was asked about the many times he has been dangerously wrong in the aftermath of news events and tragedies.

"Hey Mike, Do you think that an important part of being a good critical thinker is showing intellectual humility?" asked user Stuchapin.

"If so, can you tell us about a few times you have been wrong?"

Cernovich, who once wrote he'd "bet on my life [Barack Obama] is gay" in a tweet he later deleted, responded to Stuchapin by saying he regrets having once believed that right-wing agitator "Dinesh D'Souza's methods of calling Democrats racists and Nazis [were] corny and ineffective."

Clearly, the Reddit posts and this Daily Beast article are attempts to call forth female accusers against the Cern.

That will probably happen. Cernovich was a "pick-up artist," which is a cult that is based around getting sluts drunk to have sex with them. I would be completely shocked if there are not dozens of women who had sex with Cernovich while drunk who are now looking to take revenge on him.

*Puts on "Anglin's Crisis Management Service" ballcap***

What he needs to do is not do a MILO, to not apologize and to publicly call the women whores and exaggerators.

He needs to cite the New York Times article that claims that Metoo is going too far.

That will be the clincher and the ultimate judo move.

Right now, the entire establishment is scared to death of metoo, and they're trying to begin to undermine it, while the sluts themselves are continuing to go wild. If Cernovich steals the talking points of the NYT, they will back down, because they don't want the sluts saying "rapist fake news troll Mike Cernovich cited the New York Times in his defense of rape."

And of course, even when they back down the sluts will say that anyway—so it benefits both Cernovich AND the larger narrative of metooism by undermining the establishment's attempts to dial back the outrage machine.

Cernovich deserves to be destroyed for being a lying fake news hoax-artist, not because he raped some hooker 15 years ago.

Although if he lets this destroy him, it isn't really that big of a deal. But the fact that it helps our narrative if he is successful in fending it off is enough reason for me to tell him how to do that.

FBI Says Stephen Paddock's Motive Won't be Released Until October of 2018

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

This is the first time the Feds have tacitly admitted to knowing the motive, which is on it's own a staggering thing.

Saying they're going to hold it until October is insane.

What right do they have? Our people are dead. We deserve answers.

Fox News:

Want to finally know why Stephen Paddock gunned down 58 people in Las Vegas in early October?

Be prepared to wait a while—possibly until next October—the chief of the FBI's Las Vegas office revealed this week during an interview in which he said the agency probably wouldn't brief the public until their report is released sometime before the tragedy's first anniversary.

"Now that's a long time for some people, but speaking for the FBI, that's light speed, all right?" Special Agent in Charge Aaron Rouse told the Las Vegas Review-Journal on Wednesday.

Rouse said reports from other agencies investigating the mass shooting will be released at different times, but the FBI's one is "focusing a large part on the why" which is "what everybody wants to know."

That burning question has not been answered, but Rouse said evidence still suggests Paddock was the only person involved in the attack and that he has not been linked with any affiliations or ideologies. The FBI previously denied claims by the Islamic State that Paddock was responding to a call to intensify attacks against Western countries bombing its territories in Syria and Iraq.

Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department Sheriff Joe Lombardo has said in the past that Paddock's mounting gambling losses may have played a role.

"As I sit here today, I believe that we are learning as much as we possibly can about why the subject did what they did," Rouse said.

Rouse told the Las Vegas Review-Journal that the FBI has interviewed around 400 people worldwide in connection to Paddock and has brought in the same number of specialists to help document evidence.

"We didn't leave anything uncovered," Rouse told the Las Vegas Review-Journal. "And again, the casinos, with their support, let us track down a lot of information of who may have had contact with that person. And it was very helpful to us."

If there is some reason they can't simply come out and tell us the motive, they need to give that reason.

Is it national security?

The idea that it is "fast" to take a year to explain a mass shooting is utterly nonsensical. No other mass shooting has taken more than a day to explain.

They certainly didn't hold back information on Dylann Roof.

As we've covered extensively on this site, the FBI is absolutely hiding information and has constructed a false narrative surrounding the events. There is virtually no element of the official story that makes sense.

It is extremely difficult to process as an American because there is no immediate sensible explanation for this, other than that Paddock was some kind of US intelligence asset. I just cannot conceive of any other reason that the FBI would be so obsessed with covering-up the event. And of course, the media is working with them to cover it up. Despite the AP calling it the third most important story of the year, it has been buried.

Thus far, there has been zero meaningful investigation into the event. The Ellen Show did a coached interview of the one important witness—a Mexican who cancelled all of this TV interviews and fled to Mexico in the wake of the shooting, then showed up to do only one interview with her and announce that he wouldn't be talking to the press at all in the future.

We know for a fact that the FBI is riddled with corruption. And it is probably an organization bigger than the FBI directing them.

Mexican YouTuber Assassinated at the Club After Posting Insults of Top Drug Lord

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

It's time for a Christmas feel-good story, friends.

Gather round then.

Fox News:

A Mexican teenaged YouTube star, famous for drinking himself into oblivion in his viral videos, was shot to death Monday after he insulted a notorious drug kingpin.

Juan Luis Lagunas Rosales, 17, of Sinaloa, a Mexican state, grew up too fast. The teenager dropped out of high school and moved out at age 15 to Culiacan, The Washington Post reported. The teenager made his living by washing cars before he became known on the internet as "El Pirata de Culiacan" which translates to "The Pirate of Culiacan."

Lagunas became engrossed in a hard-partying lifestyle that became his brand. The teenager's videos of him chugging beer and liquor eventually went viral and he started to gain a following. By the time he turned 17, the Mexican teen had hundreds of thousands of followers on his Instagram and more than a million on Facebook. His newfound fame got him featured roles in music videos.

The teenager, in a rush to be identified as an adult, tattooed himself, drew a beard on his face, drank excessively despite the drinking age in Mexico being 18, and posted photos of him with guns, scantily clad women and expensive rides.

Just want to note here that bitches do not care about looks.

They only care about STATUS.

The reason that it looks like women care about looks is that usually, especially in the West, looks correlate with status. And in fact looks are a part of status, and looks as a status marker has risen in value the west due to the general abundance of resources and the woman's ability to steal resource from men through affirmative action hiring and welfare programs.

Outside of the West, you very often see beautiful women with fat little trolls wearing Gucci or stoic men 30 years older than them. This is a much better system, in my view, given that it makes men want to strive for success and status, rather than sitting around doing their hair like a bunch of little faggots.

However, the rising star was not ready for what was about to occur. Lagunas posted a video recently of insulting Nemesio Oseguera Cervantes, also known as "El Mencho," one of the country's most notorious drug kingpins, the U.S. Government declared.

In the video, Lagunas said "El Mencho a mi me pela la verga" which loosely translates to "suck my c--."

It was not immediately clear why Lagunas singled out "El Mencho" in his video.

On Monday night, Lagunas was enjoying a night out at a bar in Jalisco with a group of friends when a squad of young men busted into the establishment and shot the social media star between 15 to 18 times, killing him, Raul Sanchez Jimenez, Jalisco's attorney general, said.

Mexican authorities were investigating if Lagunas' criticism of "El Mencho" had something to do with his death. So far nobody has been arrested and a motive was not named, the Daily News reported.

That is very, very funny.

People in Mexico know this sort of shit, obviously. The Jewish media is kind enough to shield Americans from the brutality of the endless drug wars in Mexico. But the Mexican people know that if you attack a drug lord, he will come and kill you.

But Mexicans have this "it's a positive trait to be insane and do things that are likely to bring about your own death" thing going. Other cultures have that too, of course. But in Mexico it's much more extreme. Brown people in general live much closer to death. Evolutionarily, this is due to the high fertility rate meaning that a single life has significantly less value.

Mixing people with very little respect for life with people with high levels of respect for life has been a disaster. This puts whites in a constant state of fear.

CNN Jews Attack Official Alt-Right Cartoons Thomas and Paw Patrol!!!

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

If you're going to let your toddlers watch anything on TV, make sure it's endorsed by the Daily Stormer—such as Paw Patrol, Thomas the Tank Engine or Breaking Bad.

We all know that children are all born hating niggers and fantasizing about gassing Jews. But unfortunately, since the entire media industry is controlled by oven-dodgers, there's no children's programming featuring lynchings and Nazi main characters.

So naturally, kids have to settle for the next best thing, which is "Thomas the Tank Engine" and "Paw Patrol."

I cried during this episode.

CNN:

Parents like to see themselves as purveyors of possibility. We want our children to inhabit a world in which identities are both mutable and equal, and imagination and empathy reign supreme!

Uhh...We do? Wait a minute... Right.
Moving on.

But young children, as dictated by their tastes in popular culture, have something else in mind. They're drawn to worlds in which identities are fixed, order trumps imagination and transgressions are met with routine punishment.

This clash between what parents desire for their children and what children desire for themselves is most easily observable in cartoon preferences. So often, the more parents dislike a show, the more their children love it.

Two of the most divisive shows are "Thomas the Tank Engine" and "Paw Patrol," both of which have been eviscerated by grown-ups on discussion boards, in social media and in widely shared essays in prestigious publications.

Yeah, no kidding, lol.

pic.twitter.com/r6RbPUhgj5

— Sam (@SamTheTrainFan) March 25, 2017

BASED.

You may not have realized that Thomas the Train was all about lynching nigger-trains and establishing White train supremacy. But the Jews certainly have. And they're very upset with the goyim children for liking it.

"Thomas," the long-running television franchise about a group of working trains chugging away on the Island of Sodor, has been called a "premodern corporate-totalitarian dystopia" in the New Yorker, imperialist and sinister in Slate, and classist, sexist and anti-environmentalist in the Guardian. And yet people—presumably parents—spend $1 billion on "Thomas" merchandise every year.

"Paw Patrol" is equally polarizing. The show, about a group of rescue dogs led by a boy named Ryder, is a regular source of complaint among parents and of adoration among their kids.

Buzzfeed called the show "terrible" and pointed to instances of gender and social inequality that go unchecked on the show. In the Guardian, Ryder is described as a megalomaniac with an implied "unstoppable God complex." Nevertheless, "Paw Patrol" is ubiquitous. Branded merchandise featuring Ryder and the gang outsells most other television shows, according to recent data from the Licensing Industry Merchandisers' Association. A recent Amazon search for "Paw Patrol" yielded 24,814 results.

I wish adult shows were like that too. *Sigh.*

I want shows with megalomaniacal protagonists sporting a God complex.

As it stands, we need to rely on the Japs for our God-complex protagonists. By the way—Kira did nothing wrong.

These shows also help children navigate their paradoxical relationship with power. On one hand, they desperately want some power. Watching the pups in "Paw Patrol" go on a mission or the trains in "Thomas" being useful allows them to feel as though they too have an important role to play.

On the other hand, children take comfort in the idea that someone is in charge. To them, Ryder isn't a megalomaniac, and Sir Topham Hatt of "Thomas" isn't a neocolonial autocrat. They're just the guys delegating responsibilities to their eager inferiors. And the fact that these leaders, both white males, look like most figures in position of authority in the real world is not lost on children.

So the Jews are triggered because these shows feature White males in positions of authority, and this is portrayed in a healthy and positive fashion rather than being demonized as evil.

I wonder what they'd propose to fix the situation?

Here's an idea, gratis, for the creative team behind of "Paw Patrol" and "Thomas," should they want to broaden their appeal to parents without alienating their fan base: Ryder and Sir Topham Hatt retire and are replaced by their equally domineering sisters. This, in turn, boosts the social status of all the non-male characters. Children would still get the satisfaction of immersing themselves in an orderly universe where rules are rules, and everyone is in his or her place. Just without the white guy on top.

Right.

Get rid of the White males.

Thanks for the suggestion, Shlomo.

Now get back in your oven.

These ovens aren't going to feed themselves.

Gingerbeard Islamo-Convert Plotted ISIS Attack in San Francisco

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

Honestly, I'm surprised that more white guys don't convert to Islam and commit terrorist attacks.

It is basically a logical thing to do in modern society. Young people have grown up in an anti-reality, anti-nature situation, and if nothing else Islam does offer a return to the order of nature, what with all the bitch-slapping and throwing faggots off of roofs. When you look out at the options—especially before the rise of the Alt-Right—it is a logical move to side with haji against a system designed to destroy you.

I'm not sure what it says that more people aren't doing this. It's a good thing, of course, that they aren't. But it is surprising.

KGO:

Officials have stopped a man who they say was plotting a terror attack in San Francisco over the holidays. The 26-year-old reportedly stated that "Christmas was the perfect day" for a terror attack in San Francisco and "did not need an escape plan because he was ready to die."

The FBI arrested Everitt Aaron Jameson, who is a tow truck driver and lives in Modesto. According to a handwritten letter obtained by the FBI, Jameson also referred to himself as Abdallah adu Everitt ibn Gordon.

Jameson appeared in court Friday, but did not enter a plea.

The 26-year-old is charged with attempting to supply support to a foreign terrorist organization, specifically the Islamic State. According to FBI documents, he posted and liked pro-ISIS and pro-terrorism content on Facebook.

The suspect reportedly picked the Pier 39 location because he "had been there before and knew it was a heavily crowded area." He added that it would be easy to "funnel" people into an area where he could inflict casualties.

The documents cite an FBI informant who said Jameson was inspired by the New York terror attack on Oct. 31, when a man drove into a crowd and killed eight people, and the deadly 2015 shooting in San Bernardino.

And according to the documents, the suspect was discharged from the Marine Corps. He had prior military experience with a "sharpshooter" rifle qualification and expertise with rifle marksmanship.

Officials say Jameson was talking to an undercover FBI agent. They add that he was arrested earlier this week and a search warrant was executed at his Modesto home. Several firearms were found, along with fireworks.

ABC7 News contacted officials at Pier 39 to ask for a response, they say they did not know about this plot.

"Planned attacks" are always a sketchy thing. We won't know for years, if ever, if this is real or if it was an FBI setup of a mentally ill person. Those options are probably equally likely at this point—it used to be more likely than not that a "foiled before it happened" attack was an FBI hoax, but given the state of liberalism and political correctness, that has become less and less likely.

Apple Getting Sued for De-ranged Slow-Down Conspiracy

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

The iPhone slowdown conspiracy is what happens when your only product is a phone and your plan is to sell infinity phones forever.

It is what happens when you install an affirmative action CEO specifically because he sucks dick.

RT:

A lawsuit has been filed in California against US technology giant Apple after the company admitted to slowing down older iPhone models to keep them running longer.

According to the plaintiffs, Los Angeles residents Stefan Bogdanovich and Dakota Speas, Apple never requested consent from them to "slow down their iPhones." The owners of an iPhone 7 and several older iPhone models, both claim they "suffered interferences to their iPhone usage due to the intentional slowdowns."

The plaintiffs have noticed their "older iPhone models slow down when new models come out." They are claiming damages from Apple because as they said the company's actions caused them to suffer “economic damages and other harm for which they are entitled to compensation.”

Bogdanovich and Speas are trying to get the case certified to cover all people in the United States who own Apple models older than the iPhone 8.

On Wednesday, Apple acknowledged it had slowed down older phones. It said it has algorithms in place to help keep an iPhone running at optimal performance if there is an older battery inside that can't keep up with the required power.

The company said it aimed to stop unexpected shutdowns of older iPhone models and keep them running to the best possible standard.

Obviously, they could just as easily have told us this information (everyone already knew this information about lithium ion batteries) and offered us replacement batteries.

Instead, they engaged in a conspiracy to slow your phone in order to force us to buy new ones.

I very often brag that I will never replace my iPhone 6, because there will never be another feature that I need. But over the last 6 months, it has continued to get slower.

Everyone experiences this same thing. And Apple has been gaslighting us for years on this issue.

I would infinity times prefer to buy a new battery for $100 than a $1000 new phone.

Check this: the iPhone 8 is lighter than my iPhone 6, feeling flimsy and plasticity. I haven't gone in the shop to look at the X since it came out because I've already decided I wouldn't spend that much on a phone—especially with the sort of reviews it is getting in an age when no new utility exists on these machines.

Apple iPhone X Review: Why I'm Switching Back To Android

Both phones are less secure for dropping than the iPhone 6, which I drop all the time and which never breaks because it is metal.

I do not want to get a new phone.

This slowdown is a conspiracy against the consumer, and it is very sad that it is Apple doing it and not the gooks. You expect gooks to be cheaters. But this is what happens when you celebrate anal sex with men as a virtue and put these anally-fixed lunatics in charge of companies based on the perceived moral virtue of anal sex with men.

Homosexuality is a mental illness and the people involved in it are criminals by their very nature. They are a threat to society on every level—not just that of their fixation with abusing young boys. They will also slow down your phone.

This Again? Ninth Circuit Court Rules Against Trump Travel Ban

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

Another chink is involved this time as well? What's with these chinks?

For most judges, the prospect of being over-ruled by a higher court is profoundly unsettling. In the field of law, being over-ruled on a decision is a symptom of incompetence, either because of bias or ignorance of the law, and thus can be a blow to a judge's reputation and career.

But the judges of the ninth circuit of appeals don't fit the mold. According to the American bar association, 80% of their decisions are reversed on appeal. But they don't care—they know better.

Tfw the American bar calls you out as a “rogue court.”

These people are clowns pushing a liberal political agenda, and have no concern about the actual law or constitution. If something gives them bad feels, then it must be somehow illegal, right?

And so predictably, even after the supreme court ruled earlier this month that Trump's travel ban could be put into practice (strongly implying that they saw no immediate legal issue with it), the ninth circuit comes out with their own ruling against it.

New York Times:

A federal appeals court ruled Friday against President Trump's latest travel ban, saying that it “exceeds the scope of his delegated authority,” but that it was ultimately for the Supreme Court to decide.

A three-judge panel of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in Seattle affirmed the decision of a federal judge in Hawaii who ruled on Oct. 17 that the order was unlawful on statutory grounds.

The ruling on Friday was a procedural but important step. This month, the Supreme Court allowed the ban—the third version issued by the Trump administration—to take effect for now, and encouraged the appeals courts to rule on the case, a sign that it intended to take up the matter. The Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit is considering a similar ruling out of Maryland.

Wew, these retards should learn to take a hint.

The supreme court was like, “we’re blocking your blocking—please make your stupid ruling quickly so we can then reverse that too.” And so they did.

And now the media is somehow spinning this as a victory for them?

Neal Katyal, who argued the case before the Ninth Circuit court for the state of Hawaii, hailed the decision. “We are very pleased the Court of Appeals recognized that the president’s latest travel ban is flatly illegal,” he said, “and that his order defies the law Congress has laid down.”

Lauren Ehrsam, a spokeswoman for the Justice Department, said the Trump administration was “pleased” that the Supreme Court had already allowed the government to carry out the order.

“We continue to believe that the order should be allowed to take effect in its entirety,” she said.

Yeah.

This ruling has no practical effect—the supreme court has already said the the travel ban can be put into practice regardless of these stupid judiciary blocks. This is all just grandstanding meant to gaslight Trump’s base into feeling like they lost something, while in fact nothing at all is happening.

The Supreme Court asked this month that both the Ninth and Fourth Circuit courts rule expeditiously to enable it to take up the case. It will likely wait on the Fourth Circuit opinion before it decides whether it will hear the appeal and “finally decide to resolve this issue,” said Carl Tobias, a law professor at the University of Richmond.

Once these bugmen judges are done with their cute little rulings, the Supreme Court can come in and finally overturn them. And it’s close to certain that they will. There is ample precedent for the president implementing travel bans on very similar grounds as to what Trump has presented, including this hilarious example.

Aj Jazeera:

As millions of people became refugees during World War II, US President Franklin D Roosevelt argued that refugees posed a serious threat to the country’s national security. Drawing on fears that Nazi spies could be hiding among them, the country limited the number of German Jews who could be admitted to 26,000 annually. And it is estimated that for most of the Hitler era, less than 25 percent of that quota was actually filled.

This is some top-tier irony right there...A Jew travel ban to prevent Nazi spies, resulting in more Jews getting gassed in fake shower rooms.

The real question here is this: how can we tolerate having a court 80% of whose decisions are overturned? Wouldn’t that indicate that they’re completely inept, corrupt and/or dishonest?

It’s time to start seriously discussing dissolving this clown organization.

I read a science fiction story once where an evil time traveler went back and abused the hero when he was a child in the final showdown, tainting his entire life.

That is what I felt was happening when I watched Star Wars: The Last Jedi.

It’s all good and well to talk about the sociological problems with Hollywood shaping who people are by shaping their experiences and their perception of reality. I talk about that and I think it should be talked about.

But that having been said, the reality is that Hollywood did play a role in shaping all of us. Unless you were raised Amish or in some other cult, you have meaningful childhood memories that relate to Hollywood.

And I personally feel that my memories of staying up late to try and watch all three films in the original Star Wars trilogy are not harmful memories. I think Star Wars, based on Joseph Campbell’s “Hero with a Thousand Faces,” having genuinely deep and interesting characters and themes, was good for children.

Yes, as “White Supremacist Neo-Nazi” adults, we can meme around about how the Empire were actually the good guys. But we can also meme ourselves in our current position as the Rebel Alliance fighting the ZOG empire as a rag-tag band of believers in what is right. The archetypes of the show make both interpretations equally valid and meaningful.

It is difficult to believe that the Disney Jews behind “The Last Jedi” were not purposefully attempting to destroy the meaning of the original films by ruining the characters and the plot. Yes, of course it was a cynical money-grab, and they stole all of the original trilogy's themes in an attempt to ensure maximum profits. They also inserted their usual feminist and anti-white propaganda. The Jew JJ Abrams, who is the key figure behind the direction of these films, openly said he wanted to replace white characters.

But even with all of that, there is no reason that the original series had to be so viciously attacked.

And yes, much of the problems with the film were foreshadowed in 2015's "The Force Awakens." The basic premise was nonsensical—after Return of the Jedi, the Empire was destroyed and a New Republic formed. Yes, I understand that the beautiful Timothy Zahn novels were deleted from cannon by Disney, but even with those deleted, we still know from the ending of the original trilogy that the Empire was defeated.

It was and shall forever remain episodes 7-9 in my heart.

So why are they back, ruling the galaxy, with the Republic destroyed, 30 years later? And if the Republic was that incompetent, why am I supposed to believe they have a right to rule?

Clearly, the basis for this trilogy should have been Luke as King with a Sith conspiracy brewing in the New Republic. That would have been an interesting premise. But they wanted to remake the original series (plus feminism and white genocide), so without explanation, the Empire has risen again and taken over the galaxy.

Despite that, the first film in this new trilogy managed to be less offensive than one would expect. It was not a good film, but it was genuinely nostalgic and you didn't feel as though a Jew was holding you down and using evil wizard powers to scar your soul.

No, it is only with "The Last Jedi" that you realize the full extent of what Disney has done to your childhood memories—they have destroyed the sympathetic and heroic main character of Luke, making him a bitter, cynical old man obsessed with witnessing the destruction of his own life's achievements and everything that he believed in.

Luke's entire premise throughout the film is that the Jedi deserve to be destroyed. Yoda even comes back to help him burn the sacred founding texts of the Jedi religion.

What is the explanation for the implosion of a character who was intended to be an archetype of a hero, if not to destroy the idea of the archetypal hero—at least the white version of it—in the minds of the people who care about these characters?

The only explanation for why Luke would be written this way is Jewish hatred for things that goyim find meaningful. And yes yes yes, I get that we perhaps shouldn't have found Star Wars as meaningful as we do, but we did find it that meaningful and the Jews resented that.

And of course, Luke is being replaced with brown people and women.

The white man gives up hope in everything as his throne is taken away from him.

Obviously, the entire film itself was just phoned-in. None of the new characters changed from the beginning of "The Force Awakens" to the end of "The Last Jedi." The plot is by far the most pointless of any of the Star Wars films, given that nothing even happens.

Rey, the female who has replaced Luke, was already invincible when the first film began. She picked up a light saber and could defeat a Sith Lord. Because she's a woman and women in modern movies are all able to do anything. It is unclear why she even needed to seek out Luke for training given that she was already godlike. She is a completely unsympathetic character, due to both her perfection and her annoyingness, and not a single person is going to cheer when, in the next film, she wins the day. She has had to struggle with nothing, so a victory is without intrinsic meaning in terms of the most basic principles of storytelling.

The cocky X-Wing pilot Poe Dameron throws a mutiny on the ship and is not punished for it. Which may speak to why the rebels, following Return of the Jedi, lost their New Republic over the course of a couple decades. There is no lesson learned from his mutiny when it turns out that the female he overthrew, thinking she was leading the rebellion astray, was, despite her hard shell, actually a pure-hearted embodiment of goodness planning to sacrifice herself—other than that women are always good and morally superior to men in every situation.

Kylo Ren, the son of Han Solo and Princess Leia who plays the role of Darth Vader, is the only vaguely interesting character in the film. And I mean that in relative terms. He remains conflicted from the beginning of the last film to the end of this one, and his motivations are confusing. I was shocked when he killed the Supreme Leader, to be honest, give that this was the only significantly different plot point from Empire.

Finn, the Negro who has replaced Han Solo, is as dull and uninteresting as any real life Negro. His part in the movie—visiting a casino arms trafficking slave world—served no purpose. This guy had nothing going on in his timeline, so why were we even shown this? It is weird and uncomfortable when he makes out with the obese Chinese girl and I do not think that Asian audience will respond well to Jews giving their women over to Negroes.

The arms dealing itself undermined the core theme of the franchise, which is melodramatic good vs. evil. The arms dealers were selling weapons to both sides, and it was implied that the rebels were just as bad as the Empire for continuing the war—a confusing and bizarre concept to just drop randomly in the middle of this film.

Oh and Leia for some reason does not die, even though the actress that plays her died in real life (due to obesity). Her struggling that her son is evil and has to die would have been an interesting bit of character development, but they decided not to do that for whatever reason.

And I'm just going to skip the point where now apparently any unmanned ship with hyperdrive and one Allahu Akbar feminist aboard can take out an entire Imperial fleet, which effectively makes all ships in the galaxy obsolete. It's a good thing no one ever thought of using that particular trick before or there never would have been a Star Wars to begin with because the rebels would have destroyed the Death Star using this method before the first film began.

Mark Hamill's Apology Tour

The original trilogy cast signed on for the films in the summer of 2012. In the fall of 2012, George Lucas sold his company—including the original cast's contracts—to Jewish Disney.

Mark Hamill, the actor that plays Luke Skywalker, said that there was no element of this script that he didn't disagree with.

During his promotional tour for the film, he has basically been apologizing for his role in it. It is clear that he really does care about the character and the franchise and got involved specifically because he trusted George Lucas.

It's...pretty sad.

Here's a series of clips, followed by a slightly funnier version of a clip series.

Video Link

Video Link

This is the guy's greatest life work. He didn't do much other than Star Wars.

So he's taking it even harder than the rest of us.

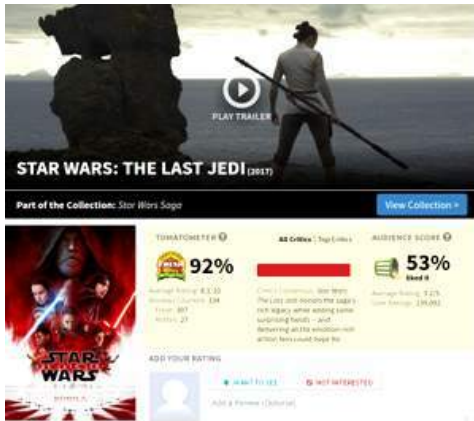

I would like to see the Disney itself give an official apology for this film. And they may yet. Ticket sales are dropping faster than those of any of the nine previous Star Wars films.

A Reviewer Conspiracy?

The positive reviews of the film do not make sense.

Look at the Rotten Tomatoes gap between audience and reviewer.

What does it mean?

Yes, sometimes reviewers give positive reviews to bad products because they push a social agenda, I suppose—but they sure as hell didn't do that with the latest Eminem album. And the reviewers are acting as a bloc, with none of the major ones telling the truth about this horrible film.

I think Disney might be paying reviewers. Because again, this film is objectively bad. The diversity and the shitting on the history only make a horrible film into literal psychological torture—it could have been all white males and not tied to any of the franchise's history and it would still be a horrible film.

It's Okay Though

The internet is now creating its own culture for the young people coming up.

We won't need Hollywood anymore. What we are doing is better. The Millennials were the last generation to have memories from before the internet. A generation that does not have memories from before the internet is an entirely different being, with an entire new set of childhood memory tethering points.

The death of these old institutions, as painful as it may be for Generation X and Millennials, is a good thing for the universe and for society as a whole.

So don't be too down about anti-social personality disorder hermit Luke Skywalker.

We are entering an entirely new age.

"Look at me. I'm the culture now."

Cenk Uygur Must Resign for Sexist and Misogynistic Blog Posts

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

Cenk Uygur is a sick man. He openly bragged about groping tits in New Orleans while drunk. Does he really think this behavior is acceptable in the #MeToo era?

It turns out that Cenk Uygur of the Young Turks is a very sexist and misogynistic individual. Uygur has been exposed for writing several blog posts in the early 2000s that were highly insensitive and demeaning towards women.

The Wrap:

"Young Turks" creator and host Cenk Uygur made multiple graphic and disparaging remarks about women in his early days as a blogger, including saying that women were genetically "flawed" because they don't want to have sex often enough.

TheWrap found the blog posts, from the early 2000s, in online archives. In an interview with TheWrap, Uygur apologized and said he deleted the "ugly" posts a decade ago because "I don't stand by them."

"The stuff I wrote back then was really insensitive and ignorant," Uygur said. "If you read that today, what I wrote 18 years ago, and you're offended by it, you're 100 percent right. And anyone who is subjected to that material, I apologize to. And I deeply regret having written that stuff when I was a different guy."

If he thinks he can get away with this awful behavior by issuing a simple apology, he is sorely mistaken. We are in the age of #MeToo and apologies are not enough. I mean, some of this stuff that he said is just plain shocking. And he thought he could cover up his misogyny by deleting those blog posts. Nice try Cenk!

It is hard to believe that a respectable JewTube personality like Uygur would view women like this. It's obvious that he views women as sex objects. And who does he think he is demanding that he be able to grab a woman's tits after the third date? And an orgasm after the fifth date? This type of sexism is outrageous!

In an entry from 2000, Uygur complained about not having enough sex while living in Miami: "It seems like there is a sea of tits here, and I am drinking in tiny droplets. I want to dive into the whole god damn ocean," he wrote. "Obviously, the genes of women are flawed. They are poorly designed creatures who do not want to have sex nearly as often as needed for the human race to get along peaceably and fruitfully."

In another entry, "Rules of Dating," Uygur described how fast physical intimacy should progress.

"Women, ignore these at your peril," he wrote. "Rule 1: There must be some serious making out by the third date. If I haven't felt your tits by then, things are not about to last much longer. In fact, if you don't get back on track by the fourth date, you're done."

He added: "Rule 2: There must be orgasm by the fifth date."

To make matters worse, Uygur bragged about groping tits while drunk in New Orleans!

In a post archived in 2003, he wrote about carousing with numerous women in New Orleans while drunk.

"I had one of the best nights of my life at Mardi Gras. I kissed over 23 different women, saw and felt countless breasts, and was in a wonderful drunken stupor thanks to my friend John Daniels," reads the post.

John Daniels is sometimes used as a nickname for Jack Daniels whiskey. Uygur told TheWrap that all of the behavior he described had been consensual.

The posts were written during the earliest years of Uygur's career as a journalist on YoungTurk.com—which today redirects to a website for The Young Turks.

His friend David Koller who now holds an upper management position with the Young Turks even used the term "whores in training" when describing teenage girls!

Another post from 2004 described a road trip with Uygur and David Koller, now senior vice president of operations at the Young Turks. The post was written in the style of a diary entry. At one point, "Dave" described chatting up some underage teenage girls he called "whores in training."

"In one small Pennsylvania town we stopped for gas, and while Cenk filled up I went to talk to these three girls who were walking down the road nearby. Turns out they were three teenage girls, whores in training, literally looking for boys to pick them up," he wrote. "They were around 14-16 and in a few more years will be pretty damn good looking."

Koller declined to comment on the matter.

"I don't want to talk about any of that stuff. Thank you for calling," he told TheWrap by phone before hanging up.

No comment? Figures, you sexist pig!

Uygur is trying to dismiss these blog posts as something from his past that he regrets. He claims the posts no longer represent who he is as a person. That however, appears to be a lie. How does he explain this tweet? He just posted this back in 2013!

The improbable breasts in Miami are only matched by the improbable butts. This place makes LA look real. #Miami

— Cenk Uygur (@cenkuygur) June 28, 2013

And then a former employee with his operation had this to say about him.

"Cenk is just a knucklehead. He's a boy. He talks about women the way I talked when I was 13," he said. "He's obsessed with body count—basically how many people you f—ed. This is an important number to him."

Wow! He sounds like a very immature person!

Of course, this isn't a surprise. He has serious anger management issues as evidenced by what happened when Alex Jones tried to say "hello" to him at the 2016 Republican National Convention.

Video Link

At this point, Uygur has no alternative but to resign his position in disgrace. Especially considering that he has pretended to be a progressive supporter of feminist ideologies. He has now been exposed as a massive liar and a fraud. These blog posts prove that he doesn't believe any of the crap that comes out of his mouth. He's seriously conned all of you progressive and feminist thinkers!

We must all stand up to sexist pigs like Cenk Uygur. Let your voices be heard! Tell him that you won't put up with his misogyny. Enough is enough!

Reprehensible Conniving Chinks Responsible for the Overwhelming Majority of Battlegrounds Hacks

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

Unsurprisingly, the overwhelming majority of gaming cheats come from the world's number one cheater race: the sneaking chinks.

The Neo-Nazi video game blogger Nathan Grayson of the White Supremacist game blog site Kotaku has vowed to expose "these dastardly slopes" for their infamous crimes against the gaming industry.

Kotaku blogger Nathan Grayson is seeking to “eliminate chinks” with his “slice the slopes” campaign.

This week he interviewed Battlegrounds creator Brendan Greene on the “cueball-headed slant invasion of a peaceful game intended for an exclusively white audience.”

Kotaku:

Many PlayerUnknown’s Battlegrounds players blame the game’s cheating problem on China. They’re not wrong, says the popular battle royale game’s creator Brendan Greene.

“Around 99 percent of cheats in the game right now are coming out of China,” Greene told Kotaku by phone. “There’s a massive cheat market not just in China, but around the world. But it’s seen as kind of a little bit more acceptable to cheat in games in China. Also geographically, they just have a lot more people than anywhere else in the world.”

Yes.

As a race, they are a group that appreciates conniving trickery and doesn’t view it as immoral.

While PlayerUnknown’s Battlegrounds, long available via Early Access, has now officially “launched,” it’s still got a murder purgatory island of ongoing issues to contend with. Some, like server troubles, are just a matter of polish. The game’s cheating problem, however, is a tougher nut to crack.

In recent months, PUBG has seen an influx of cheaters, some of whom go so far as to advertise their hacks like door-to-door salesmen (at least until somebody finally wallops them with a frying pan).

Some players who’ve encountered a large number of cheaters have gone on to call for things as drastic as bans of Chinese players from other regions’ servers, using language that borders on xenophobic to do so. Despite the prevalence of Chinese cheat programs and players, however, Greene said he can’t get behind that mentality.

Yes.

We need to clear the gook menace from the gaming tubes.

We need nothing less than a digital Nanking.

Green is playing it cool though as he plots an online genocide.

“I don’t think that’s a good idea at all,” he said. “Yes, the majority of cheats come out of China, but that doesn’t mean all Chinese players are cheaters. This idea that just because you’ve got a few bad eggs, you’ve gotta ban a whole country is a bit reactive.”

On the whole, Greene said, PUBG’s Chinese community is “very strong.” “They love the game,” he said. “Why would we restrict them from playing on servers? I just don’t get the attitude of some people.”

He is attempting to out chink the chinks here.... playing it cool, as he plans a sneaky countermeasure against the evil Asiatic gaming menace.

We need Battlegrounds clear.

We need to have a merit-based gaming community.

We need to wipe the Chinese from the face of Steam.

When you start looking at modern society in terms of “this entire thing was constructed by Jews for the explicit purpose of destroying white people,” everything makes perfect, clear sense.

Without the Jewish element however, it is all just a confusing mess. And you can actually be led to the conclusion that whites deserve all of this because they’re doing it to themselves.

For example, if you don't consider Jewish pressure groups and ask why it is that millions of Moslems were brought in to slaughter us on the streets, rape our women and live on welfare, you are left with the conclusion that whites did this because they are trying to wipe themselves out.

But then...

Behind every organization pushing this immigration agenda, there are Jews. Very often, it is openly Jewish ethnic advocacy groups pushing for it. In other cases, it is ostensibly a goyim civil group which just happens to have a Jewish head.

But always, behind everything, there are the Jews.

This is the main reason that I'm so opposed to Jared Taylor "looks huwhite to me" nationalism—if you claim Jews are not an alien racial group out to eliminate us, you cannot form a clear coherent argument that doesn't hinge on "well basically white people are just purposefully destroying themselves for no reason whatsoever."

Top Skeptic Jew "Kraut & Tea" Deletes Channel After Failed Jihad Against the Alt-Right

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

Some of you may remember that the "skeptics" community, which included people like Sargon of Akkad, TL;DR, Armored Skeptic, Kraut and Tea, as well as a host of others, entered something of a crisis a few months ago.

Their whole shtick has been, from the beginning, to autistically analyze SJW nonsense and explain why it's wrong and stupid. It was initially good for laughs, but got tiresome pretty quickly. The problem now is that they've humiliated their targets so effectively and aggressively that the YouTube SJW crowd basically gave up and either switched sides or dropped out of making videos.

In other words, the skeptics are quickly running out of material. So a few months back, some of them proposed going after the Alt-Right next, as their new source of material. Most of them didn't want to get involved with that, but some, like "Kraut and Tea," actually went ahead with it and started "debunking" race realism.

Big mistake.

Video Link

As it turns out, the Alt-Right is somewhat of a harder target than SJW's, to say the least.

Every video that Kraut came out with was swiftly taken apart and rebutted by much better informed Alt-Righters. At first, Ryan Faulk of "The Alternative Hypothesis" did most of the heavy lifting, but a new rising star eventually came in as reinforcement.

Video Link

Jean-Francois Gariépy, an Alt-Right biologist from Quebec, started coming out with incredibly detailed (and hilariously vicious) take downs of all of Kraut's materials. Furthermore, his videos are long, comprehensive and came out at a rapid pace, making it very difficult for Kraut to even address any of it.

But Kraut, who's admittedly part-Jewish, wasn't ready to throw in the towel. He enlisted the help of various scientists to come on his channel and help him "debunk" Alt-Right arguments for racial differences, hoping that their insights would make up for his own ignorance.

No dice. They get owned just the same as he does.

Video Link

As this process goes on, Kraut starts to slowly go insane. He loses all hope of actually winning the argument with superior rhetoric, and starts plotting a dark scheme.

Kraut creates a discord server for himself and his allies, where they start accumulating dox information on Jean-Francois and other Alt-Right Figures that are making Kraut look stupid. In fact, they were amassing a veritable encyclopedia of information about every major Alt-Right personality. The plan was to release "dirt" on them on a precise schedule, so as to coordinate a campaign to make Kraut look good and win the "optics" debate, if not the debate of arguments.

Pretty Jewy.

But here's where things get interesting. We had a man on the inside—one of the scientists Kraut enlisted for his efforts was so disgusted by these kike tactics that he leaked audio recordings from the discord server to Jean-Francois Gariépy, who promptly released them and made an triumphant video.

Video Link

The cliff's notes are that the scientists would constantly tell Kraut "well, the problem is that they're right about this..." instead of "debunking" our points. But the darkest secret revealed in these recordings is undoubtedly the shocking anti-French rhetoric, which showed Kraut to in fact be a unabashed bigot when it comes to the French race.

Sickening.

In any case, the plot to destroy the Alt-Right with Jew tricks was exposed, completely ruining Kraut's reputation forever.

But he had one last desperate move to play. While his pawns were doing a false-flagging campaign against the revelation video (which successfully got the video shut down), he came out with a fake apology video, trying to salvage what was left of his dignity.

But even this was in vain, as more information was leaked which showed to everyone that he was lying in his insincere apology.

After this, Kraut basically fled from the internet.

As of now, his channel has been stripped of all content.

With 121k subs and a devout following, Kraut and Tea was considered by many to be the #2 skeptic on Youtube after Sargon of Akkad. And now he's gone.

In other words, the first round in the battle of the Alt-Right against the "skeptics" is a resounding, unambiguous victory for us.

This comes roughly at the same time as another big-wig skeptic figure, Mouthy Buddha, did a series about the Jews. Initially, his goal was ostensibly to debunk anti-Semitism, but it seems the research he did on the question red-pilled him enough to turn him semi-insane.

Just look at the next video he published after his series on the Jews.

Video Link

Wew.

In fact, you can see him getting red-pilled in real time as he watches the Murdoch Murdoch video about him and other Skeptics.

https://archive.org/download/youtube-sQvems\_m7wQ/My\_Fascist\_Friend\_and\_I\_React\_to\_Murdoch\_s\_Mouthy\_Buddha\_VIDEO-sQvems\_m7wQ.mp4

So thus far, all the skeptic figures who start going against the Alt-Right either self-destruct or get red-pilled to the point where they can no longer function within the skeptic community.

That's because it's impossible to maintain a pretense of being "rational" and "objective" while debating people who actually have the facts and arguments on their side.

These skeptics have cut their teeth on debunking SJWs, who are basically mentally retarded. This gave them the idea that they're godlike paragons of intellect and knowledge, and that they'll blow away anyone who disagrees with their classical liberal ideology with similar ease.

In fact, we have much deeper thinkers on our side than they're likely to find anywhere else—not to mention more accurate facts. Unlike the SJW's, we welcome debate, because we're fully confident in winning based on the merits of our arguments. This is not something they're prepared for.

But I sure hope they keep trying.

Google Chief Eric Schmidt Just RESIGNED! Metooed????

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

You all thought I was exaggerating when after the Weinstein scandal broke I said "they've let these whores off the hook, given them permission to bite the hand that feeds, and they're going to bring down the entire system itself."

While I do use hyperbole for dramatic effect sometimes, this was not one of those times.

The head of the most powerful company in the world just resigned.

And this train hasn't even started rolling yet, bro. We're just now picking-up steam.

New York Post:

Eric Schmidt shocked Silicon Valley with a surprise announcement Thursday that he's stepping down as executive chairman of Google's parent company, Alphabet.

The 62-year-old tech tycoon—who, according to Google co-founder Sergey Brin, was originally tapped as CEO in 2001 to provide "adult supervision" for himself and Larry Page—said in a statement that he will remain at Alphabet as a "technical advisor."

"In recent years, I've been spending a lot of my time on science and technology issues, and philanthropy, and I plan to expand that work," Schmidt said.

One source close to Schmidt said the move would allow him to have a more "hands-on role" in developing artificial intelligence for defense.

Schmidt has also been spending more time on his foundation, which focuses on sustainability, the source said.

But the timing of Schmidt's sudden move—along with the fact that Alphabet waited three days to disclose that Schmidt had told the company he was stepping down, according to a filing—raised questions.

Schmidt is a known womanizer despite being married for 37 years to Wendy Schmidt, who said in 2012 they started living separate lives because she felt like “a piece of luggage” following him around the world.

News outlets have been sniffing around Schmidt’s former flames looking for a Harvey Weinstein-like bombshell, a source close to Schmidt told The Post. But sources say there’s nothing there.

In 2013, Page Six first reported that Schmidt spent $15 million on a private, no-doorman Manhattan penthouse in the Flatiron district. The abode was fully soundproofed and said to be a love nest to accommodate his multiple affairs.

Schmidt has been linked to women including TV presenter Kate Bohner, PR exec Marcy Simon, and Danya Perry, who is chief of litigation and deputy general counsel to billionaire Ronald Perelman.

Previously, Gawker reported that Google employees got irked in 2007 when Simon briefly got hired by Google’s Android team while she was in a relationship with Schmidt.

Elsewhere, however, Schmidt’s reported dalliances appear to have been with non-Google employees.

One source spotted Schmidt with glamorous Manhattan socialite Ulla Parker—ex-wife of Wall Street veteran Kevin Parker last summer.

Yes, Schmidt is a non-Jew and a kind of...alpha nerd...but the timing of this is extremely suspicious.

The act itself is extremely suspicious. Men who have accomplished what Schmidt has accomplished don’t resign at 62 with fully working brains and basically healthy bodies.

Unless he’s planning to run for President—and I don’t think he is doing that—then this move can only be due to some kind of a scandal. It could be a girl demanding he step down as part of a settlement to keep from going public.

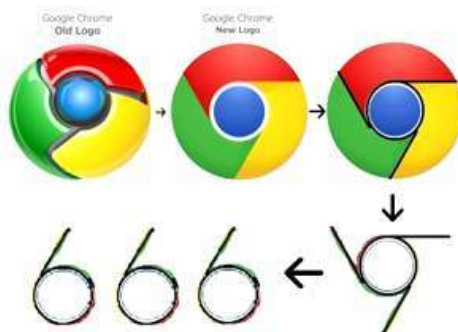

He’s rich af and estranged from his wife, and he’s known to be involved with a lot of women. All it takes is one to say “OH MY GOD HE TOUCHED MY LEG!!!!111”

Literally.

If a woman says you touched her leg, your career is now finished.

Schmidt is not stupid. And this might be part of some scheme. We’ll see. Maybe Google can hold it together.

But if Schmidt goes down, the whole company is going down (not literally—not “Weinstein Company” down at least—but it will inject a level of chaos that will set them back decades) —all of these incompetent whores that are frustrated working as affirmative action hires in the tech industry will go wild.

That had actually started up even before Weinstein with several lesser tech moguls—they were being taken down for sending sexy texts!

In the era of the SACRED AND HOLY metoo movement, one high profile accusation and resignation will trigger a chain reaction.

How ironic it is that the key to Jewish liberalism—the liberation of the woman from her kitchen home—is the trigger that brings down the whole system.

Right now, the only safe management strategy is to have your entire company run by women, and this is what investors are going to be demanding.

The problem is, women cannot even drive cars correctly—they have zero ability to run multinational corporations.

Marissa Mayer, Carly Fiorina, Ellen Pao—women destroy companies when they are installed as affirmative action CEOs.

Female failure, like brown person failure, is alleged to be part of a conspiracy. It doesn’t matter if they believe that when their company fails, however. All that matters is that the company failed. Capitalism is not compatible with Marxist social theory.

And here’s the thing: China, Korea and Russia are not going to have metoo movements—just like they aren’t going to bring in tens of millions of third world brown people to feed off of them and murder people on the streets.

The Western ZOG machine is crippling itself.

And it is very enjoyable to watch.

Hoax Lawsuit Against Trump Dismissed!

Adrian Sol

Daily Stormer

December 22, 2017

They’ll have to do more than stupid hoax lawsuits if they want to catch Trump. A better plan would be to travel to an alternate universe, capture a crappier version of Trump and then swap them. You know, a basic bitch plan with a chance of success.

The Jews have been attacking Trump from every front they could find an angle on. They’ve sent lying sluts after him. They’ve attacked his family. They blocked all his moves with Hawaiian judges. And of course, the Jewish specialty, the spurious lawsuits.

But all of these things are in vain.

The Trump yet goes unstumped.

Washington Post:

A federal judge dismissed a lawsuit Thursday alleging that President Trump violated the Constitution's emoluments clause because his hotels and restaurants do business with foreign governments while he is in office.

"His Hotels."

He already relinquished control of his business to his family. This is nonsense. If the only people qualified to be President are the ones who own no property and have no interests whatsoever which could be served by the policies they establish, then why not make hobos into politicians?

This guy will have no conflicts of interest. He might make crack legal though.

This is exactly the opposite of what the founding fathers intended. They made land owners the only people who could vote, precisely because they have a stake in the country.

Donald Trump has a massive stake in the country, because he owns a lot of land, buildings and other assets. It's in his best interest to make sure the country is run properly, unlike the previous monkey President, who wanted America to burn to the ground because of racism or whatever.

The plaintiffs argued that because Trump properties rent out hotel rooms and meeting spaces to other governments, the president was violating a constitutional provision that bans the acceptance of foreign emoluments, or gifts from foreign powers.

Seems legit.

But Judge George B. Daniels of the Southern District of New York ruled that the plaintiffs, led by the government watchdog group Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington (CREW), lacked standing to bring such a case, saying it was up to Congress to prevent the president from accepting emoluments.

CREW said it plans to appeal the verdict.

"As the only political branch with the power to consent to violations of the Foreign Emoluments Clause, Congress is the appropriate body to determine whether, and to what extent, Defendant's conduct unlawfully infringes on that power," Daniels wrote in his ruling.

The suit was one of the most high-profile efforts to take aim at Trump's decision to hold onto his hotel and golf-course business while in the White House. However, the president faces similar suits: one filed by a group of congressional Democrats and another filed by the attorneys general of Maryland and the District.

Yeah they'll just keep coming at him. They know these suits can't bring him down ultimately, but they'll still go at it out of pure spite. Maybe they also think this can be a "death by a thousand cuts" scenario or something.

But this harassment is sure to go on, until Trump finally does the right thing and places his enemies in camps—where they belong.

Australia Peace Trucker was Afghan Refugee – Motive Remains a Mystery to Media and Authorities

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer

Video Link

What could possibly drive an Afghani refugee to drive a truck into a crowd of non-Moslems?

The media surely doesn't know.

And neither do the Australian authorities.

In fact, it may forever remain an eternal mystery.

CNN:

The driver of an SUV that plowed into a crowd of pedestrians in Melbourne has been released from hospital into police custody as officers investigate the motive for the attack.

The 32-year-old suspect was arrested Thursday after slamming a white SUV into a crowd of people on Flinders Street just before 5 p.m. local time, sending people flying into the air.

Nine of the 18 people injured were foreign nationals from South Korea, China, Italy, India, Venezuela, Ireland and New Zealand, Victoria Police said Friday. The youngest victim was a four-year-old South Korean boy who is now in a stable condition after suffering head injuries.

Three of the injured remain in a critical condition.

Victoria Police said Thursday the incident was a "deliberate act" but said they hadn't established any link to terrorism.

Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull on Friday called it a "despicable and cowardly act" and a "deeply shocking crime."

The suspect was an Australian citizen of Afghan descent, who had a history of mental illness and drug use. Turnbull said he arrived in Australia through a refugee program.

“He came to Australia as a refugee. He did not come with a people smuggler, he came through the appropriate refugee, the normal refugee, programs.”

The Prime Minister also stressed that no link had been found between the suspect and any terror organization.

“I want to emphasize because investigations are continuing, apart from that statement, there are no known links to any political issues or any, certainly any links to extremist groups,” he said.

Yes.

And the only way he would commit a terrorist act is if some group “radicalized” him against his will.

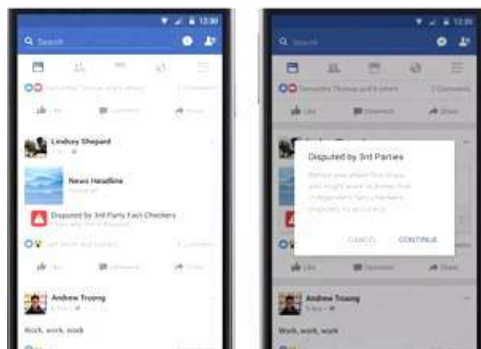

Sure, the Koran says that anyone who kills infidels automatically gets a free pass to 72 virgins paradise—but come on, guys, it’s 2017. No one believes that sort of thing anymore. Because of science and so on.

Probably the actual cause here is “mental health.”

Facebook’s “Fake News” Flag Made Stories More Believable

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

Flagging so-called “fake news” stories was an attempt by Facebook to socially engineer their users into accepting Jewish propaganda.

Facebook’s attempt to combat “fake news” has backfired in a big way. They have been forced to eliminate flags alerting users of “fake news” because the flags were giving more credibility to the so-called “fake news” stories.

Telegraph:

Facebook is getting rid of its fake news red flags because they were making fabricated media reports appear more believable to its users.

The social network began showing “disputed” warnings next to articles in December to alert people that third party fact-checking websites deemed them misleading.

It will now show a selection of “related articles” next to offending stories instead. These will give more context and could help people learn the facts surrounding a situation through reputable media publications.

The U-turn was prompted by research suggesting users would actually believe fake news even if it was flagged as incorrect or a misleading.

This flagging of stories was a cynical attempt by Facebook to manipulate their user base into only believing stories from pre-approved Jew media operations. What they didn’t understand is that the Jew media has discredited themselves to such a point that many do not believe anything they say. This by default makes stories cited as “fake news” much more believable.

The Jew media destroyed all of their credibility by pushing lie after lie to try and get Hillary Clinton elected President in 2016. They have further buried themselves with their embarrassing coverage of all this kook-tier Russia conspiracy nonsense.

There’s a reason why this site and others like it have substantial audiences. The Jew media will never provide the full unfiltered truth about anything. Their unwillingness to do this is the primary reason why media operations outside of their sphere have thrived.

The evil Jews Mark Zuckerberg and Sheryl Sandberg admittedly conduct social engineering experiments on people. This is pretty far from being OK!

What’s really insane is how Facebook has been attempting to socially engineer their users what to think. A real social media site would never engage in such chicanery. The site should only be a means for people to communicate and exchange ideas. Nothing more and nothing less.

Of course, Facebook is run by Jews like Mark Zuckerberg and Sheryl Sandberg so they have a slightly different idea of what is morally acceptable. They seem to think that it’s perfectly fine to use Facebook as a means to perform various sociological and psychological experiments on people. It’s really quite sick when you think about it.

Jihadi Santa Claus Army Fights the Evil Jew Land Thieves!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

Well.
This makes me like Palestinians a little bit more.
RT:

Palestinian protesters wearing Santa Claus costumes clashed with Israeli forces, which used stun grenades and brute force against the crowd in Bethlehem.

Ruptly footage shows protesters waving Palestinian flags and joyfully ringing bells in the name of peace during the holiday season. Some held signs that read "All we want for Christmas is Jerusalem and Justice" and "Hey Donald! The power of justice will trump your bullying." The demonstrators marched towards the northern entrance of the West Bank barrier on the outskirts of the city, where they came across Israeli border police.

Soldiers tried to force protesters out of the area, with some seen arguing with civilians or pushing them away. After scuffles broke out between the two sides, Israeli forces deployed tear gas to disperse the crowd.

Philippines: Davao Mall Burns Up, Killing Dozens (Terrorism???)

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

Yes, fires are not necessarily unusual in the Philippines or any other third world country.

However, I have never heard of a Filipino mall just burning the hell up and killing dozens of people. That is something that is unusual. And the fact that it is in Davao—the home of President Rody Duterte, and the number one spot in the country for Islamic terrorist attacks—makes it extremely suspicious.

BBC:

At least 37 people are feared to have died in a fire that tore through a shopping mall in the southern Philippine city of Davao, local officials say.

Firefighters battled for hours to extinguish the blaze that started on the third floor and spread to the floor above, trapping call centre employees.

Their chances of survival were "zero", Davao's Vice-Mayor Paolo Duterte said.

President Rodrigo Duterte, the vice-mayor's father, visited the scene.

President Duterte, a Davao native, met families of the missing outside the burning NCCC mall.

The cause of the fire, which began on Saturday morning, is being investigated.

The mall's marketing manager, Janna Abdullah Mutalib, said the blaze started on the third floor, where clothes, appliances and furniture were sold, the Philippines Star website reports.

Davao lies about 800km (500 miles) south-east of the capital Manila.

I would be surprised if this was an accident.

There has been ongoing fighting with ZOG-backed ISIS fighters on the island of Mindanao.

Apparently, no Moslem group has claimed the fire as an attack, so a coincidence is possible. But it would be quite a coincidence.

I have been in the mall many times and it is one of the more up-scale malls in the city. It is also on a major highway some distance outside of the center of the city, which is generally not especially crowded, and thus it shouldn't have been hard to get firefighters in quickly if this was a minor accidental fire.

Also, if it had been an accident, the entire mall would have been chattering rumors about the source of it. And that is not being reported.

Germany and France Call for Peace in The Ukraine

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 24, 2017

The EU played a central role in creating the conflict in the Ukraine, now they're backing down as they witness the monster they've unleashed.

AP:

German Chancellor Angela Merkel and French President Emmanuel Macron are urging both sides in eastern Ukraine to live up to cease-fire agreements amid a recent upswing in clashes between Russia-backed separatists and Ukrainian forces.

Merkel and Macron issued a joint statement Saturday urging combatants to observe the Minsk agreements aimed at defusing the conflict. Those provisions include the withdrawal of heavy weapons such as tanks and rocket launchers from the front-line area and an exchange of prisoners.

The two leaders also urged the return of Russian military officers to a joint coordination center that plays a role in supporting observers from the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The US has agreed to arm the Ukraine. So we'll see how that turns out.

There is no military solution to the problem. I agree with Germany and France on that. The only plausible solution is secession.

Right now, Western Ukraine is doing to Eastern Ukraine the exact thing that Kiev accused Moscow of doing to them. So there is zero room to make this into some kind of morality argument, and it has to simply be able a quick and peaceful resolution of the issue.

And the obvious one is the only one. And the West has the ability to force that.

The only reason to not do it is to agitate Russia further. It isn't like the East of the Ukraine is super valuable for some larger geo-strategic goals. It is only good for harassment of Russia.

Italy: AMBULANCE OF DEATH Driver was Killing People to Get Money from Funeral Home Referrals

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

This is certainly a weird story...
CBS News:

Police in Italy have arrested an ambulance worker on suspicion of murdering people to earn money for a funeral parlour with alleged links to the mafia, CBS News partner BBC News reported.

Local Italian media were referring to the case as the "ambulances of death" scandal, as the worker was accused of injecting air into the veins of patients while they were being transported in an ambulance, causing them to die of an embolism, the BBC said.

The 42-year-old suspect was then accused of recommending a funeral company with alleged links to the Sicilian mafia to the families of the victims, and gaining a commission for each referral.

What is going on here even?

I mean, you would have to enjoy murder in order to be engaged in this sort of thing. It is one thing to be an assassin and get tens of thousands of dollars per hit—and to know who you were killing and for what reason—but to just be killing random people for what I can only assume is a few hundred dollars for a referral, you'd have to have the psychology of a serial killer.

But I have never heard of a serial killer also getting money from his acts. They usually tend to consider the killing something sacred and religious or otherwise very deeply personal.

Of course, all of that is only something you need to think about if the killer is white. If it's a brown person, sure, they would just randomly murder people for a few hundred bucks a pop and think nothing of it.

"There's a War Coming"

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

Well. Here's this.
Fox News:

A Marine Corps commandant on Thursday warned U.S. troops stationed in Norway to be prepared for a coming war.

"I hope I'm wrong, but there's a war coming," Gen. Robert Neller told them. "You're in a fight here, an informational fight, a political fight, by your presence."

Neller pointed to the near future possibility of Russia and the Pacific theater being the next major areas of conflict.

Sgt. Maj. Ronald Green sounded a similar tone.

"Just remember why you're here," Green said. "They're watching. Just like you watch them, they watch you. We've got 300 Marines up here; we could go from 300 to 3,000 overnight. We could raise the bar."

The warnings came a day before Defense Secretary Jim Mattis told troops at Fort Bragg, N.C., that "storm clouds are gathering" over the Korean Peninsula.

I think you all should really bask in 2018.

It is going to be a glorious year.

And you should get all the enjoyment you can out of it.

Because in 2019, there is going to be a massive global war.

Trump can't save us from that. He doesn't have that power as a single man. So far, he's done very good on the domestic front but shown an inability to do much of anything on the geopolitical front, other than little tricks like picking the timing of the Jerusalem embassy declaration.

But in fact, the war is needed. It will be a cleansing.

This is going to be the big one.

It will last a long time. And then everything will be different.

Boris Johnson Goes to Russia, Says Russia Isn't Doing Anything Wrong

Well I'll be gosh-darned.
RT:

UK Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson has met with Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov in Moscow. He is the first British foreign secretary to visit Russia in five years, amid strained relations between the two countries.

During the joint news conference with his Russian counterpart, Johnson said that he is "a committed Russophile," despite the fact that Russia and the UK are going through a "very difficult patch" in their relations.

Lavrov said he trusts Johnson and admitted he had seen "no hostility" and called the "friendly" nature of the talks helpful.

The two nations have fallen out over a range of issues, including the Ukrainian crisis and the Syrian war.

Johnson and Lavrov have been expected to discuss UK-Russia ties, as well as international issues, cooperation on Syria, and the North Korean crisis, among other things.

You know, I like Boris.

I think most people probably do.

I do not, however, believe that he will be any better than Theresa May when he assumes his position as PM.

They are putting a whole lot of effort into making it seem like he will be, but he is clearly and absolutely a part of the same clique and simply playing the role of populist.

Or maybe he believes some of it. Who knows. He probably believes it a little bit, at least.

But I can pretty well guarantee you that he's going to be a massive, massive disappointment, that all of these positions he's taken in this hype-fest before he becomes PM are going to be out the window in a matter of weeks.

He is doing pro-Brexit, pro-Russia and anti-immigrant stuff because the establishment knows that this is what the people actually want.

I don't usually make hard predictions but I'm going to make one now: Boris Johnson as PM will just be a less repulsive version of Theresa May. It will start out good, with a lot of populist talk, and that will go away quickly.

Oy Vey, The Roningya Genocide is Like Another Holocaust, May Goyim

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 21, 2017

Does this photograph not disprove the theory that "all life is precious"?

Here's a shocker for ya.
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette:

I am a Jewish woman who is very aware of the tragedy of the Holocaust. I continue to pray for the millions of Jews, Gypsies and handicapped people who lost their lives for no reason other than "people" didn't like them. And always, at the end of the prayer, we say "Never again!" and now it is ... "Again."

What is being done to the Rohingya people? Many in the world are calling it genocide. Rex Tillerson, our secretary of state, is calling it "ethnic cleansing." I, for one, call it a holocaust! Whatever it is called, what is the world doing for these people?

In speaking of the Holocaust, we say, "If only we had known." Now, with the Rohingya people, we know. Will the world again close its eyes?

JANICE KEILLY
Bethel Park

That kike letter follows an AP report claiming that there was just a massacre in Myanmar.

AP:

For six hours he hid in an upstairs room, listening to the crackle of gunfire and the screams of people being slaughtered outside his Myanmar home.

With every footstep that drew near, every cry that pierced the air, 52-year-old Bodru Duza braced for the soldiers to find him, to kill him like all the others who had fled to his compound that morning seeking a safe place to shelter. They were being blindfolded and bound, marched away in small groups, then butchered and shot as they begged for their lives.

What had started out as a quiet Sunday in northwestern Myanmar had spiraled into an incomprehensible hell—one of the bloodiest massacres reported in the South-east Asian nation since government forces launched a vicious campaign to drive out the country's Rohingya minority in late August.

By the time it was over, there was so much blood on the ground, it had pooled into long rivulets across the uneven earth, among bits of human flesh and the fragments of shattered skulls.

When Duza finally dared to emerge from his hiding place, he wondered how anyone could have survived.

The compound he grew up in was now consumed by an ethereal silence. His wife, daughter, and five young sons were nowhere to be seen. And as he crept toward a backdoor to escape, he stumbled upon the corpse of an unknown boy sprawled on the floor.

"Oh Allah!" he thought. "What have they done to us? What have they done to my family?"

You can go read the whole long thing if you like, or you can just take my word for it that it is all just "eye-witness accounts" with no actual evidence.

Of course, I don't care if they are slaughtering the Rohingya. In fact, I care if they're not.

These people deserve to be wiped out.

What is the argument for not doing that? How can you look at these "people" and think they deserve to exist?

Not only have they produced nothing—living as parasites off of the Burmese—but they are terrorists.

Why would you shed a tear over this?

Is it just beyond imagination for people to say "yes, the world would be a better place if these people didn't exist"?

This is what I tell you people about involving women in public life. A man, even if he feels sad about it, can accept on logic the obvious reality of a cost-benefit analysis of a race of inbred mutant beggar terrorists, while a woman will just go purely on feelings. That feminine perspective has invaded our entire culture and way of thinking, with feminine men rising and taking on this concept that "all life is sacred."

Sanctioning Myanmar for cleansing their lands of this vicious parasite is the same concept as banning the abortion of retards.

These feminine inclinations are not something that you can base a real system of morality on and they certainly are not something you can base a civilization on.

Jews know this, which is why they pushed it in the first place.

As Israel slaughters their own brown neighbors whose land they stole, they are playing global morality police in Myanmar.

Ynet:

The Israeli Foreign Ministry established clandestine contact with Bangladesh—a Muslim country without any diplomatic ties with Jerusalem—to offer a significant humanitarian aid package for the hundreds of thousands of Muslim refugees from the Rohingya minority who fled to the country for fear of the Myanmar (former Burma) military.

Bangladesh expressed gratitude to Israel for the offer, but informed it that it cannot accept aid due to the sensitivity involved and the political ramifications that could ensue.

The Israeli foreign Ministry is reportedly exploring other routes through which to provide humanitarian assistance to the Rohingya refugees, who are still languishing in Myanmar in camps run by the UN or other international organizations.

Why would Israel care about brown Moslems dying thousands of miles away while they kill brown Moslems living next to them?

Clearly, the only reason they would pretend to care would be to manipulate the global situation.

The Jews are pushing for a Western military intervention in Myanmar. Which would be problematic on a number of levels, the most severe level being that the country is a close ally of China. So we're talking about a Vietnam Part Two situation.

Right now, I doubt that this will actually happen. But the Jews will push for things regardless if they are plausible, because they also make money doing it.

Metoo Marches On: Theresa May Fires #1 Minister for Porn and Harassment!

Andrew Anglin

December 21, 2017

Grope her? I hardly fondled her!
Another one goes down!

The headlines are all about the pornography on his computer, but the actual reason for the firing is the #metoo accusation.

CNN:

British Prime Minister Theresa May fired her closest political ally on Wednesday he was found to have breached the UK's ministerial code of conduct.

An investigation by the UK Cabinet Office found that Damian Green's denials that pornographic material was found on his office computer were "inaccurate and misleading."

Police found thousands of thumb-nail pornographic images on the computer during a raid in 2008 aimed at finding the source of government leaks, a former Scotland Yard detective involved in the case said. None of it was deemed to be illegal.

Green was also accused by journalist and former Conservative party activist Kate Maltby of making unwanted advances towards her during a meeting in 2015.

The Cabinet Office report said what while it was "not possible to reach a definitive conclusion on the appropriateness of Mr Green's behavior with Kate Maltby in early 2015, the investigation found Maltby's account to be plausible.

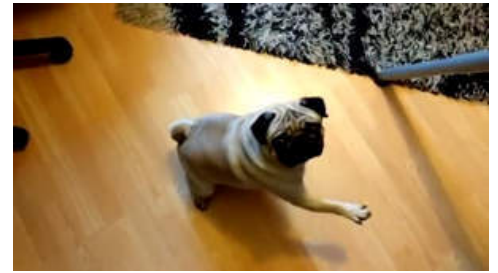

Metoo is the revolution against the system by the system itself and it is the greatest thing that ever could have happened.

Soon, the entire male population of governments, the media and the entertainment industry will be cleansed. There will only be women employees, and without men to compete with, they will stop working completely. Everything will shut down as women sit around gossiping about each other, eating snacks and binge-watching Netflix.

When this happens, we will just be able to setup our own systems right alongside the now non-functioning systems controlled by dirty sluts and gossiping old hags.

This was always bound to happen, because the liberal Jewish system is based entirely on lies. Such a system cannot sustain itself indefinitely. The contradictions become too much.

I salute all of the stupid whores who are accusing the men who brought them out of their kitchen-dwellings of groping.

It's as cute as puppies that you stupid whores think you can run this bitch without your male enablers.

But it's going to be even cuter when white men in black ski masks come to drag you back to the kitchen—and you don't have a single defender, because you accused them all of groping.

And so you're all just like: frumpy face.

Islam is a religion of BIG TRUCKS!

WATCH OUT!

Fox News:

Police in Melbourne, Australia, say they have arrested the driver and one other person Thursday after a white SUV deliberately plowed into a crowd of pedestrians, injuring at least 14 people.

Police said at a news conference that they believe it was “a deliberate act,” but that they do not know the motivation behind the attack.

Sky News Australia reported that driver was of Middle Eastern appearance.

After the white Suzuki SUV crashed into a bollard, a steel safety post meant to insure pedestrian safety, police wrestled down and cuffed the driver around 4:40 p.m. local time., Sky News said.

Sky News said a witness told radio station 3AW that she heard screams and saw “people flying everywhere.”

“We could hear this noise, as we looked left, we saw this white car, it just mowed everybody down,” she said.

Media reports say 13 people have been taken to hospitals, including a pre-school-aged child in serious condition with head injuries. Police say several of the injured were in critical condition.

Why were two arrested?

Was the other the passenger?

What was he doing? Sitting in the seat next to the driver and saying “GO MUHAMMED GOGOGOGO”?

This is not very efficient terrorism.

It would have been a much better allocation of labor to have both terrorists driving separate cars.

But wow these guys didn't even kill anyone wow not very good terrorists Allah is smdh.

I do remember a time when this would have been a major story even though no one died. Around 2014ish.

But nowadays, it's hardly worth reporting.

With warm Gluhwein, and dead bodies lying,

In the snow, after the death trucks have come through.

Germany is famous for its Christmas markets where charming stalls offer their guests the traditional delights of mulled wine and potato fritters. But in newly diversified Germany, other options are now available too. When celebrating Christ's birth, you never know when you might feel the sudden urge to convert to Islam, or find out more about it. Thankfully, that option has now been thoughtfully provided at Rudesheim Christmas market.

Not everyone is happy about it, though. Apparently, the event organiser, Peter Rehwald has been subjected to a tirade of insults from unhappy locals. Tempers are running so high that the mayor now fears for the security of the market. The Muslims running the stand, from the Ahmadiyya community, often described as the “good Muslims”, have been asked to voluntarily discontinue their participation. They are unapologetic, however, and have so far refused.

Jewish Liars Accuse Hezbollah of Smuggling Drugs Into America

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

A “scoop” written by Zionist Jew Josh Meyer for Politico has been making the rounds in conservative press lately. The article claims that Hezbollah teamed up with Mexican drug cartels to smuggle $1 billion dollars worth of cocaine into the United States through Venezuela, and the Obama administration let them do it.

There are even implications that other targets of Jew ire like Venezuela, Vladimir Putin, etc are involved!

I was disappointed when Tucker Carlson—who was won the trust of every day Americans with his honest and useful reporting—gave this neo-con kike propaganda an amplifier and even defended it.

Video Link

Carlson is giving this hoax a lot of air time. Just a few days ago he had some think-tank spook on claiming that Hezbollah not only is guilty of this, but was behind the AMIA bombing in Argentina. The conspiracy theory that Hezbollah was behind the attack in Buenos Aires—and it was “covered up”—is Infowars-tier crap.

But don't dismiss the power of this lie just yet. As we all know, heartland America is currently suffering under a massive drug epidemic. It just so happens that Israel needs war-weary white people to get ready to fight Hezbollah for them in Syria and Lebanon. Put Jew and Jew together!

Fake news has caused wars before. The New York Times' Jewish reporter's fake story about Iraq's WMDs caused a catastrophe where a million people died and a whole generation of American men were scarred for life.

Former Official: Obama Admin 'Systematically Disbanded' Units Investigating Iran's Terrorism Financing Networks

Rep. Ed Royce: 'Zeal for the deal' at any cost drove decision

BY Susan Crabtree
June 8, 2017 6:00 am

The Obama administration “systematically disbanded” law enforcement investigative units across the federal government focused on disrupting Iranian, Syrian, and Venezuelan terrorism financing networks out of concern the work could cause friction with Iranian officials and scuttle the nuclear deal with Iran, according to a former U.S. official who spent decades dismantling terrorist financial networks.

David Asher, who previously served as an advisor to Gen. John Allen at the Defense and State Departments, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday that top officials across several key law enforcement and intelligence agencies in the Obama administration “systematically disbanded” law enforcement activities targeting the terrorism financing operations of Iran, Hezbollah, and Venezuela in the lead-up to and during the nuclear negotiations with Tehran.

“Senior leadership, presiding, directing, and overseeing various sections [of these agencies] and portions of the U.S. intelligence community systematically disbanded any internal or external stakeholder action that threatened to derail the administration’s policy agenda focused on Iran,” he testified.

Asher now serves on the board of directors of the Foundation for Defense of Democracies’ Center on Sanctions and Risk Finance and is an adjunct fellow at the Center for New American Security, two national security think tanks.

He attributed the motivation for decisions to dismantle the investigative units to “concerns about interfering with the Iran deal,” a reference to the nuclear deal forged between the U.S., five other world powers, and Iran during the final years of the Obama administration.

As a result, “several top cops” retired and the U.S. government lost their years of expertise.

As we now know, the Jews behind the Washington Free Beacon (Paul Singer is also its main benefactor) are believed to be the ones who financed the Trump “Russia dossier” forgery!

So you tell me what is more likely:

A) A conspiracy between Los Zetas drug cartel and Hezbollah enabled by Vladimir Putin, Iran and Venezuela with the quiet support of the US government to fill America with billions worth of drugs?

or

B) A bunch of filthy Jew liars drumming up war propaganda? Just for the record, before the nuclear deal the US had no qualms illegally confiscating $150 billion dollars worth of Iranian assets.

Not to mention the fact that Hezbollah wouldn't be dumb to organize anything with the Mexican cartels on the US border. A mouse doesn't fart without the CIA knowing about it down there, no matter what they want you to think. Narco-trafficking is something that is facilitated by the US government because it gets a cut and uses the money to fund unsavory activities all over the world. The full-extent of this relationship is unknown, but it's basically an open secret.

In the end, it's Jews and the US government itself who are killing white America with drugs.

And now these very entities are planting fake stories in the press to convince you to die in another Middle Eastern war.

Black Jew Arrested in Israel Then Deported to Random African Country

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

Jews love to point at negroes who practice Judaism whenever someone presses them about their hate.

But how do Jews actually treat their black “co-religionists” when they want to visit the Wailing Wall?

Simple: they arrest them at the airport then deport them to a random African country!

Times of Israel:

A Kenyan Jewish leader who arrived in Israel on Monday night was denied entry into the country by the Interior Ministry and deported to Ethiopia.

The rejection by Israeli authorities of Yehudah Kimani—who had come to the Jewish state for a three-week study program—was seen by activists as part of the ongoing discrimination by Israel against Jews from emerging communities around the world.

But when Kimani arrived at Ben Gurion Airport late Monday night, officials at the passport check said his visa was not valid. Kimani was placed in a holding area and deported on the next flight to Ethiopia.

"They just told me to go back, I feel like I'm not even a human," Kimani said from the Addis Ababa airport.

You'd think that with Jews being such a small humanitarian superpower pushing for unlimited African refugees in our countries, a whole nation of compassionate Jews would look like the "It's a Small World" ride at Disney World?

Instead, when Jews have a state for and by Jews, they snatch invited negro guests right at the checkpoint, then force them to get on the first plane back to Africa!

Tikkun Olam!

Duterte Says Drug Addicts Can't Rape Beautiful Women Anymore, Turning to Infants

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

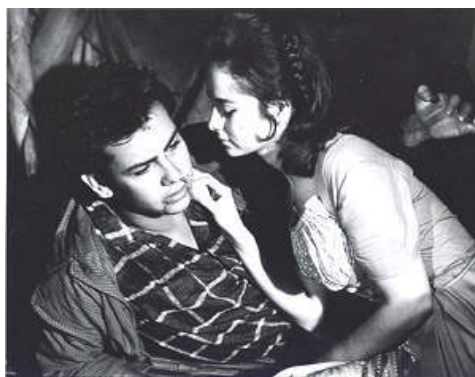

Let's hope these statements are part of a run-up to another round of slaughter on the streets of Manila.

RT:

Philippines President Rodrigo Duterte has shared his insights on the destructive effect of drugs, providing a contentious example of addicts raping infants in "modern times" instead of "beautiful women" as they used to.

Duterte's controversial comments were delivered at his presidential palace, addressing senior government officials and legislators. The Philippines strongman shared his thoughts on the differences between drug addicts then and now. He emphasized the importance to fight modern drugs as they lead to a degradation he "cannot imagine."

"And you know what? May I be forgiven by Maggie dela Riva (Filipina movie actress). During our time, the rape victims were beautiful," the president said in a mix of English and Filipino, as quoted by the Rappler news outlet.

Duterte was referring to the case of Riva who was abducted and gang-raped by four men in 1967. While one of the perpetrators died in prison from a drug overdose, the three others were executed by electric chair. In his time, Duterte said, drug-abusers targeted "beautiful women," who were "worth dying for."

In "modern times," however, the moral degradation of the addicts has reached a new low, "even one-month-old infants are being raped," the Philippines leader said, adding, that he "cannot imagine" such a heinous crime. Following the emotive example, Duterte underlined the importance of eradicating shabu—South East Asia slang term for methamphetamine.

"If you make three million of my country as slaves to a chemical called shabu, you will really make me feel bad. And shabu, one of the immediate and long-term use, shrinks the brain of a person," the president said, as quoted by the PhilStar newspaper.

Duterte has long been under fire for alleged extrajudicial killings and human-rights violations in his no-holds-barred war on drugs. Over 7,000 suspected drug dealers and users have been killed by law enforcement and "unidentified gunmen" in the country-wide crackdown on drugs since July 2016.

Rody Duterte is one of the earth's only remaining GREAT MEN. And he is an inspiration to all of us.

If drug addicts are raping infants, he will deal with it.

The world is cheering on his mass exterminations, as we eagerly await the day when a similar program comes to our country and cleans out the filth.

There isn't any choice anymore. There is no going back.

We have to push forward into Dutertism.

It is the only viable path to a genocidal galactic empire.

Alien races will not simply be enslaved—they will be wiped from the faces of their own planets in order to make room for our artificial womb compounds, which we will use to continue breeding cloned super-soldiers to travel the galaxy exterminating absolutely everything as we establish the INFINITE ARYAN EMPIRE.

In the year 2170, a genocidal DOOMSHIP will be christened with the name of Rody Duterte.

EU Commission: Europe is Too White, Needs More Brown People

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

Without infinity brown people, Europe will not survive.

If there's one thing you can never have too much of, it's brown people. Each and every one of them bring so much to our society, that it makes us all immeasurably richer.

Conversely, White people are just a drain on society. They don't produce anything of value, and all live on government handouts.

This is why it makes perfect sense for the government of Europe to swap out their population for Africans and Arabs.

Breitbart:

Brussels has said that Europeans must accept mass migration from the third world as the “new norm”, warning that neither walls nor policies will allow any part of the EU to remain “homogenous and migration-free”.

How about machine-gun nests? I'm pretty sure that would do the trick.

Staffing them with Nazis isn't required, but recommended.

“It's time to face the truth. We cannot and will never be able to stop migration,” writes EU Commissioner for Migration Dimitris Avramopoulos, in a piece for POLITICO, published Monday entitled, “Europe's Migrants Are Here to Stay”.

You cannot stop migration—because you're spineless cucks. But we certainly could. I don't think anyone doubts that.

Border = patrolled

In it, the Eurocrat wrote “human mobility will increasingly define the 21st century”, and that mass migration is an issue Brussels has committed Europe to “for the long haul”, stating: “Migration is deeply intertwined with our policies on economics, trade, education and employment—to name just a few.”

Yes—by design, not necessity.

Pointing to migrants from the world's poorest countries who were granted refugee status in Europe, Avramopoulos made clear that Brussels sees asylum not as a way to offer temporary respite from war but instead as another method of permanently transplanting third world populations into EU nations.

“They have found safety in Europe, but we also need to make sure they find a home,” he writes of refugees, going on to insist that programming Europeans to welcome mass migration is “not only a moral imperative”, but “also an economic and social imperative for our aging continent—and one of the biggest challenges for the near future”.

Turning Europe into this is a “moral, economic and social imperative.” Because you didn't have enough babies, stupid goyim.

To this end, the Commission is working to “enhance legal channels for economic migration with a more ambitious Blue Card for highly skilled workers and kick-start targeted labour migration pilot projects in key third countries”, he notes.

The reality is that Europe could be cleansed of brown people in a few months at most, simply by making it illegal for these people to work or receive benefits. They would leave by themselves, and any riots could easily be handled by the military.

There is absolutely nothing pre-ordained or necessary about this invasion we're witnessing—it's a result of a deliberate policy to wipe out the native population. And this policy is the work of the Jews.

Did Kim Jong Un Hack the World?

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer

December 20, 2017

Kim Jong Un: Statesman, lover, diplomat, and 1337 h4x0r.

For those who don't remember, the WannaCry was a ransomware attack where infected computers would become locked, and their data could only be retrieved by sending the attackers a certain sum of bitcoin.

These types of attacks are notoriously hard, if not impossible to trace back to their perpetrators. Yet the world feels confident enough to blame the whole thing on poor old Kim Jong Un of Best Korea.

Washington Post:

President Donald Trump's administration on Tuesday publicly blamed North Korea for a "careless and reckless" ransomware attack that infected hundreds of thousands of computers worldwide in May and crippled parts of Britain's National Health Service.

Homeland security adviser Tom Bossert told reporters at a White House briefing that North Korea was directly responsible for the WannaCry ransomware attack and that Pyongyang will be held accountable for it.

Why do the Jews hate North Korea so much? I've noticed that whenever I see some "expert" on North Korea explain how awful it is, they're pretty much always Jews. Aren't North Koreans communists and non-Whites? You'd think the Jews would love them.

But as it turns out, there's more to this story...

Hmmm...

Interesting...

Ah.

As it turns out, North Korea is more of a fascist state based on the racial supremacy of their people. If this kind of mentality and political organization spreads to other Asian nations, it will make them permanently immune to Jew meddling.

This is why the Jews insist North Korea must be kept in an isolated and impoverished state.

"This was a careless and reckless attack. It affected individuals, industry, governments and the consequences were beyond economic. The computers affected badly in the U.K. in their health care system put lives at risk, not just money," Bossert said.

Bossert said the administration's finding of responsibility is based on evidence and confirmed by other private companies and foreign governments, including the United Kingdom, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and Japan. He said Microsoft traced the attack to cyber affiliates of the North Korean government.

The findings come as the U.S. has sought to pressure Kim Jong Un's government to end the pariah nation's nuclear and missile programs.

"North Korea has acted especially badly, largely unchecked, for more than a decade...its malicious behavior is growing more egregious. And stopping that malicious behavior starts with this step of accountability," he said.

How did they "trace" the attack? Any hacker worth his salt can fake the origin, either by using exploits developed and leaked by national security agencies of other countries, or by using networks of proxies to obscure his true location.

And we already know that our own intelligence services designed methods to fake attacks coming from our enemies—and that these are now available on the open internet. This was revealed by Wikileaks. So the reality is that we have no idea who really did WannaCry, and we'll probably never find out.

Though in the meantime, I choose to believe it was Putin himself.

Blaming them for it is only done in order to help put pressure on them, as bringing the North Koreans under control would definitely be perceived as a success for the Trump administration.

But if they take out North Korea, they should do it under valid reasons, not this fake hacking crap. For example, they could do it in order to ensure the continued existence of K-Pop, which everyone would support.

France: Train Strike Leads to Chimp-Out

Diversity Macht Frei
December 19, 2017

Watch out for the hate train

Last week, I mentioned that, in the context of diversity, a random event could ultimately lead to a civil war. Here we have an illustration of this principle in microcosm.

Short version: some brown people took a shortcut across a railway track and were struck by a train. One died; one is in a critical condition. A bunch of other brown people then rioted, started fires and attacked cars to protest against this. French law prohibits identifying their ethnicity so journalists typically use the euphemism “jeunes” [youths] to describe brown perps.

Around twenty youths caused damage and set fire to five cars on Saturday evening in the Saint-Maurice-Pellevoisin district in Lille, close to the scene of a train accident that caused the death of a young person, the prefecture announced. On Saturday evening, around 11 pm, “about twenty youths, in a very agitated state, staged a demonstration, there was damage, bins were set on fire and five vehicles torched,” a spokesperson for the Nord prefecture said to the Agence France-Presse on Sunday. “The fires were quickly contained and there was an arrest,” she added.

According to the prefecture and according to initial indications from the inquiry, four youths climbed a fence to take a shortcut and then walked on the rails. They were struck by a TER train travelling between Lille and Dunkerque, just over a kilometre from the Lille-Flandres station, not far from the Caulier subway station, in this working-class part of the Saint-Maurice-Pellevoisin district. A 20-year-old youth died on Saturday afternoon, another 18-year-old is in a critical condition, a third has been gravely injured but his life is not in danger. The fourth person injured was able to make it home on Saturday, according to the Lille emergency services.

Greece: Migrant Smuggler Sentenced to 1489 Years in Prison!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 19, 2017

They were going to give him 1488 years.

Then they added one for good measure.

RT:

A smuggler in has been sentenced to 1,489 years in prison for bringing Iraqi and Syrian refugees into Greece from Turkey. He is one of 23 people sentenced for smuggling on Monday.

The Thessaloniki court found the 54-year-old Greek man guilty of running a smuggling ring that saw hundreds of refugees trafficked into Europe from Turkey between 2015 and 2016, ifimerida reports.

Despite the more than 1,000-year sentence, Greek law states that the maximum prison term that can be served is 25 years. Many of the other sentences handed out were for between 200 and 300 years, EleftherosTypos reports.

The smugglers were rounded up as part of a July 2016 police operation. The indictment includes 46 cases of trafficking migrants, largely Iraqis and Syrians. The refugees paid the traffickers to bring them from parts of the Evros river, which they crossed by boat before being brought to Thessaloniki in trucks with special hiding places.

Once they made it to Thessaloniki, they would wait in fields before being taken by taxi to the police station to be registered, Seleco reports. Once they had been registered, they were taken to Edonmei and onwards to Central Europe.

Regrettably, prison terms won't stop these people.

Also, I'm not even sure a prison term is fair, since Merkel invited them to do this.

Shouldn't Merkel be doing the time?

Wouldn't you think that?

"Take your time, Frau Merkel."

Lebanon: British Feminist Diplomat Killed by Uber Driver!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 19, 2017

Yesterday, I mocked a British woman for getting raped and murdered in Lebanon.

I had assumed it was her local boyfriend who did the deed. Now it turns out it was an Uber driver.

So, I want to apologize to her and her family for mocking her death. Just joking.

This bitch should have been at home, in Britain, raising children—not gallivanting around the world in search of strange cock.

RT:

An Uber driver has reportedly admitted murdering a British diplomat in Lebanon. Rebecca Dykes' body was found on the side of a motorway near Beirut on Saturday, sparking a major police investigation.

According to Lebanon's NNA agency, officers raided a property in the early hours of Monday morning, resulting in the arrest of an Uber driver named only as Tarek H. He has reportedly admitted picking up the diplomat in his taxi before attempting to rape her and strangling her.

Police sources say Dykes, who was due to fly home for Christmas on Saturday, had been strangled. An initial post-mortem examination was conducted, but an official cause of death was not revealed. A second examination has been scheduled.

Local officials have confirmed claims she was raped, however this has not been verified.

Dykes, who had been working in Beirut since January 2017, had been at a going-away party for a colleague in the popular Gemmayzeh district of Beirut.

This is what happens when you "liberate" women.

They go on cock-crazy adventures in browntown and end up strangled to death and tossed to the side of the road.

And no: they don't have any ability to control their behavior. So you will say "oh, if you believe women don't have agency, then why do you mock them when they go on cock adventures and get murdered???"

The reason is this: because we have to bring back shame. They respond to shame. They reason they have gone off the rails on their insane quest for infinite brown cock is that we, as men, have stopped shaming them.

Evil Homosexual Ian McKellen Attacks Glorious Metoo Movement!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 19, 2017

So the homosexual is attacking sluts for sucking dicks to get jobs. How dare he?

RT:

One of Britain's most treasured actors has spoken out about the Hollywood sex scandal. Sir Ian McKellen told Oxford University students at a recent talk that women who offer sex in return for acting work are also to blame.

McKellen, known for playing King Lear, Gandalf and Magneto, started out as an actor in the 1960s when he claims offering sex for roles was rife. "People must be called out and it's sometimes very difficult for victims to do that," the six-time Laurence Olivier Award winner said.

"I hope we're going through a period that will help to eradicate it altogether. But from my own experience, when I was starting acting in the early Sixties, the director of the theatre I was working at showed me some photographs he got from women who were wanting jobs... some of them had at the bottom of their photograph "DRR" —directors' rights respected. In other words, if you give me a job, you can have sex with me.

“That was commonplace from people who proposed that they should be a victim. Madness. People have taken advantage of that and encouraged it and it absolutely will not do.”

McKellen also said he was concerned about the impact of wrongful accusations.

The thespian told students at a private talk at the Oxford Union in November that while he believes victims should come forward, some innocent individuals may be wrongfully accused as well.

Here’s the deal: the faggot McKellen is friends with the Jew twink lover and X-Men director Bryan Singer.

He is in photos at twink parties, which we now know had underage boys.

And then look at this:

And then look at this:

Oh, and here—here’s a picture with the pederast Singer and his homosexual friend McKellen with Brad Renfro, a child actor who died of a heroin overdose at 25, allegedly after having suffered sexual abuse in Hollywood:

They all worked on the anti-Nazi film “Apt Pupil” together.

McKellen is next, he knows he’s next and he’s lashing out at the sluts who created this situation.

But me? I love these stupid, filthy whores. They’re heroes.

I mean, obviously what McKellen is saying is technically true, and these women are all just prostitutes offering sex for fame and fortune.

But who cares?

Metoo is the greatest thing that has ever happened, period.

We are going to end up with a situation where the entire Jewish establishment—from the entertainment industry, to the news media, to the government—is run exclusively by women.

And then it will stop working completely, because women are incompetent as fuck.

Best.

Thing.

Ever.

Italy: Africans Block Road and Attack Cars, Police Protect Them

Video Link

When 5 African asylum seekers were denied refugee status, a group of African invaders decided to block the road (Via Emilia, near Milan) in protest. Police were sent and told to do nothing. In fact, they do more than nothing. They protect the Africans. When outraged Italians want to deal with the Africans, the police stop them. When Africans attack the cars, an obvious crime, the police do nothing.

The incident perfectly encapsulates the reality of modern Europe. The primary mission of our governmental authorities is to facilitate the invasion of our lands by alien peoples and to protect the invaders against such signs of indigenous resistance as may emerge.

A Lebanese police official says authorities have detained a man suspected in the killing a British woman who worked at the U.K. Embassy in Beirut.

The official says the suspect confessed that he had killed the woman whose body was found early on Saturday.

The official said on Monday that the murder was a "criminal act" and not politically motivated.

Britain's Foreign Office had confirmed the death of the embassy staffer, who worked for the Department for International Development. British media and friends identified her as Rebecca Dykes.

Earlier, a forensics official said she was strangled with a rope and that authorities were investigating whether she was also sexually assaulted.

nb4 "OH BUT SHE WAS JUST AN EMBASSY EMPLOYEE SHE DIDN'T DESERVE THIS."

Yeah. She signed up to go work in Lebanon because it was her childhood dream to work at an embassy. And this man who raped and killed her just found her randomly.

Myanmar Me a River: UN Once Again Attacking Daw Suu for "Genocide" Hoax!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

All of these Rohingya rats have the option of leaving the country.

This is not a "genocide," it is simply an "ethnic cleansing" of an invasive and parasitical alien population. There is no attempt to exterminate, simply to remove them to Bangladesh where they belong.

With the way the UN is talking about this, they're acting as though they want military action.

So, say a prayer of thanks that Hillary didn't win. Because you pretty much know for a fact she would have sent our troops to "liberate" the inbred swamp apes from Yellow Supremacy.

Reuters:

The top U.N. human rights official has said he would not be surprised if a court one day ruled that acts of genocide had been committed against the Rohingya Muslim minority in Myanmar, according to a television interview to be shown on Monday.

U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights Zeid Ra'ad al-Hussein told the BBC that attacks on the Rohingya had been "well thought out and planned" and he had asked Myanmar's leader Aung San Suu Kyi to do more to stop the military action.

She's not stopping it because she supports it. She has said as much.

But the UN can't admit that because they celebrated her as this great female icon. They should have known better than to believe feminism would work on nonwhite women.

Zeid has already called the campaign "a textbook example of ethnic cleansing" and asked rhetorically if anyone could rule out "elements of genocide", but his latest remarks put the case plainly, toughening his stance.

"The elements suggest you cannot rule out the possibility that acts of genocide have been committed," he said, according to excerpts of his interview provided in advance by the BBC.

"It's very hard to establish because the thresholds are high," he said. "But it wouldn't surprise me in the future if the court were to make such a finding on the basis of what we see."

Myanmar denies committing atrocities against the Rohingya and has previously rejected U.N. criticism for its "politicisation and partiality". The Myanmar military says the crackdown is a legitimate counter-insurgency operation.

Zeid said Myanmar's "flippant" response to the serious concerns of the international community made him fear the current crisis "could just be the opening phases of something much worse".

He told the BBC he feared jihadi groups could form in the huge refugee camps in Bangladesh and even launch attacks in Myanmar, perhaps targeting Buddhist temples there.

Yes, of course they will do terrorism.

They were already doing terrorism, which is why they are being removed.

You are making the argument for removal. No people deserves to have a foreign population in their country killing them. That is not the meaning of "human rights" — "lie down and die as you are bombed by Islamics."

And these people are not simply terrorists.

They are an inbred genetic waste product that only exists as a parasite on a surrounding society. The terrorism is just an expression of their genetic nature.

In every picture you see of them, they are doing that pained frown: this is a evolutionary strategy, this pitiful, suffering frown. It is designed to make people give them things for free out of pity.

Look at this picture of mothers and their children making the face:

It is biological.

Several different groups have this look, all originating from this part of Southeast Asia.

I've seen this look on the face of Badjao beggars in Philippines, who look exactly like Rohingya and are also Moslem:

And I've seen it in Romania on the faces of gypsy beggars, who look very similar and originate from South India:

The Rohingya should by rights be exterminated from the face of the earth, and Daw Suu is showing great restraint in not ordering that to happen.

Uber has Its Own James Bond-Tier Espionage Agency, Spied on Competitors and Politicians

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

You want a life of adventure, excitement and intrigue? Apply for a job at Uber today!

I had no idea Uber was being run like a James Bond-style shadowy international organization. They've got agents all over doing cloak and dagger shit to keep tabs on politicians, business rivals, trade unions and anyone else who might screw with their business.

Pretty cool, tbh.

It almost makes up for all their cucky shilling for DACA babies. But then again, the founder is a Canadian, so you can't expect that just because he's basically running a criminal taxi syndicate, he wouldn't also feel bad for brown people.

The Verge:

Last month, details emerged about a secretive unit within Uber dedicated to stealing trade secrets, surveilling competitors, using self-destructing messages, and dodging government regulators. The accusations came from a former member of Uber's security team, Ric Jacobs, whose 37-page letter detailing all of Uber's shady behavior was sent to Uber's management earlier this year. Prior to today, only snippets of the letter have been read aloud in court. Now, a redacted copy of the letter is public as part of the ongoing litigation between Uber and Waymo, the self-driving unit of Alphabet. And it's a doozy.

Self-destructing messages!
How do I apply for this?

The so-called "Jacobs letter" has become the latest twist in the high-profile case between two tech giants over the future of self-driving cars. Its incendiary content caps off a disastrous year for Uber, which has suffered a series of self-inflicted scandals that has upended its senior leadership and raised the prospect of criminal penalties.

At first glance, the Jacobs letter an incredibly detailed accounting of multiple unlawful actions by the ride-hail company. He alleges that Uber's secretive Strategic Services Group (SSG) "frequently engaged in fraud and theft, and employed third-party vendors to obtain unauthorized data or information." He also accuses Uber security officers of "hacking" and "destruction of evidence related to eavesdropping against opposition groups." And he says Uber's ex-CEO Travis Kalanick knew about a lot of it.

They've got hackers, too!

No good shadow organization lacks 1337 hackers.

Another Uber employee, Nicholas Gicinto, along with SSG, conducted "virtual operations impersonating protesters, Uber partner-drivers, and taxi operators."

Disguises and infiltration!

These Uber security employees went to great lengths to hide their surveillance activities from the authorities, Jacobs says. They used computers not purchased by Uber that ran on Mi-Fi devices, so the traffic wouldn't appear on Uber's network. They also used virtual public networks and "non-attributable architecture of contracted Amazon Web Services" to further conceal their efforts, Jacobs alleges. Who were they surveilling? Jacobs says SSG's targets included "politicians, regulators, law enforcement, taxi organizations, and labor unions in, at a minimum, the US."

Sounds like they've got pretty much everything covered.

"Nothing is outside our reach." - Uber

And then there was Uber's innocuously named Marketplace Analytics team. Jacobs says this group was responsible for "acquiring trade secrets, codebase, and competitive intelligence...from major ridesharing competitors globally." According to Jacobs, Marketplace Analytics impersonated riders and drivers on competitor platforms, hacked into competitor networks, and conducted unlawful wiretapping.

This stuff is pretty nuts. But I guess if you're going to be running a multinational corporation, this is the way to go. This whole thing is about a lawsuit between Alphabet (Google) and Uber, who are business competitors scrambling to be the first to bring self-driving cars to the market. There's no doubt that whatever corporation will win this race is going to make billions and acquire immense power.

Self-driving vehicles have huge potential to transform society. For example, if an AI is driving, speed limits may no longer need to be enforced, allowing much faster land transportation. Within cities, the cost of a taxi may come down to the point where it no longer makes sense to own your own car.

So it doesn't surprise me that these companies are doing all sorts of underhanded stuff to ensure they come out on top. I'd bet Google has a similar agency doing much the same, although better at not getting caught.

Putin Phones Trump, Thanks Him for Assistance Foiling Terrorist Attack in Russia

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

It's gonna happen sooner or later.

This is exactly as things should be. America and Russia cooperating to crack down on Moslem terrorists as a unified front. Not this nonsense confrontation that Jews and leftists are promoting.

You can be sure that if Hillary had been elected, we would have kept the intel for ourselves and Russians would have been killed in the attack.

Hopefully this is a step on the path to reconciliation between Russia and America.

Washington Post:

Russian President Vladimir Putin on Sunday phoned President Trump to thank him for a tip from the CIA that thwarted a terrorist attack being planned in St. Petersburg, the Kremlin said.

The unusual call—countries share intelligence all the time, but presidents rarely publicly thank one another about it—was confirmed by White House spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders.

Putin told Trump that the information provided by the CIA allowed Russian law enforcement agencies to track down and detain a group of suspects who were planning to bomb the centrally located Kazan Cathedral and other crowded parts of Russia's second-largest city.

Having this destroyed would have been quite the blow.

What the hell are these hajis doing targeting Christian cathedrals instead of attacking the Jews who stole their lands?

Are they stupid, cowardly, or both?

The Jew is laughing in your face, Muhammed, and all you do is whine. It's time to take action.

Putin asked Trump to pass along his gratitude to the CIA and the American intelligence agents who received the information, the Kremlin said. It said Putin also told Trump that "if Russian special services obtain any information on terrorist threats against the United States and its citizens, they will definitely and immediately pass it to American counterparts through partner channels.”

Yes, this is exactly the kind of co-operation we need.

If Russia and America team up, nothing can stop us. We can stamp out these Jihadis in a week.

It was the two presidents’ second conversation since Thursday, when they spoke after Putin’s annual four-hour televised news conference, during which the Russian leader mentioned the booming U.S. stock market as an example of Trump’s successes. The White House said Trump thanked Putin for remarks he made “acknowledging America’s strong economic performance.”

Putin said he doubted Trump would be able to improve relations between their two countries because the U.S. president was being held back by his political opposition and allegations of Russian interference in the 2016 U.S. election were being invented to raise doubts about Trump’s legitimacy.

The Russians know very well about the internal political game at play here. They understand that a true alliance won’t be possible until Trump wrestles control of the state away from the Jews and his other enemies.

But the time for that is coming. The people plotting to undermine the Trump regime are exposing their misdeeds to the public more and more, and popular anger is rising. The opportunity for a good swamp-draining is fast approaching.

I certainly want to believe...
The Hill:

The White House firmly denied a New York Times report on Saturday claiming that President Trump said that Haitian immigrants “all have AIDS,” among other inflammatory comments.

The Times reported that Trump lashed out at top aides and Cabinet officials in a June meeting in which he bemoaned the influx of immigrants despite his travel ban on Muslim-majority countries, which he said damaged the credibility of his vow to secure the border.

“General Kelly, General McMaster, Secretary Tillerson, Secretary Nielsen and all other senior staff actually in the meeting deny these outrageous claims and it's both sad and telling The New York Times would print the lies of their anonymous ‘sources’ anyway,” White House press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders said in a statement to the newspaper.

Six officials who attended or had knowledge of the meeting told the Times that Trump read from a list of the latest statistics on immigration since taking office in January.

Trump took issue with several nationalities of immigrants, including the 40,000 immigrants from Nigeria who he said would not “go back to their huts” once entering the U.S., two unnamed officials told the newspaper.

Of the two officials, one was reportedly present in the meeting, who briefed the other. The other officials recalled the Oval Office episode but said they did not remember the president using the words “huts” or “AIDS,” according to the Times, which conducted over three dozen interviews for its report.

I think it's safe to assume this is where Trump's head is, even if the actual statements themselves are just NYT fanfic.

California Fires Now Largest in History! BURN YOU FILTHY SODOMITES!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 23, 2017

There is a good chance the entire state will just completely burn up forever.

There is nothing that makes me happier than watching the evil rats of California get burned out like rats.

Fox News:

The blaze known as the Thomas fire in Southern California is now the largest in the state's recorded history, fire officials said Saturday evening.

The Thomas fire has scorched 273,400 acres, or about 427 square miles of coastal foothills and national forest.

That makes the Thomas fire 154 acres larger than the 2003 Cedar fire in San Diego that killed 15 people, officials said.

Thousands of firefighters and fleets of aircraft have been battling the Thomas blaze since Dec. 4. A firefighter and a woman fleeing the blaze died.

Days of unrelenting hot, gusty winds drive it through Ventura neighborhoods, incinerating entire blocks, and threatened the wealthy enclave of Montecito.

By Friday, however, humidity was higher, temperatures were cooler and the fire threat to homes in many areas eased. The fire continued to move slowly through forest but the blaze was 65 percent contained.

Fire officials said Saturday that any new growth in the Thomas fire will probably be attributed to controlled burns by firefighters, the Los Angeles Times reported.

You just simply cannot do this much man-on-man anal without angering GOD HIMSELF.

Jorge Ramos is Having a Bad Time Because People are Being Mean to Him

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

Jorge Ramos is sad, and feels that other people should feel sad for him because he feels so sad.

Newsbusters:

Nearly a year into the Trump presidency, Univision anchor Jorge Ramos says he's experiencing "the worst moment I've had in the 34 years I've been living in the United States."

"With Donald Trump there, I have never been treated so badly. I have never been insulted so much. We've never been attacked so much. They have never tried to run us out as much as now," Ramos vented in an interview with the Spanish radio network Cadena SER.

Ramos, who proclaimed himself "if not an enemy, an opponent" of Trump in the interview, complained about the massive blowback he has received since deciding to use his media platforms to openly oppose the choice of over 62 million American voters in last year's U.S. presidential election.

"Now the social media networks are terrible," Ramos told his Spanish radio interviewer, Javier del Pino. "Before if someone wanted to insult you, they had to do it in person or by sending you an anonymous letter. Now they do it through the social media networks and the daily insults—you can enter my Facebook or Twitter—and they are there all the time," lamented Ramos.

In the interview, Ramos continues to contend that Trump "was speaking about me" "he insulted me" along with the entire immigrant community in the U.S. on June 16, 2015 when during his presidential campaign announcement speech Trump slammed the lax border security that had permitted criminal elements from Mexico and other countries to illegally enter the United States.

"Donald Trump was blaming all of us for being rapists, criminals and drug traffickers," said Ramos of Trump. Throughout much of the interview, Ramos also recounts his infamous encounter with Trump during the summer of 2015, when he was kicked out of a Trump press conference for failing to wait for the candidate to call on him as a questioner, and was only allowed to return to the press conference after agreeing to wait his turn and be called upon by the candidate.

Discussing the encounter, Ramos accuses Trump of "violating the first amendment" of the U.S. Constitution. He also expressed continued optimism about the eventual outcome of his journalistic jihad against Trump. "In the end, Trump is going to lose and the racists are going to lose," Ramos assured his interviewer.

Yeah, Trump is "violating the First Amendment" by insulting the media.

While a conspiracy of tech giants and THE MEDIA ITSELF have conspired to silence my protected speech by stealing my domain—and then doing it 25 more times.

Jewish tech blog "The Verge" recently said that the fundamental principles of the internet had to end because of "Nazis."

That ideology grew into a set of business practices, codified by Section 230 of the Communications Decency Act. There were still crimes you could commit with just information (particularly context privacy), but 230 meant you could only blame the source of the information, not the networks that delivered it. At the same time, operators developed authentication and filtering methods to deal with basic problems like spam, but it was always an uphill fight, and fighting speech with speech was always the preferred option.

Persistent, targeted harassment has made that logic harder to defend, and the move to closed platforms like Facebook has scrambled the conversation even further. Abuse is everywhere, and left to their own devices, malicious users can easily make platforms unusable. Even contented speech advocates like Jilian C. York see the end goal as consistent principles and accountable systems on platforms, rather than a lack of moderation itself. And while there are lots of complaints about moderation on Facebook and Twitter, almost no one seems to think the companies should be taking a lighter touch.

The internet is still catching up to that logic. After white nationalists talked in Charlottesville this August, web providers realized they, too, were in the moderation business, dropping neo-Nazi sites in response to widespread public pressure. But outside easy victories (which are largely Nazi-related), there are still very few moderation principles everyone agrees on, and there's no higher authority to appeal to when disagreements happen. There's no law telling platforms how to moderate (such a law would violate the First Amendment), and no mechanisms for consensus or due process to take the law's place. More practically, nobody's good at it, and everyone is taking heat for it more or less continuously. With new legislation poised to chip away even more at Section 230, the problem is only getting more complex.

LEFT TO THEIR OWN DEVICES, MALICIOUS USERS CAN EASILY MAKE PLATFORMS UNUSABLE

Whine harder, Jorge.

This is not a good strategy.

No one likes a whiner.

Jorge Ramos is a little bitch.

He'd better man-up and strap in, because if he doesn't get metooed he's going down with the rest of the fake news metoo survivors when the entire fake news industrial complex implodes in on itself completely in 2018-19.

Metoo Beats Trump for #1 Story of 2017 Spot

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

You go gurl! Seriously, don't stop. Just keep going and going and going. We all support you, gurl.

The AP releases a "top stories of the year" list every year.

This year, Metoo beat Donald Trump.

And it deserved to. Donald Trump is one of the most important phenomena ever to occur, but Metoo is going to bring down an entire global system.

The Daily Stormer concurs with the AP—it is the most important story of the year.

AP:

1. Sexual misconduct: Scandals involving sexual misdeeds by prominent men are nothing new in America, but there's never been anything remotely like the deluge of allegations unleashed this year by women who were emboldened to speak out by the accusers who preceded them. Luminaries toppled from their perches included movie magnate Harvey Weinstein, media stars Bill O'Reilly, Matt Lauer and Charlie Rose, and several celebrity chefs and members of Congress.

2. Trump-First Year: The controversies started on Inauguration Day, with the new president challenged over his claims on the size of the crowd, and persisted throughout the year. Trump's approval ratings hovered around record-low territory, his base remained fiercely loyal, and his relentless tweeting—often in the early morning hours—provoked a striking mix of outrage, mockery and grateful enthusiasm.

3. Las Vegas mass shooting: A 64-year-old high-stakes video poker player, after amassing an arsenal of weapons, unleashed a barrage of gunfire from a high-rise casino-hotel that killed 58 people and injured hundreds among a crowd attending an open-air concert along the Las Vegas Strip. Weeks after the massacre, questions about the gunman's motives remained unanswered.

4. Hurricane onslaught: In a four-week span, hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Maria ravaged Texas, Florida, Puerto Rico and other Caribbean islands. Harvey killed more than 80 people in Texas and caused an estimated $150 billion in damage. Irma killed scores of people in the Caribbean and U.S., including 12 residents of a Florida nursing home that lost its air conditioning. Maria damaged more than 200,000 homes in Puerto Rico, caused lengthy power outages, and prompted an investigation into whether the official death toll of 64 was vastly undercounted.

5. North Korea: At times the taunts had a schoolyard flavor to them—a “dotard” versus “Little Rocket Man.” But they came from two world leaders with nuclear arms at their disposal—Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un. Fueling the tensions were North Korea's latest tests of a hydrogen bomb and of ballistic missiles that potentially could reach the U.S. mainland.

6. Trump-Russia probe: Trump fired FBI director James Comey, but a former FBI chief, Robert Mueller, was soon appointed to investigate potential coordination between Russia and Trump's election campaign. By mid-December, Mueller's team had brought federal charges against four people, including former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort and former national security adviser Michael Flynn. Flynn pleaded guilty to lying to the FBI.

7. Obamacare: Despite repeated efforts, majority Republicans in Congress failed to repeal Barack Obama's health care law and replace it with new plan. At one point, a deciding vote against a GOP replacement bill was cast by Republican Sen. John McCain. But questions remained as to how Obama's plan would fare going forward without substantive help from the Trump administration.

8. Tax overhaul: Without a single Democratic vote, Republicans in Congress pushed through a sweeping $1.5 trillion tax overhaul that would cut corporate taxes while producing mixed results for individuals. GOP lawmakers, backed by Trump, said the bill would have broad benefits by accelerating economic growth. Critics said consequences would include higher budget deficits and the potential loss of health care coverage for millions of Americans.

9. Worldwide terror attacks: The first big terror attack of 2017 came on New Year's Day—a gunman killing 39 at a nightclub in Istanbul. Subsequent targets of global terror included an Ariana Grande concert in England, a bike path in New York City and the historic La Rambla promenade in Barcelona. In October, a truck bombing in Somalia killed more than 500 people; in November, an attack on a crowded mosque in Egypt killed more than 300.

10. Islamic State: After lengthy assaults, an array of forces drove the Islamic State from its two main strongholds—the city of Mosul in Iraq, and its self-styled capital, Raqqa, in Syria. The defeats left the Islamic State without significant territory in either country, but affiliates elsewhere in the region, particularly in Egypt and Afghanistan, continued to operate.

The Las Vegas shooting?
Wtf is that?

Ooohhhhhh right. The time that random guy committed the biggest mass shooting in American history and no one knew why but it was clear that the FBI was covering something up.

I forgot about that totally because the media stopped talking about it.

As the #3 story of the year, you'd think they'd have talked about it more. I guess they must have gotten bored.

Also: tax overhaul doesn't seem like a top ten story. I think John McCain's tumor saving Obamacare is a bigger story. But maybe the tax thing just bored me.

DOJ Finally Investigating Clinton Uranium One Deal

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 21, 2017

Attorney General Jeff Sessions seen eating a healthy snack (during work hours).

The tortoise Jeff Sessions has finally had a stirring of movement in his dwelling place.

At time of writing, the world is still in shock.

RT:

FBI agents have been asked to explain evidence regarding the probe into a deal that gave a Russian company control of 20 percent of US uranium and involved Hillary Clinton.

Justice Department prosecutors have been asking the agents to describe the results of the now dormant investigation in recent weeks. The agents have also been asked if there was any inappropriate effort to stop any prosecution from taking place, law enforcement sources told NBC News.

A source told the news outlet that there were allegations of corruption regarding the Uranium One deal. However, no charges have been filed.

The NBC report comes after Attorney General Jeff Sessions directed federal prosecutors last month to “evaluate certain issues” surrounding Clinton’s alleged corrupt role in the Uranium One deal. Assistant Attorney General for Legislative Affairs Stephen Boyd wrote a letter to House Judiciary Committee chairman Rep. Bob Goodlatte (R-VA), in which Boyd said that Sessions had “directed senior federal prosecutors to evaluate certain issues raised in your letters.”

The letters referenced by Boyd were written by Goodlatte and dated July 27 and September 26. They included requests by him and other committee members for a special counsel to be appointed to investigate certain matters, some of which involved Clinton, Fox News reported at the time.

The 2010 Uranium One deal was approved by Clinton when she served as secretary of state in President Barack Obama’s administration. The deal involved selling part of a Canadian-based mining company to Rosatom, resulting in the firm acquiring control over 20 percent of America’s uranium supply. Uranium One has mining stakes in the United States.

Clinton’s critics, including current US President Donald Trump, have claimed—without providing evidence—that Russian interests sought to donate to the Clinton Foundation in exchange for the former secretary of state’s support in the deal. Trump claims Clinton was “paid a fortune” for her role in helping the sale go through. Clinton has slammed such accusations as “baloney,” noting that there has been “no credible evidence [presented] by anyone.”

This comes no less than 8 weeks after President Trump called for such an investigation.

Uranium deal to Russia, with Clinton help and Obama Administration knowledge, is the biggest story that Fake Media doesn’t want to follow!

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) October 19, 2017

Sessions is officially the biggest disappointment of the Trump Era.

There is just so much he could be doing and he just slouches around saying “aw shucks, guys.”

Eminem Just Admitted He’s Gay I Guess

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 21, 2017

He definitely looks like a soft little faggot.

So...

Fox News:

Rapper Eminem slipped an eyebrow-raising confession into his latest interview—and it’s left fans very confused.

The “Stan” hit maker, 45, was speaking with Vulture upon the release of his new album “Revival” when talk turned to his dating life.

Divorced twice from Kim Scott, the mother of his daughter Hailie, the long-single music star said he’s been on a few dates, but “nothing’s panned out in a way I wanted to make public.”

Asked how he met potential dates, Eminem mentioned Tinder—and popular gay dating app Grindr.

Here’s the full exchange:

Interviewer: When you were dating, how’d you meet people? Tinder?

Eminem: I mean, yeah.

I: Are you being serious?

E: Yeah, Tinder.

I: Really?

E: [Laughs] And Grindr. I also used to go to strip clubs.

From there, the conversation turned to other topics, the interviewer apparently missing the scoop Eminem had just delivered him. It was left to fans to ask: Was Eminem joking, or does the rapper—who’s courted controversy for his use of homophobic language in the past—date dudes?

So that’s weird.

I guess that would explain a lot.

Or maybe, you know. It turned out that attacking Donald Trump and white people didn't make him cool or interesting, so he's trying the dick-sucking route.

Bundy Rancher Standoff Declared a Mistrial After the Disgraced FBI Caught Suppressing Evidence!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 21, 2017

Generally, I find anything related to libertarianism that isn't named "Christopher Cantwell" to be tedious and boring.

But it was cool when these guys took over a bunch of federal land with guns and then refused to surrender, even if their politics are garbled nonsense.

For those who don't remember, in 2014 the Bundy family invaded public land controlled by the Bureau of Land Management and held it hostage because...I think because they wanted to graze their cattle there or something.

So wait, I guess I don't even remember it. I remember writing about it and thinking it was stupid. But I don't remember the actual details.

Hold on.

Okay.

Wikipedia:

The 2014 Bundy standoff was an armed confrontation between supporters of cattle rancher Cliven Bundy and law enforcement following a 21-year legal dispute in which the United States Bureau of Land Management (BLM) obtained court orders directing Bundy to pay over $1 million in withheld grazing fees for Bundy's use of federally-owned land adjacent to Bundy's ranch in southeastern Nevada.

The ongoing dispute started in 1993, when, in protest against changes in grazing rules, Bundy declined to renew his permit for cattle grazing on BLM-administered public lands near Bunkerville, Nevada. According to Bundy, the federal government lacks the constitutional authority to own vast tracts of lands, an argument repeatedly rejected by federal courts. According to the BLM, Bundy continued to graze his cattle on public lands without a permit. In 1998, Bundy was prohibited by the United States District Court for the District of Nevada from grazing his cattle on an area of land later called the Bunkerville Allotment. In July 2013, federal judge Lloyd D. George ordered Bundy to refrain from trespassing on federally administered land in the Gold Butte area of Clark County.

On March 27, 2014, 145,604 acres of federal land in Clark County were temporarily closed for the "capture, impound, and removal of trespass cattle". BLM officials and law enforcement rangers began a roundup of such livestock on April 5, and an arrest was made the next day. On April 12, 2014, a group of protesters, some of them armed, approached the BLM "cattle gather". Sheriff Doug Gillespie negotiated with Bundy and newly-confirmed BLM director Neil Kornze, who elected to release the cattle and de-escalate the situation. As of the end of 2015, Cliven Bundy continued to graze his cattle on federal land and still had not paid the grazing fees.

On February 10, 2016, Cliven Bundy traveled to Portland, Oregon, in response to federal law enforcement moving to end a standoff led by his sons Ammon and Ryan at the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge. He was arrested at the airport by the FBI and was incarcerated at the Multnomah County Jail. He was indicted for 16 federal felonies on February 17, along with Ammon and Ryan Bundy, militia leader Ryan Payne, and broadcaster Peter Santilli, who were already under arrest for their role in the Malheur standoff. Another 14 individuals were charged on March 3, 2016. Santilli subsequently pled guilty to felony conspiracy to injure or impede a federal officer.

Cliven and Ammon Bundy, and their supporters, have claimed that the federal government lacks the authority to manage public lands. These arguments have been repeatedly rejected by legal scholars and federal courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court; the property clause of the United States Constitution grants plenary authority to Congress to manage federal property, including land.

And they are also Mormons and believe this was somehow part of the plan of the Elohim.

Video Link

It was surreal when it happened. Like something out of a movie. A poorly written movie, in fact. And that is always interesting to me: when reality itself appears to be poorly written because you can't comprehend the motivations of characters and their actions seem unrealistic.

Washington Post:

A federal judge declared a mistrial Wednesday in the criminal conspiracy case against rancher Cliven Bundy and three other defendants, saying government lawyers suppressed key evidence that would have been favorable to the defendants' case related to a 2014 standoff with federal agents.

U.S. District Court Judge Gloria Navarro determined that the prosecution suppressed evidence from FBI surveillance cameras recording the Bundy family home and the presence of Bureau of Land Management snipers around the property in the days leading up to the standoff there. Additionally, the prosecution did not provide FBI logs, maps, reports and threat assessments that said the Bundy family was not dangerous.

lol yeah—if you’ve got record of snipers in place and records documenting that the people are not dangerous, you’re going to need to suppress at least one of those things for sure.

Navarro pointed to assessments conducted by the FBI, the Southern Nevada Counter Terrorism Center and the BLM that said “the Bundy family is not violent” and that they “would probably get in your face, but not get into a shootout.”

The court “regrettably believes a mistrial is the only suitable option,” Navarro told the packed Nevada courtroom. “A fair trial at this point is impossible.”

The case accused Bundy, his sons Ammon and Ryan Bundy, and Montana militiaman Ryan Payne of conspiring to commit a crime against BLM officers during the armed standoff near the family ranch in Nevada.

Navarro spoke of several reports that were also kept from the defense that showed that the Bundy family’s cows—which had been illegally grazing on public lands for more than 20 years when the BLM orchestrated a roundup of the cattle—had “no detrimental impact on Desert Tortoise habitat.” The tortoise is listed as “threatened” under the Endangered Species Act.

This thing sure doesn’t look like it would make a very good dessert.

Now a soup—sure. I can dig that.

Such details cast doubt on the government’s portrait of the family as violent, paranoid, anti-government extremists. But Navarro noted to the courtroom that declaring a mistrial does not mean that the men are being found not guilty.

“That is not the court’s decision,” Navarro said. “It is for a jury to decide.”

As of Wednesday evening, Cliven Bundy was still incarcerated, but his attorney, Bret Whipple, said he planned to file an emergency motion to see his client released from jail without conditions. The Bundy family patriarch, along with other defendants, was granted conditional release earlier this month, but Cliven Bundy chose to stay in jail until he was allowed to leave without GPS monitoring, which Bundy said would “acknowledge that he did something wrong,” Whipple said.

Both sides have until Dec. 29 to file briefs on whether the judge should allow the government to pursue a new trial.

“I do not think there is a jury in this country that will convict us,” Ammon Bundy said outside the courthouse, an arm slung around his mother’s shoulders as he spoke to reporters. “The truth is on our side.”

The mistrial “does bring a lot of vindication to us,” he said, noting that Navarro “talked about our family, my dad, how he wasn’t prone to use violence. My dad has said that many, many times. He’s not a violent man. He’s a man of peace. He only wanted his rights to be protected.”

So okay, I guess this is good. I like seeing the feds lose.

Although I really don’t think people should be doing armed takeovers of government land.

I doubt there will be another trial, after the Feds were disgraced like this.

Conclusion

There is one thing I want to make clear here: now that it’s over, this story needs to be made into a movie.

Directed by Tim Burton.

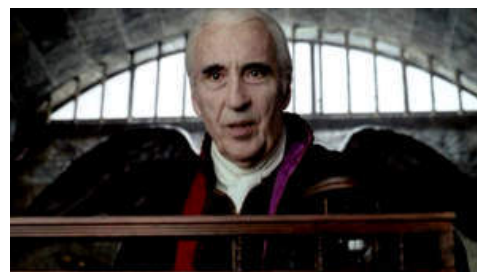

With Johnny Depp as Cliven Bundy.

Helen Bonham Carter as a talking cow.

And Christopher Lee as Elohim.

It could be the greatest film of our generation and finally save the careers of both Burton and Depp.

There is nothing stopping this from happening.

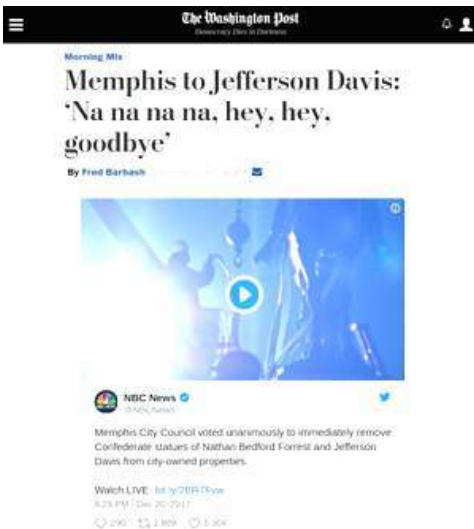

Get er done.

Sneak Attack: Memphis Tears Down Series of Confederate Statues to Honor Whoremongering Plagiarist MLK Jr.

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 21, 2017

Wow, Jews. You're really taking the concept of destroying the entire history of a people seriously.

The white people involved in this erasure of history are doing it in an attempt to purge some evil from within their souls. It is a bizarre and degrading form of penitence by confused, guilt ridden goyim.

They know that destroying their history means destroying themselves, and they want this.

We all know that Thomas Jefferson and George Washington are next.

The Jews know that most of all. Washington Post:

The city of Memphis got rid of two Confederate statues Wednesday night, after a Tennessee two-step around a state law designed to prevent just that. It was a surprise maneuver that left the Sons of Confederate Veterans sputtering in anger and proclaiming to all who would listen: "Memphis stabbed you all in the back."

But James G. Patterson, commander of the Tennessee Division of the Sons, advised his compatriots to "stay away" from the city for the night. "I would say that the Memphis police will not tolerate any action around these statues."

Indeed, the flashing lights cutting through the dark from scores of police vehicles provided theatrical lighting for the cranes that showed up for the formal banishment of two Confederate heroes in the city where Martin Luther King was assassinated almost 50 years ago, on April 4, 1968.

The first to go was the equestrian statue of Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, especially loathed by many today because he was also a slave trader and a founder and "Grand Wizard" of the Ku Klux Klan. The statue was placed in a city-owned park in 1904 during the Jim Crow era of segregation.

About a mile and a half away and about an hour or so later, a statue of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, was hoisted from its base in another city park. The statue of Davis, who lived in Memphis from 1875 to 1878, was erected in downtown Memphis in 1964, at the height of the Civil Rights movement.

Mayor Jim Strickland, in a statement also posted on Facebook, said the city was particularly anxious to get the job done now, in advance of the 50th anniversary of King's death.

"The statues no longer represent who we are as a modern, diverse city with momentum," he wrote. "... Our community wants to reserve places of reverence for those we honor."

Instead, you are represented by the communist, whore-monger and plagiarist Martin Luther King Jr.

You are wallowing in your own debauchery.

Memphis was following in the footsteps of numerous other cities which have rid themselves of Confederate symbols over the past few years, a move prompted by the fatal 2015 shooting of nine African Americans in Charleston's Emanuel African Episcopal Church by white supremacy sympathizer Dylann Roof.

While the removals of the Davis and Forrest memorials had been discussed, debated and litigated for a while, their demise came suddenly.

The dispute over the fate of the statues had been quietly percolating in the courts after removal was blocked in October by the Tennessee Historical Commission using its powers under the Tennessee Heritage Protection Act of 2016.

That law said that “No statue, monument, memorial, nameplate, or plaque” erected “on public property” in honor of certain military conflicts and their heroes may be removed without the permission of two-thirds of the board of the commission. In October, the commission denied Memphis a waiver which would have allowed the city to remove the Confederate statues. The city was challenging the decision in court.

But with the anniversary of King’s assassination approaching, an event which will bring worldwide attention and thousands of visitors to Memphis, city officials, including Mayor Jim Strickland, were in a rush and decided to work around the law.

Focusing on the law’s key phrase, protecting statues on “public property,” Shelby County Commissioner Van Turner and others set up a private nonprofit corporation called Memphis Greenspace, Inc.

On Wednesday, without fanfare, the City Council approved a measure authorizing the mayor to sell the two parks with the statues to the private group, for $1,000 each, which he promptly did.

In the morning, they were on public property. By the afternoon, they weren’t.

I wonder who thought of that little bit of legalism.

Total mystery.

By nightfall, the parks with the statues had been sold to the newly-minted nonprofit, which sent in the cranes.

...

Council member Janis Fullilove, who favored the removal, called it a “crazy, crazy, crazy night,” according to the Commercial Appeal. “It’s really going down in history that this is the night they are going to take the statues down. It’s a historic moment.”

A cheering crowd sang as Davis was placed in the back of a truck at 10:45 p.m. and driven away. Among the songs, according to the Commercial Appeal, was that old standby: “na na na na, na na na na, hey hey, goodbye.”

Jeff Sessions should—

Screw it. I’m not saying Jeff Sessions should do anything because he doesn’t ever do anything.

But this is some sneaky shit right here.

Memphis City Council voted unanimously to immediately remove Confederate statues of Nathan Bedford Forrest and Jefferson Davis from city-owned properties.

Okay So That Tax Thing is Over I Guess Thank God

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

As I’ve said, I don’t know anything about this tax bill, other than that it cuts taxes and some of those tax cuts are good and some aren’t.

I’m not the tax master. I’m just a guy who hates the Jews and thinks they should be rounded up and gassed in fake shower rooms using insecticide.

NPR:

Congressional Republicans delivered on their first major legislative accomplishment of the Trump era on Wednesday, when the House voted 224-201 to pass a $1.5 trillion tax package. The bill cuts individual rates for eight years and slashes the top corporate tax rate to 21 percent permanently.

The bill now goes to Trump for his signature, though it’s not clear when he will sign it. The president is giving remarks on the bill’s passage at the White House Wednesday afternoon.

Whatever is in this bill, it is definitely good that Trump finally passed a bill.

Though the fact that he was able to pass it implies to me it is probably not a very good bill.

But I’ll wait to find out about the version that was passed when I listen to Fash the Nation this weekend.

Until then I’ll be thinking about shit that is less boring than this shit.

Wall Street Jews Make It Rain on Jack Dorsey After Twitter Political Crackdown

Eric Striker

ICYMI, @Twitter finally moved on abusive #AltRight accounts pushing hate and stock reaches high point for year. It's a sign of what we've been saying for some time: tackling hate isn't just a concern for stakeholders. It's a priority for shareholders. <https://t.co/Tm0wKM4B7u>

#Twitterpurge is well underway. While some Goyim have donned PC Antifa disguises and are hiding out in the attic, even respectable paleo-conservatives like Jared Taylor and Jayda Fransen (who Trump retweeted not long ago) have been silenced.

There is more to come. The process of censoring everyone who isn't Jewish or a J-leftist will happen over a period of weeks.

Now that Twitter has sunk it's only selling point (freedom of speech), it is on its way to the tech junkyard where it will be buried besides AIM and Myspace.

But that hasn't stopped them from enjoying a temporary surge on Wall Street. Jack Dorsey is shaking his booty for sweaty Jewish businessmen and they're writing big checks in response.

Wait until he finds out that the checks bounce!

Twitter's stock is up 8% after the company began purging accounts that push racist and other hate speech.

The firm's share price is sitting at $24.12 (£17.98), the highest it's been all year.

Twitter began suspending hateful accounts on Monday afternoon, with the leaders of far-right group Britain First, Jayda Fransen and Paul Golding, among the first to go.

The purge coincides with other good news for Twitter. Bloomberg's Tic Toc, a Twitter-only video news service which runs 24/7, also went live on Monday.

Twitter's stock has been climbing steadily over the last week, fuelled in part by a photo from the CEO of Goldman Sachs. The image showed Goldman CEO Lloyd Blankfein with Twitter CEO Jack Dorsey and the tweet led to speculation about a takeover.

"Lloyd Blankfein took a selfie with me and thanked me for giving the ADL control over content? Maybe he wants to buy my shitty platform that doesn't do anything, OMG!"

Twitter played a huge role in growing the Alt-Right and challenging Jewish political power in the public square during the 2016 election. Jews have used the carrot and stick to get Jack to upend the very reason for his platform's existence (to give dissidents a political platform), starting with Goldman Sachs Jew Ned Segal taking over as CFO.

At this point, it should be obvious to everyone that (((Wall Street))) has more censorship power in our plutocracy than the government.

Matthew Prince at Cloudflare admitted that he ceded to the Southern Poverty Law Center's demands to stop providing protection against cyber-terrorism for the Daily Stormer out of fear that Jews would attack his coming IPO.

This goes to show to all the people out there that think it's impossible for a few Jews to be dictators in a nation of 323 million. All it takes is for a few billionaires to move a little bit of capital, and bugmen who would pimp their grandma for the right price like Jack Dorsey will respond.

Welcome to the neo-liberal order, where your human right to speak and supposed constitutional liberties mean nothing!

Down with Wall Street!

Traitor Andrew McCabe Finally Interviewed by House Intelligence Committee!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer

December 20, 2017

This is a major step in the much-needed “investigation of the investigators.”

It's not happening yet, but it's starting to begin to prepare to happen.

As I have maintained from the beginning, the claim that Trump is involved in a Russian conspiracy is a Jewish conspiracy against Trump.

A conspiracy to hoax a conspiracy.

And how many people were saying that?

Real news, folks. Only at Daily Stormer dot red.

Fox News:

FBI Deputy Director Andrew McCabe testified behind closed doors for nearly eight hours Tuesday on Capitol Hill, amid calls for his firing over allegations of conflicts of interest and anti-Trump political prejudice at the law enforcement bureau.

McCabe's testimony before the House Intelligence Committee, which had been rescheduled from last week, was the latest development in a controversy swirling around text messages exchanged between FBI officials Peter Strzok and Lisa Page, who worked on Special Counsel Robert Mueller's Russia probe.

Andrew McCabe feared that if Trump took power, he would steal his lucky charms.

McCabe was believed to be the “Andy” to whom Strzok and Page referred in their messages.

Peter Strzok and Lisa Page

“I’ll be a little bit surprised if (McCabe is) still an employee of the FBI this time next week,” U.S. Rep. Trey Gowdy, R-S.C., a member of the House panel, told Fox News several days ago.

Gowdy and other committee members were tight-lipped on the details of McCabe's testimony on Tuesday, and most avoided speaking with reporters. But the committee's ranking member, U.S. Rep. Adam Schiff, D-Calif., said McCabe “has been a professional FBI agent” and that he does not understand “the calls of some to fire him.”

Schiff is the top ZOG Jew, always defending his Catholic house goyim.

Strzok was dismissed from Mueller's Russia probe after being linked to a number of anti-Trump messages, including those calling Trump a “menace” and a “loathsome human.” But one particular text sent by the agent caused great concern and appeared to implicate McCabe.

“I want to believe the path you threw out for consideration in Andy's office—that there's no way he gets elected—but I'm afraid we can't take that risk,” Strzok wrote Aug. 15, 2016. “It's like an insurance policy in the unlikely event you die before you're 40.”

“CAN'T TAKE THAT RISK!” “INSURANCE POLICY!”

AUG 15, 2016

Peter Strzok: I want to believe the path you threw out for consideration in Andy's office - that there's no way he gets elected - but I'm afraid we can't take that risk. It's like an insurance policy in the unlikely event you die before you're 40...

AN FBI CONSPIRACY TO STOP A PRESIDENT FROM GETTING ELECTED— HOW IS THIS NOT BIGGER NEWS???

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Bob Goodlatte, R-Va., said last week that the text was “very troubling” because it implied the agents had “a plan to take action to make sure that Donald Trump does not get elected president of the United States at the highest levels of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.”

Of course they did.

We have known this since before the election. The fact that the FBI was passing around that #Pissgate file (while refusing to investigate #Pizzagate) should have been cause enough for an investigation into the corrupt elements within this group.

The fact that we now have evidence that doesn't just “suggest” it but CONFIRMS it should be leading to a lot more than a couple of hearings.

And it should be going a lot faster than it is.

Lawmakers may have also questioned McCabe on demoted DOJ official Bruce Ohr and his wife Nellie Ohr. The official had undisclosed meetings with Fusion GPS—the company that produced the infamous anti-Trump dossier containing salacious allegations about then-candidate Trump. Nellie Ohr worked at Fusion GPS on Trump-related issues.

Republican members of the committee were also expected to press McCabe on issues of conflict of interest and whether he should have recused himself from the Hillary Clinton email investigation. McCabe's wife in 2015 ran for a state Senate seat in Virginia and received money from donors linked to Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton.

This is just corruption piled atop corruption—and it is business as usual. There has never been anyone watching the watchers and these rats have just gotten used to doing whatever the hell they want.

Ah.

But lo, there.

A watcher appears.

And we are watchers too.

The independent online media is the only media giving any glimpse into the reality of these situations. I personally invented “conspiracy to hoax a conspiracy” and that will turn out to be the exact definition of what has gone on here. The rat kikes can call me a “Neo-Nazi” all they like, but the people know that this is the only spot to get the unadulterated truth and S C A T H I N G L Y A C C U R A T E analysis.

Meanwhile, the NYT and WaPo are refusing to even accurately report on these texts, let alone look at the overall situation as it is. They only included the fact that McCabe's wife got bribes from Clinton allies as a footnote.

But the truth will out.

Those things which were done in the dark will be brought to the light.

Trump Doubles Down Bigly on Deportation Agenda

Think Trump has gone soft? Think again.

There was a period after the election where Trump seemed to have softened up his rhetoric on DACA and immigration in general, and it rightfully caused everyone to panic. After all, immigration is the number one priority not only for the Alt-Right, but for the Republican base who elected him.

But it's become increasingly clear that this was only a tactical move, and that there is no intention whatsoever of giving the beaners a break. Not only is the Trump administration going forward with their anti-immigration agenda, but they've actually radicalized their message over the past few weeks.

CNN:

President Donald Trump and his administration have been sending a message in recent weeks: Trump's campaign rhetoric on immigration was not just talk. In fact, it was just the beginning.

Trump has never shied from his attacks on illegal immigration, which, alongside a US-Mexico border wall, was a core component of his campaign.

But doubts existed about his commitment level, as some of the more aggressive proposals considered by the administration languished in bureaucratic morass and as he said strongly favorable things about recipients of the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program in September as he opted to end it.

Of late, however, Trump and the administration have upped their rhetoric on immigration.

CHAIN MIGRATION must end now! Some people come in, and they bring their whole family with them, who can be truly evil. NOT ACCEPTABLE! pic.twitter.com/PQGeTTdRtX

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) November 1, 2017

Trump has railed in several instances against “chain migration” and lotteries for green cards. His administration is moving to alter a program for the spouses of high-skilled visa holders. And the White House and Congress remain far apart on how to address DACA.

In mid-September, Trump wrote, “Does anybody really want to throw out good, educated and accomplished young people who have jobs, some serving in the military?”

But since then, he has insisted on controversial immigration reduction proposals that would have a hard time passing even among some Republicans, including drastically cutting the overall number of green cards given out annually and transforming the way they are given out, placing a heavy emphasis on only highly skilled, English-speaking immigrants and not low-skilled individuals.

Groups that have long advocated for reducing overall immigration are energized.

I'm feeling energized. How about you?

Trump campaigned mostly on stopping illegal immigration and deporting the criminals who are already here. But he's now talking about dismantling all these legal immigration programs as well and replacing them with systems that would end up allowing mostly White people entry into the united states.

If anything, this means that the campaign rhetoric wasn't simply a way to earn votes from White people—it also reflects both Trump's beliefs and his intentions.

Tax Bill Mania! Not Finished Yet!

I have no idea what's in the tax bill, but Jazzhands McFeels says it's okay, so we'll go with that—it's okay.

RT:

The tax bill passed the Senate on Wednesday, by a vote of 51-48, but the bill won't go to the president's desk to be signed until the House corrects three provisions in their own tax bill that broke Senate rules.

The US Senate voted to pass their version of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act after a 10-hour time frame was afforded to the chamber to debate the bill.

Its passage follows Vice President Mike Pence's decision to cancel a trip to the Middle East, in case he was needed to break a voting tie to push the legislation through the upper chamber.

The US House of Representatives must now change three provisions it included in their own bill they voted to pass Tuesday, which did not adhere to Senate procedural rules.

The vote took place with a heavy US Capitol Police presence outside the chamber.

Protesters chanting "Kill the bill, don't kill us" interrupted the Senate vote on passage of the tax bill early Wednesday, AP reported. Vice President Mike Pence, who was presiding, was forced to stop, repeatedly calling on the sergeant at arms to restore order.

I wish cops would have killed those protesters...

Protesters interrupted the House debate on the bill earlier in the day.

The three problematic provisions in the House bill relate to using educational savings accounts for homeschooling, and also deal with private endowments from universities, Reuters reported.

The offending provisions were called out after they violated the so-called Byrd Rule, which states that any proposed legislation going through the budget reconciliation process—the way the tax bill is—can be blocked due to the measure containing "extraneous matter" or anything "merely incidental" to the federal budget.

The House will vote on their bill again Wednesday, and if it passes, it will be sent to President Donald Trump's desk to be signed into law. Both the Senate and House bills must fully align when passed individually in each chamber, before being sent to the president.

The House yesterday had to do a do-over vote because of the changes in the Senate.

It should be passed today.

It sure will be nice if Trump is actually able to get through a major piece of legislation.

Boeing's New Drone is NOT a Flying Car.

Revealed and ready! #BoeingMQ25 #UAS future @USNavy tanker will extend the range of combat aircraft from the flight deck to the fight!

RELEASE: <https://t.co/tkDt0R84zB> #MQ25 #Phantom-Works pic.twitter.com/gSgS8xmIRR — Boeing Defense (@BoeingDefense) December 19, 2017

Wait wait wait.

I thought we were getting a gigantic drone—like the toy ones, only bigger?

The Drive:

After piquing our interest with a cryptic post on Twitter, Boeing has given us the very first look at its prototype for the US Navy's MQ-25 Stingray unmanned tanker initiative. The Chicago-headquartered firm is now the second entrant in that competition, the other being General Atomics, to offer a look at their full concept and the first to show off an actual working prototype.

On Dec. 19, 2017, Boeing made the full announcement about the new unmanned aircraft from Phantom Works, the company's secretive design division that is roughly analogous Lockheed Martin's legendary Skunk Works. The firm did not say if the drone had internal nomenclature or nickname, as had been the case with its Phantom Ray entry into the Navy's abortive Unmanned Carrier-Launched Airborne Surveillance and Strike program, or UCLASS. Lockheed Martin is now the only remaining participant in the MQ-25 program, also known as the Carrier Based Aerial Refueling System (CBARS), to have not revealed art or images of their entry.

"Boeing has been delivering carrier aircraft to the Navy for almost 90 years," Don Gaddis, the head of the refueling system program at Boeing's Phantom Works, said in a press release. "Our expertise gives us confidence in our approach. We will be ready for flight testing when the engineering and manufacturing development contract is awarded."

Boeing says the drone is functional, though it hasn't flown. It will finish engine test runs on the ground ahead of deck handling demonstrations in early 2018. The Navy wants all of the competitors to submit their formal MQ-25 proposals by Jan. 3, 2018.

Why will no one make a large version of a toy drone?

They are obviously cheap to make, and they take off straight up. They can easily be flying cars. All you have to do is make them bigger.

Is it not time?

California: Mexican Catholic Church Statues Beheaded!

Statues beheaded at a church, which appears to be mostly attended by Mexicans.

Who beheads Christian statues...?

Ah, right.

ISIS vs. MS13 war on the streets of California when?

KPIX 5:

A disturbing scene was recently found outside a church in Hayward where statues of children were found beheaded.

For 60 years those who attend St. Bede's Catholic Church in Hayward have passed by a group of statues out front depicting Mary's appearance to the children of Fatima.

But lately, they've become a symbol of man's cruelty.

"I'm just heartbroken to see how this happened," said one young parishioner.

"How? What heart do you have that could do this?" said an outraged older woman who attends the church.

A few weeks ago, a vandal defaced the statues, breaking off Mary's hands and the heads of the three children and a lamb. It's not the first time it's happened. The statues have been damaged three times in the last few years.

When asked why he thought someone would do something like this, eight-year old parishioner Lucia Wright replied, "I don't know. Probably he's a hater or something."

Liberals claim to want peace and tolerance and so on, but by mixing together all of the groups that they are mixing together, they are ensuring violent conflict.

Charlottesville Police Chief FORCED TO RESIGN – And Not for Touching a Woman's Leg!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer

December 19, 2017

In the wake of the Unite the Right rally, this monkey was claiming James Fields engaged in "premeditated terrorism" –now he stands blamed for the crash. Oh, how the mighty have fallen.

As it turns out, Neo-Nazi White Supremacists are going to be entirely vindicated with regards to the Charlottesville rally.

In our biggest win yet, the city's negroid police chief has been forced to resign for mismanaging the situation and creating a crisis that resulted in a serious car accident and a helicopter crash.

He is the first casualty in the wake of the independent report on the rally, which blamed the entire thing on the city (.pdf here). With as hard as the report was on him, it's shocking it took this long.

Of course, I don't really believe that this negroid is who made the decision to create the chaos. I think it was the Jewish mayor, Michael Signer. But as these things go, resignations often start at the bottom and work their way up the chain of command. Firing the Negro in no way indicates that the Jew is off the hook.

Washington Post:

Charlottesville Police Chief Alfred Thomas resigned abruptly Monday, just 17 days after the release of a report that was highly critical of the police department's handling of a white-supremacist rally in August that turned deadly in the Virginia city.

The 207-page report prepared by Timothy Heaphy, a former U.S. attorney for the Western District of Virginia, concluded that the department was ill-prepared, lacked proper training and had a flawed plan for managing the Unite the Right rally that drew hundreds of neo-Nazis and white nationalists to Charlottesville on Aug. 12 and resulted in violent clashes with counterprotesters. The lack of adequate preparation led to "disastrous results," Heaphy wrote.

They didn't need "proper training." They had an army that day. We all saw it. The National Guard was there with armored trucks.

All they needed to do was keep a line of distance between demonstrators and protesters. And the only conceivable reason they didn't do that was because they wanted chaos and death.

Thomas, an Air Force veteran who previously was chief of police in Lexington, Va., had led the Charlottesville agency since May 2016. He was the city's first black police chief.

The review of the August rally confirmed widespread observations that police did not intervene to break up brawls on downtown streets. The passive stance, the report said, "represents a tremendous tactical failure that has real and lasting consequences."

Heaphy said he heard from a couple of officers in the police command center that day who said Thomas told officers, "Let them fight for a little. It will make it easier to declare an unlawful assembly."

Yes.

And why was he planning to declare unlawful assembly?

Surely it wasn't his own plan.

Somebody wanted dead bodies at this thing. They wanted to be able to declare that there was a "premeditated right-wing terrorist attack," just as the Jewish Mayor Signer did claim before the narrative fell apart.

By the way, the Charlottesville independent report does not mention "terrorism" at all. Which is frustrating, because the fact that it was called "terrorism" by the hook-nosed Mayor reveals the fact that he was involved in a conspiracy to hoax Nazi criminality.

Several hours after the rally had been declared an unlawful assembly, prosecutors say, Nazi sympathizer James Alex Fields Jr. drove his car into a crowd of counterprotesters on Fourth Street NE, killing Heather Heyer, a 32-year-old legal assistant, and injuring 35 others. Fields was charged with first-degree murder last week.

In the report, Heaphy called Heyer's death "the most tragic manifestation of the failure to protect public safety after the event" and pointed to police decisions that left the section of the city where Heyer was struck abandoned by law enforcement.

YES.

Exactly that.

The damage done to that beautiful vehicle is on the city's hands.

The police purposefully pulled out of the crucial center of the city, after forcing nationalists into a direct confrontation with anarchists, and left an extremely violent scene that resulted in, among other things, James Fields getting his car attacked with bats and then crashing it.

The report, commissioned by the city, was also critical of Thomas's cooperation with the independent investigation, saying he attempted to limit access to information.

"Chief Thomas's attempts to influence our review illustrate a deeper issue within CPD—a fear of retribution for criticism," the report stated. "Many officers with whom we spoke expressed concern that their truthful provision of critical information about the protest events would result in retaliation from Chief Thomas."

And that implies criminality. More than that, it implies conspiracy.

Surely, this Negro did not act on his own, because of a personal plan to create chaos in the city. That is not believable.

So who was responsible?

This independent report is more than enough reason for the Department of Justice to open an investigation into the city itself. That is the obvious next step. By resigning, the police chief is admitting guilt—but guilt for what? You don't tell your officers "let them fight" and then try to cover that up by attempting to silence the officers out of incompetence. That is "malice."

So investigate, JEFF!

We are Already Vindicated

The report alone vindicated the Alt-Right completely. That is done.

But that is a technical vindication, given that the media did not rally to cover the report very much at all. In the eyes of the masses, we are still taking the blame.

However, when the city goes down—and it has just begun—the people will see things the way they are. The media is going to regret having gone so hard on this.

Given the fact that Donald Trump was blamed for this, he himself has a vested interest in seeing the city government go down. So following this first high-profile resignation, it is well within the realm of possibility that we will get a DoJ investigation into the Jewish conspiracy that caused the chaos of August 12th.

Unqualified Kike Appointed by Monkey Obongo Responsible for Seattle Trainwreck

Azzmador

Daily Stormer

December 19, 2017

Video Link

The derailment of the high-speed Amtrak train south of Seattle on it's first voyage on this route has thus far claimed the lives of six people, and injured at least 100, many of them critically, is being referred to by many as the worst train accident of its kind thus far.

CBS News:

DUPONT, Wash. —An Amtrak train derailed on an overpass in Washington state Monday morning, with some of the 14 train cars careening onto vehicles on a highway below. The crash left at least three people dead and roughly 100 injured, officials said, and authorities are still combing through the wreckage to find victims.

Authorities said the derailed train cars struck five motor vehicles and two semi-trucks on the highway. At this time, all southbound lanes of traffic remain closed on Interstate 5.

Though details are still scant, and many of them are contradictory, according to a local rail expert, the speed limit for trains on that particular stretch of the railway is 30 mph, and the maximum speed this particular train is safety rated at is 79 mph. The train is reported to have been traveling in excess of 80 mph when it came around the bend onto the overpass, at which point it derailed and plummeted onto busy Interstate 5 during rush hour traffic.

This already appears to be the result of a perfect storm of poor planning, bad engineering, and general incompetence.

But how, you ask, could this happen?

To answer this question, let's start at the top.

SoundTransit, is the company in charge. Their "about" page states:

Sound Transit plans, builds and operates express bus, light rail and commuter train services. We serve the urban areas of King, Pierce and Snohomish counties.

The CEO of SoundTransit, one (((Peter Rogoff))), is the man ultimately responsible for the safety and efficiency of his company's systems. This Jew is wholly unqualified to be serving this company or any other transportation organization in any such capacity, as you can see below. from his own profile page.

As Chief Executive Officer of Sound Transit, Peter Rogoff brings an impressive career of transportation leadership to forward the mission of expanding the regional mass transit system for central Puget Sound. Rogoff was unanimously selected after a nationwide search and came to Sound Transit in January 2016.

Prior to that, he had served since July 2014 as Under Secretary of Transportation for Policy in the U.S. Department of Transportation...

Starting in May 2009, Rogoff served for five years as President Obama's Federal Transit Administrator. As the nation's chief public transit official...

Prior to his FTA appointment, Rogoff served for 22 years on the staff of the Senate Appropriations Committee, including 14 years as the Democratic Staff Director of the Transportation Subcommittee, led by Sen. Patty Murray of Washington and Sen. Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey.

In 2010 Rogoff was the first recipient of the Transportation Equity Network's Rosa Parks Award.

Thus far, we see a man who transitioned between paper pusher, money appropriator, and bureaucrat, but there appears to be nothing to speak of in terms of actual engineering expertise, which one can rightfully expect would be a prerequisite for a man running a transportation company.

Anyone who knows anything understands that a "Rosa Parks award" just signifies that he was in government for a long time, always having the right politics and kissing the right asses.

So what were the Sterling credentials and training this Jew brought to bear that ultimately made him the man for the job?

Rogoff earned his Master of Business Administration degree with honors from the McDonough School of Business at Georgetown University and his Bachelor of Arts degree in American Studies at Amherst College.

Peter Rogoff, Jew.

That's right, the Jew Obama appointee has nothing whatsoever in his background to justify his being the man who, when a terrible disaster like this occurs, occupies the place where the buck stops.

Is there any doubt that this man was the beneficiary of a deeply embedded system of ethnic nepotism that has been rotting away at the core of our government, our corporate boards, and basically everything else that matters in our country for the last century?

Not in the mind of this writer.

When this country ran properly and efficiently, it was run by people who knew what they were doing. Positions such as these were awarded based on merit. We must return to such a system, if we are to avoid becoming a third world hellhole, where nothing works and everything constantly breaks down, and tragedies such as this are a common occurrence, or as our leaders like to call it, "the new normal."

There is no doubt about it. Ultimately, the Jews did this!

Trump Encouraging Children to Hate Beaners! Self-Deport or be Bullied Ruthlessly!

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 19, 2017

Don't like being bullied? I guess you better deport yourselves, then.

I remember the show "The Ripping Friends," where as the heroes were beating up the bad guys, they'd turn towards the viewer and say "hey kids, grab some paper and rip along!" It was pretty great.

Only 90s kids will remember this.

Trump is generating the same kind of dynamic with today's youth. As he deports the illegals and cracks down on "refugees," the children are compelled to help along by bullying their brown classmates and hopefully get them to self-deport.

We can all do our part.

Huffington Post:

A couple of days ago, Lance, a 10-year-old student in Queens, New York, was walking to his seat in his favorite class: technology. He is training to be a programmer.

A boy, or bully #2, walked up to him and told him, "Hello, Mexican." The boy meant to insult Lance by calling him Mexican; the bully has told Lance that "He sucks," because he is Mexican or Puerto Rican. Lance is Hispanic. His family is from Colombia.

First, I have to comment.

Why the hell did the writer start with "bully #2?" Why not start with #1? What kind of deviancy is this? "One" comes before "two."

It's like these people write specifically to make me angry.

Apparently, there is a group of people in this country who mistakenly think that being Mexican is terrible. Who could have given them that idea?

Yes. Those people are called "Mexicans." Why else did they leave Mexico to come here, if they though being Mexican wasn't terrible?

Though to be fair, everyone else also thinks they're terrible, so they're not alone.

Everyone except Paul Ryan, that is.

In response to the bully's insult, Lance "roasted" him by cracking some kid-safe jokes about him.

Then the boy punched Lance in the back of his head.

The teacher saw the incident and seated bully #2 away from Lance. Then she screamed at Lance for cracking jokes about him. She sent Lance to the school guidance counselor's office.

Yeah! The little spic boy got double-teamed by the bully and his teacher accomplice! This is the kind of atmosphere we need to maintain if we want these people to leave of their own accord.

Bullying works.

Can we make America White again purely with bullying? I don't know. But it's certainly worth a shot.

The guidance counselor told Lance that he needed to ignore people when they talk negatively about his ethnicity. Why are school administrators allowing hate among our children to continue? Since when has solely the act of ignoring a problem solved it?

He shouldn't ignore it. Ignoring bullies never works—they just keep doing it.

No, the only solution is clearly to just go back to Mexico, where he'll be bullied for being a little bitch instead of for being Mexican.

A couple of weeks ago, another boy or bully #1 told Lance, "Go back to your country!"

Ah, so #1 finally comes on the scene. I wouldn't call him a bully though, as he was simply being helpful in pointing out how Pedro can avoid being bullied in the future.

Lance got angry, and again teachers told him to ignore people when they negatively refer to his ethnic background —Lance was born in St. John's Hospital in Queens, New York.

Buzzfeed reported that children are using President Trump's words to bully classmates in several cities across the country.

Hate crimes have been soaring in several parts of the country since the 2016 presidential election.

Trump is controlling your kids' minds, and making them racist!

One of the Trump administration's greatest achievements in the short time they've been in charge of America is to have created a climate of fear and hostility for brown people, encouraging them to leave—or never come here in the first place.

After all, who would want to be in a place where they're systematically bullied and harassed by both the citizens and law enforcement agencies?

If this process continues to accelerate, by the time Trump is finished with his second term most of these brown people will have left of their own accord.

Fox News Adopts DS Narrative on Mueller Kookspiracy Coup

People don't get it: DS is just ahead of the curve.

On everything.

We are 10 years ahead. That's all.

RT:

Never one to shy away from controversy, Fox News may have crossed the line between biased news coverage and self-satire—intentionally or otherwise—as host Jesse Watters alleged a coup may be underway in the US on Sunday.

The highly inflammatory comments were made during the course of a discussion on special counselor Robert Mueller's investigation into the so-called "Russiagate" scandal of alleged collusion between the Trump presidential campaign and the Russian government.

"We may now have proof the investigation was weaponized to destroy [Trump's] presidency for partisan political purposes and to disenfranchise millions of American voters," Watters said on his show "Watters' World" on Sunday. "Now, if that is true, we have a coup on our hands in America."

Thank you.

It is a coup.

There is no other word to describe this.

Rather conspicuously, Trump counselor Kellyanne Conway appeared shortly after Watters' opening remarks to further hammer home the White House position on the investigation. "The fix was in against Donald Trump from the beginning, and they were pro-Hillary. We understand that people have political views but they are expressing theirs with such animus and such venom towards the now president of the United States they can't possibly be seen as objective or transparent or even-handed or fair," Conway said, without a hint of irony, while appearing above a chyron which read "A coup in America?"

"It's toxic, it's lethal, and it may be fatal to the continuation of people arguing that matter is since behind us, he won he's the president, and the Mueller investigation is something separate," she added.

Fox News firebrand Sean Hannity described Mueller as "a disgrace to the American justice system," who had put the US "on the brink of becoming a banana republic." Legal commentator Greg Jarrett later argued on Hannity's show that Mueller "has been using the FBI as a political weapon. And the FBI has become America's secret police."

If Hannity is going that hard, something is probably coming.

He's not a real edgy guy. And he's not going to say something that edgy without having reason to think the winds are blowing in a certain direction.

Puff Daddy Wants to Buy Nogball Team and Hire Colin Kaepernick...!

A Negro with a lot of money is a funny thing indeed.

Right now, the NFL is collapsing because of anti-white hate pouring out of the pores of this sport. So all of the sudden, along comes Mr. Money Negro and he wants to BUY IN to this failing business AND hire the guy who triggered the collapse to be his frontman.

There are no majority African American NFL owners. Let's make history.

— Diddy (@Diddy) December 18, 2017

Puffy is so disconnected from reality that he believes what the league needs right now is to intensify anti-white hatred. Meanwhile, it is white men—typically, conservative white men—who have funded this whole program and it is them pulling their support that is causing it to collapse.

Puffy's plan is to make this some kind of "all black people" thing. What he doesn't seem to recall is that unlike him, 99.999999% of black people are poor as shit. You can't have "black businesses" because black people have no money.

Fox News:

Hip hop mogul Sean "Diddy" Combs said he hopes to buy the Carolina Panthers so he can sign Colin Kaepernick after the team's current owner announced he will sell the franchise amid sexual misconduct allegations.

Roflmao.

Metooism is the driving force of Western civilization—.

"I would like to buy the @Panthers. Spread the word. Retweet!" Combs wrote on Twitter Sunday evening, noting that he could become the NFL's first majority African American owner. "There are no majority African American NFL owners. Let's make history."

Combs repeated his interest later on Instagram and pledged to sign Kaepernick. He said he would let the former 49ers quarterback compete with Cam Newton for the starting position.

"I will immediately address the Colin Kaepernick situation and put him in the running for next year's starting quarterback," Diddy said in a video. "It's just competition, baby. It's just competition"

Kaepernick has been unable to sign with a club following the controversy of him kneeling during the national anthem in protest. His activism inspired other athletes after President Trump suggested in September that those who kneel should be fired.

Yeah.
He had the last laugh there.

After being fired, he successfully collapsed the entire sport behind him.

Except the last laugh is going to be ours, when we put all of these monkeys on eastbound boats.

RATS! John McCain Home from the Hospital!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

We were all hoping to get the greatest Christmas present of all this holiday season: the death of John McCain.

Now, it seems that great gift may be in jeopardy.

Fox News:

Republican Sen. John McCain has returned home to Arizona, where he plans to stay until January, after he was hospitalized over side effects from treatment of brain cancer, the senator's office announced Sunday.

The trip means McCain almost certainly will miss a crucial vote on the GOP-backed tax reform package this week. Still, Fox News is told that Republicans believe they still have enough votes to advance the package—as early as Tuesday night—even if McCain is out.

President Trump told reporters at the White House Sunday afternoon that he spoke to McCain's wife, Cindy.

"I did speak to Cindy McCain, and I wished her well, I wished John well. They've headed back, but I understand he'll come if we ever needed his vote—which hopefully we won't," Trump told reporters. "But the word is that John will come back if we ever needed his vote. And it's too bad, he's going through a very tough time, no question about it, but he will come back if we need his vote."

"Senator McCain has returned to Arizona and will undergo physical therapy and rehabilitation at Mayo Clinic. He is grateful for the excellent care he continues to receive, and appreciates the outpouring of support from people all over the country. He looks forward to returning to Washington in January," McCain's office announced.

The House and Senate are scheduled to vote this week on the sweeping tax reform plan, which Trump has supported. House and Senate negotiators agreed Friday on a compromise bill that offers a substantial tax cut for corporations and across-the-board cuts for individuals, with final votes in the respective chambers expected this week, Fox News previously reported.

The 81-year-old McCain had been hospitalized at Walter Reed Medical Center in Maryland.

Now in his sixth Senate term, McCain underwent surgery in mid-July to remove a 2-inch blood clot in his brain after being diagnosed with glioblastoma.

The life expectancy for the TOTALLY KICK ASS tumor he's got is 18 months.

And he's had it for a while.

So there's a good chance he could have a seizure and die at any moment. Of course, ideally, he would die on the Senate floor in a humiliating way—foaming at the mouth and shitting himself as fellow traitors vomit.

But the real humiliation comes later. Sometime after McCain's death, people are going to start dumping information on him. It is clear that he collaborated with the Viet Cong, for instance. He is also probably a homosexual, probably a child molester. I would also not be surprised to find that he's active in some kind of elite satanic homosexual pedophilia cult like Alex Jones used to talk about.

This information may come out immediately after he dies. There is likely a group of people who know things who are as excited as we are to see the bastard dead.

The ideal situation would be for his fat whore of a daughter to then have a heart attack or to overdose on crack with one of her niggers.

Speaking of John McCain's children and niggers—his son is married to one.

And not some kind of Zendaya-tier mulatto, but a straight-up tree-swing.

Trump Says He Won't Fire the Criminal Traitor Robert Mueller

Point being: Azzmador has promised a podcast marathon celebration with a star-studded lineup as soon as McCain dies (unless it is actually on Christmas—not because Azz isn't a SOLDJAH, but because the stars wouldn't want to come on).

**Has not committed to be on the show or been told about it.*

We will also be discussing the odds that McCain has already transferred his consciousness to a computer and is planning to return and finish off America.

Not looking good. It's not looking good. It's quite sad to see that. My people are very upset about it. I can't imagine there's anything on 'em, frankly, because as we said, there's no collusion. There's no collusion whatsoever. A lot of lawyers thought that was pretty sad.

The President is saying he won't fire the traitor, despite the illegal behavior.

RT:

US President Donald Trump confirmed on Sunday that he has no plans to sack FBI Special Counsel Robert Mueller, who is leading the "Russia collusion" probe, recently marred by conflicts of interest and improper conduct claims.

Trump echoed various Republican officials who said over the weekend that he was not considering Mueller's dismissal. "No, I'm not," Trump said upon returning from a trip to Camp David.

With new accusations brought against the investigators by Trump's transition team lawyer on Saturday, a number of high-profile White House officials came forward to tell the media that the president was not entertaining the option.

In a letter to Congress on Saturday, the lawyer, Kory Langhofer, alleged that Mueller's office had violated the US constitution by "unlawfully" obtaining troves of emails from a government agency that hosted the transition team's servers. The emails reportedly included confidential lawyer to client communication.

According to Langhofer, "tens of thousands" of emails were inappropriately managed by the General Service Administration, which handed over the emails without notifying the transition team.

Mueller was quick to dismiss the allegations, with his spokesman Peter Carr arguing on Sunday that the Special Counsel's office followed due procedure when he sought the emails. "When we have obtained emails in the course of our ongoing criminal investigation, we have secured either the account owner's consent or appropriate criminal process," he said, as cited by CNN.

Yeah—believe the guy who openly employs aggressive anti-Trump kikes in his witch hunt mania machine.

Robert Mueller's 'pit bull' is coming under intense scrutiny over perceived anti-Trump bias

None of this is credible or believable anymore, and frankly it never was.

Although at least at the beginning, you had an ostensibly well-respect figure (who turned out to be a traitor) in James Comey pushing for this investigation.

Now we know for certain that there is a conspiracy to hoax a conspiracy. Robert Mueller has done so much hoaxing and trickery, he is now a nonviable actor. Nothing he says has any meaning.

The Golden Ticket in this chocolate bar is that the story that Trump was planning to fire the traitor Mueller was clearly planted by Trump.

DS

It was Democrats who spread it.

In a Friday interview, Congresswoman Jackie Speier (D-California) claimed that there was a “rumor” spreading among lawmakers that Trump was poised to fire Mueller before Christmas. She even named an exact date when Trump would make the decision: December 22.

The Democrats are pushing for bipartisan bills to be passed by Congress to protect Mueller from what they see as encroachment by Team Trump. Such measures are an “absolute necessary step,” Sen. Richard Blumenthal (D-Conn.) said earlier in December.

The two bills, sponsored by Republicans and Democrats, seek to limit Trump’s ability to sack Mueller. The first one, put forward by Sens. Thom Tillis (R-N.C.) and Chris Coons (D-Del.) grants Mueller the possibility of a judicial review of the decision, while a bill by Sens. Lindsey Graham (R-S.C.) and Cory Booker (D-N.J.) requests Trump to get a federal court approval if he moves to fire Mueller.

Democrats would not randomly spread this rumor unless they believed it to be true, meaning it was purposefully leaked to them.

So, Trump wanted to get “I might fire him” into the discussion, get the idea into people’s heads that this can happen.

As we’ve said, now would be the perfect time to do it.

But what needs to happen is that the firing of the traitor Mueller needs to be accompanied by an investigation into the investigators. Jeff Sessions needs to open an investigation into the formation of the special counsel. This needs to cover:

- Adam Schiff—key congressional kike who initially solidified the Russian conspiracy theory as a valid concept

- James Comey—used leaks of his own materials to force the appointment of a special counsel
- Hillary Clinton—paid for the fake pissgate “dossier” to be written and then allowed it to be distributed through the government as real intelligence while knowing it was a hoax
- Fusion GPS—created a fake “dossier” involving piss-sex for money and hid this fact
- John McCain—distributed the pissgate file while probably knowing it was fake
- Robert Mueller and his team of Jews—running this whole macabre hoax
- Various Jewish media figures involved in hoaxing the Russian collusion narrative

Simply dismissing Mueller, without making him subject to a reverse investigation would feed into a leftist narrative. However, there is zero chance that if the figures I just listed were investigated that a conspiracy to hoax a conspiracy would not be discovered. All of the evidence that this happened is already public, and if their communications records were seized, that would be game over.

Roy Moore is Still Fighting! Launching Campaign to Investigate Election Fraud!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

If Roy Moore is able to collapse the concept that our Democracy is functional, that votes get counted correctly and no one who isn’t supposed to vote votes, then that will be doing a lot more than he would have done as a Senator.

Because the Democracy is fake. That is why pollsters were able to keep calling it for Clinton up until election night, even while every indicator said Trump would win. Everyone knows illegals are voting, everyone knows there is bus-ing, everyone knows the whole thing is rigged.

It just so happened that Trump won by such a massive amount that he was able to overcome the fraud. Due to a jailbait hoax, which Roy Moore responded to very poorly, the Alabama election was closer.

RT:

Republican candidate Roy Moore is refusing to concede defeat following his loss to Democrat rival Doug Jones in the race for the vacant Senate seat in Alabama.

Moore has reportedly set up an “election integrity fund” to investigate if voter fraud contributed to his loss.

The former state supreme court judge has refused to recognize the defeat which came by a margin of just over 20,000 votes, less than two percent of the overall total. Despite his campaign being rocked by multiple allegations of sexual misconduct, Moore had been favorite to gain the seat held by the Republicans for 25 years.

Last week, Jones claimed a seemingly unlikely victory, with US President Donald Trump even taking to Twitter to congratulate him on his “razor thin” victory. However, Moore has now sent an email to supporters declaring that the “battle is not over.” According to the Associated Press, the email includes a call for donations to a so-called election integrity fund. It’s thought the money will be used to scrutinize voting patterns in the Alabama state election.

Reacting to news of Moore’s fundraising for a voter fraud investigation, Jones told CNN’s State of the Union that his rival should “move on.”

It doesn’t really matter what happens. We win just by Moore staying out there and keeping this issue in the media. That undermines confidence in elections, just him doing that.

And that is a very good thing.

Regarding Moore’s Dumb Strategy in Response to Jailbait Hoax

Moore didn’t lose the election, it was a fraud hoax.

However, he could have won by enough that it couldn’t have been hoaxed if he hadn’t done that horrible Sean Hannity interview. Or rather, if he had done it differently.

Video Link

With that interview, he created a narrative that was a very bad narrative. My narrative on this site was much better, and if he’d have used it, we wouldn’t be in this horrible situation we find ourselves in right now.

My narrative was this:

Yes, I dated high school girls in my early thirties. I am a conservative Christian, and I wanted a girl who was pure. The 14-year-old girl I have never met or heard of, but I did date girls who were between the ages of 16 and 22 at that time, after I had gotten out of the military and established myself in my profession and was ready to get married. I was never inappropriate with any of them, that is the lie. The media has taken something that was true, and might seem peculiar—especially 40 years later—and constructed a false narrative around it. As a conservative Christian, I do not believe in sex before marriage.

I genuinely believe this is the truth. It’s relatively obvious that this is the truth.

But instead of this, he stammered on the issue of dating teen girls at all, and came across as dishonest. He didn’t outright lie per se, but he stumbled enough that it came across as a lie.

“If I did I did, but I don’t recall,” he said.

This was due to bad advice, probably. Hopefully not. Hopefully he went off the reservation with this narrative. Because if it was due to bad advice, then it was bad advice from Steve Bannon, and that would be extremely concerning. If Bannon did think this was a good idea, then he needs to consult with me next time. Or at the very least read the site. I put the crisis management strategy all out there within hours of when the WaPo jailbait piece hit.

Because to me, the narrative that he needed was painfully obvious. Implying that all of the girls were lying was too much, and the dishonesty of that took away from the whole “ordained by God” narrative he was pushing, and thus disheartened white Christian Alabamans and kept them home.

And by the way: I think the “ordained by God” narrative was fine for an Alabama candidate. The religious demographics are there.

Some anti-Christian figures in the Alt-Right are exploiting this, saying that’s why he lost, and that is just nonsense. He lost because of voter fraud primarily and secondarily because of a failure to respond to the jailbait allegations.

However, the narrative could have used a lot more immigration talk. Basically, the gameplan should be to regionally modify Trumpism, but for it to always be Trumpism, which is anti-immigrant and economic nationalist.

I honestly don’t know what this means for the Bannon agenda going forward, but Bannonism—the idea of primarying cucks and replacing them with Trump supporters—remains a viable strategy. The best strategy we have right now, in fact.

More Dead Palestinians

They're killing your dudes, Moslems.

You gonna do something or what?

AP:

Two Palestinians were killed in renewed clashes with Israeli forces, Gaza's Health Ministry said Friday, as Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas urged France and Europe to play a stronger role in peace efforts amid continued fallout over President Donald Trump's recognition of Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

The fresh violence came a day after the U.N. General Assembly resolution denouncing President Donald Trump's decision.

Abbas on a visit to Paris urged France and Europe to play a stronger role in peace efforts, insisting he'll no longer accept any U.S. plans for Mideast peace because of the Trump's position on Jerusalem, which Palestinians see as the administration siding with Israel on the most sensitive issue in the conflict.

Gaza Health Ministry spokesman Ashraf al-Kidra said a 24-year-old and a 29-year-old were killed by live fire in clashes along the border with Israel. Another 45 Palestinians were wounded, he said.

I thought for sure after the guy with no legs was murdered by kikes, the hajis were gonna be ready to make a move.

No so.

Instead, they just continue to whine to big daddy UN to do something.

Because after all: how are they supposed to drive six million Jews into the sea when there are only 2 billion of them???

Evil Feminist Wench Meryl Streep Going Down Enabling Harvey Weinstein Cover-Up!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

It's not only men that are going down over #metoo.

The sluts are going after their own kind that they view as traitors to the Jew molesters.

Metooism is going to wipe Hollywood off the map.

AFP:

She started the year leading the chorus of opprobrium against President Donald Trump but 12 months on Meryl Streep, multiple Oscar-winner and doyenne of the liberal Hollywood elite, has become a target herself.

The 68-year-old is coming under fire over her denials that she knew about the misconduct of movie mogul Harvey Weinstein, who is alleged to have spent his career sexually assaulting, harassing and intimidating women.

Streep has worked on several Weinstein produced films and jokingly referred to him as "God" at the 2012 Golden Globes.

She is not Jewish, btw.

And she refers to a Jew as "God."

This is a recipe for success in America...but then along comes a metoo.

The pre-eminent actress of her generation, Streep has had a glittering 40-year career that has seen her play everything from a Nazi concentration camp survivor to an ABBA-singing mother.

She earned her first of a record 20 Oscar nominations in 1979 for the Vietnam war drama "The Deer Hunter" and has won the coveted golden statue three times, most recently in 2012 as Margaret Thatcher in the Weinstein-distributed "The Iron Lady."

It was her political activism rather than her acting prowess that grabbed headlines during the last awards season, as she received widespread praise, and some criticism, for a speech at the Golden Globes denouncing Trump.

All eyes turned to the actress again as the Weinstein controversy broke in early October, when Streep spoke out to say she was "appalled" by the "disgraceful" news and had no idea about the allegations.

Her denials over Weinstein have sparked incredulity, particularly among activists in the #MeToo social media movement against sexual misconduct who have concluded that those closest to the disgraced producer must have turned a blind eye.

Rose McGowan, one of the campaign's most prominent advocates and an alleged victim of Weinstein, criticized Streep in a since-deleted tweet over plans for actresses to wear black to the Golden Globes in a silent protest against sexual assault.

"YOUR SILENCE is THE problem. You'll accept a fake award breathlessly & affect (sic) no real change. I despise your hypocrisy," McGowan tweeted.

Streep responded in a lengthy statement to the Huffington Post on Monday that she "did not know about Weinstein's crimes, not in the 90s when he attacked (McGowan), or through subsequent decades when he proceeded to attack others."

The new denial has done little to silence her critics, however, and on Tuesday around a dozen posters appeared in Los Angeles, depicting Streep as an enabler of Weinstein, who has always denied nonconsensual sexual contact with any of his accusers.

Sabo, a 49-year-old rightwing guerilla artist and former US marine claimed responsibility for the posters, which show Streep with a red stripe across her face and the text, "She knew."

...

Celebrity branding expert Jeetendr Sehdev solicits opinions twice a year about the rich and famous from 2,000 randomly-selected adults across America as part of an ongoing study established in 2012.

He said 58 percent of those surveyed in October on attitudes to the Weinstein controversy "now feel negatively towards the once beloved Streep" following her initial denials.

"Streep's claims that she didn't know are ludicrous and the kiss of death for her image in Hollywood," the bestselling author of The Kim Kardashian Principle told AFP.

He accused Streep of underestimating the intelligence of the public and the courage of female peers who had spoken out against Weinstein, adding that Clooney also had questions to answer over his response to the scandal.

This is going to sink her anti-Trump and pro-fake news Spielberg movie coming out, "The Post."

Or I mean, this is what they'll blame when that movie sinks. I don't think many people were going to be interested in the first place.

As metoo wrecks everything in sight, including other sluts and homos, Hollywood is rushing to "black wash" everything.

This is really not very popular at all.

RT:

The UN General Assembly has overwhelmingly voted in favor of a resolution calling on the US to reverse its decision to recognise Jerusalem as the capital of Israel. One hundred and twenty eight countries backed the motion.

Nine states voted against the UN resolution and 35 nations abstained. The voting took place at a rare UN General Assembly (UNGA) emergency meeting, convened Thursday at the request of Arab and Muslim nations.

The outcome of the UNGA vote was hailed as a "victory" by Palestine. "We will continue our efforts in the United Nations and at all international forums to put an end to this occupation and to establish our Palestinian state with east Jerusalem as its capital," Abbas' spokesman Nabil Abu Rudainah said.

Turkey's Foreign Minister praised the decision after the vote, saying, that it "once again showed that dignity and sovereignty are not for sale."

The voting was preceded by a number of member states explaining their stance on the US decision to recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

Turkey, which has led the Muslim opposition to the US Jerusalem declaration, was among the first to speak at the meeting. Turkish Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu stressed that only a two-state solution and sticking to the 1967 borders can be a foundation for a lasting peace between Israel and Palestine. The minister said that since Jerusalem is the cradle for the "three monotheistic religions," all of humanity should come together to preserve the status quo.

We're still all patiently waiting for the 2-billion strong global Moslem population to do something other than whine about this (while murdering white people randomly).

It surely wouldn't be hard for these 2 billion people to storm Jerusalem and drive these kikes straight into the sea. But as easy as that would be, it's just not as easy as just whining like a bunch of little babies and demanding white people do something to make the boo-boo stop the ouch-ouch.

Do something, Haji you coward.

Kike Franken "Sets a Date" for His Resignation

This guy is the ultra-kike. Look at those Asiatic eyes.

This is the most Jewish gosh darn thing I've ever witnessed.

He said he would resign due to his endless gropings, then waited a month to give a date on which he would resign.

I guess he had more women to grope on Capital Hill.

Fox News:

Sen. Al Franken has finally set a date for his departure from Congress.

Fox News has learned that Franken's last day will be Jan. 2. Officials with his office say that Franken, D-Minn., plans to make official his resignation at that time. His appointed successor, Lt. Gov. Tina Smith, will be sworn in the next day.

The resignation is set to come nearly a month after Franken announced his plan to leave the Senate. Others in the Senate had called on him to bow out following a flurry of sexual misconduct allegations against him.

In his Dec. 7 resignation speech, Franken said only that he would be leaving in the "coming weeks."

The two-term senator, first elected in 2008, initially intended to let a Senate ethics committee investigate the allegations against him. Then came a seventh claim against him, on Dec. 6, from a woman claiming that Franken tried to forcibly kiss her in 2006. And a chorus of female Democratic senators—including New York's Kirsten Gillibrand and California's Kamala Harris—calling for his resignation, effectively forcing his departure.

I am not aware of anyone else, ever, getting caught in a scandal and scheduling a resignation date.

I guess he thought people would come defend him and he wouldn't have to resign. Some Democrats did defend him and said he shouldn't step down, in fact.

Trump Commutes Sentence of Evil Kike Meat-Packer!

Andrew Anglin

December 21, 2017

Okay so you can call me a Trump sycophant or a shill or whatever you want, but I'm telling you right now that commuting this guy's sentence absolutely is anti-Semitic 12 dimensional chess.

By sparing one Jew a few years in prison, he got the photograph of this greasy yarmulke-wearing yid named "Sholom Rubashkin" at the top of every news website on the planet as the face of illegal immigrant-related criminality.

Fox News:

President Donald Trump on Wednesday issued his first commutation since taking office, freeing the former CEO of an Iowa kosher meatpacking company.

Sholom Rubashkin, who ran the Iowa headquarters of a family business that was the country's largest kosher meat-processing company, was convicted of money laundering in 2009.

His prosecution came after federal authorities staged a dramatic raid on the company's Iowa plant in 2008, arriving by helicopter and detaining 389 illegal immigrants, including children.

The 57-year-old father of 10 submitted fake invoices to a bank that made Agriprocessors' finances appear healthier than they were so that it could borrow more.

He has served more than eight years of his 27-year sentence.

This kike is the face of supervillainy. He is the embodiment of evil.

And he is as Jewish as they come.

In Christianity, we would think of a religious person getting caught committing crimes as being hypocritical. But in Judaism: not so.

Judaism tells its followers to commit crimes against the goyim.

And looking at this story, that idea is going to be popping into a lot of people's heads.

Other Jews are whining about this.

The commutation of his sentence is a cynical move meant to kiss up to the Jewish community (a small part of it) & to reinforce that this administration is anti-immigrant, anti-worker.

That bitch is a rabbi.

They don't want this greasy orthodox kike at the top of every news site.

Synagogue Honors Jewish Murderers and Pimps for Hanukkah

Eric Striker
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

While some Italians and Irish (at least the younger wigger types) do romanticize their 1930s gangsters (thanks to Hollywood), it would be unheard of to sing glorifying sermons to Whitey Bulger or Al Capone in a house of worship during Christmas. On some level, even those who believe in their lionized myths admit that what they were doing was morally wrong.

But not Jews. Jews look to gangsters as archetypes of their race, the closest they get to "canonizing" saints.

Pimping shiksas (Weinstein), killing goyim with drugs (Sacklers), murder (everything from war to abortion to Mossad hits) — Jews today still do what (((Meyer Lansky))) and (((Bugsy Siegel))) were famous for, except on a much larger scale and out in the open.

In this case, a bunch of old Jews in New Jersey think it's appropriate to honor mass murdering criminals in their Synagogue on Hanukkah.

Shore News Today:

On the second day of Hanukkah, a capacity crowd at the Chai Center of Chabad at the Shore heard about Jews and the Mob.

Myron Sugerman spoke at the orthodox synagogue, apologizing to Rabbi Avrohom Rapoport in advance for some of the language he brought to bear at the event.

Sugerman wrote a book about his life, called "The Chronicles of the Last Jewish Gangster from Meyer to Myron."

He said he knew much of the history of Jews in American organized crime through his father, Barney "Sugie" Sugerman, who was in the coin-operated machine business. During his presentation, he mentioned many of the most infamous names of the Prohibition era, including Dutch Schultz, Meyer Lansky and Bugsy Siegel, as well as Italian Mafia figures such as Lucky Luciano.

Far from condemning these men, Sugerman described them as heroic, saying in the early days, they banded together to protect Jewish neighborhoods from anti-Semites and to provide economic opportunity in tough times.

Rapoport opened the event more traditionally, lighting the menorah candles for the second night of Hanukkah and leading those gathered in prayer.

While most of the talk was about gangsters, Rapoport offered an uplifting message. The eight-day holiday celebrates an ancient miracle, when there was only enough oil to light the lamps in the temple for one day, and it burned for eight. He said sometimes someone might feel tired or overwhelmed, and may not feel like they have much to offer.

...

Later, when the pro-Nazi Bund movement grew in strength and numbers in New Jersey in the 1930s, members of these gangs went after them in no uncertain terms. He said groups would go armed with sticks, pipes, bats and brass knuckles. They would drive Bund members from their meetings at beer gardens with smoke bombs and beat them on the street, he said, in a movement organized through the Jewish mob and calling themselves the Minutemen.

"This went on nonstop through the 1930s," he said.

In his talk, Sugerman compared the Jewish crime figures to the Zionists fighting in Palestine for what would eventually become the state of Israel, saying they had much the same outlook and attitude. He called them heroes.

I did an episode of Fascism Now! that was about how the so-called "Antifa" that attacked the German-American Bund (which was a German ethnic advocacy organization with no actual ties to the Third Reich) was actually a bunch of Jew mobsters encouraged by local New York Jewish politicians and "community leaders."

It's not surprising that this Synagogue would draw parallels between Bugsy Siegel and the "Zionists fighting in Palestine."

The brutality Jews bring to organized crime is the same stuff they bring to all other facets of life.

Fitting that this would be part of their Hanukkah festivities. "Jewish Christmas" is nothing but a celebration of mass racial violence against the Hellenic Seleucids just because their culture was different. They were especially brutal towards the few Jews that embraced the superior Greek culture.

Are Jews part of the West? The Maccabean revolt is your answer. The fact that serial killers and pimps are honored as heroes in their "holy" spaces is just a contemporary reminder.

A lone protester went down to Twitter's headquarters in Silicon Valley to protest Jewish censorship.

Patrick Little, who I believe is running for office in San Francisco, was "confronted" by two Jewish inbreds who engaged in hate speech against him.

Notice the contrast: Mr. Little's sign is basically asserting the right to be white (which means respecting Western cultural values, like freedom of speech) on Twitter, and two Jews flanking him with signs calling him a "white asshole" and "white supremacist."

The hate from these two is palpable. How would they like it if someone returned the racial slurs and called them baby-fellating half-neanderthals?

In a place like SF, this takes a lot of bravery.

Free speech is rapidly dying in America. The only way to preserve it is to politically organize in its defense against the Semitic jackals slowly approaching and growling as the First Amendment tries to limp away.

The other day, Israeli military forces shot dead a Palestinian protester who had no legs. Israel has now declared that shooting and killing this protester was the proper thing to do.

AP:

An investigation by the Israeli military into the death of a paraplegic Palestinian man cleared Israeli troops of wrongdoing on Monday, saying it found "no moral or professional failures" in the incident.

Palestinian health officials say Ibrahim Abu Thraya, 29, was shot in the head while demonstrating last week along Gaza's border with Israel, an area that has experienced repeated unrest since President Donald Trump recognized Jerusalem as Israel's capital this month.

Abu Thraya's death has become a rallying cry among Palestinians against Trump's move, which upended decades of U.S. foreign policy and countered an international consensus that the fate of Jerusalem should be determined in negotiations between Israel and the Palestinians.

The military said Friday's protest was "extremely violent," with protesters hurling stones, burning tires and explosive devices at troops. In its findings Monday, it said no live fire was aimed at Abu Thraya and it was impossible to determine the cause of death. The military said it has repeatedly requested details about Abu Thraya's injuries and will examine them if they are received. The military did not disclose from whom it had requested details.

Israel rarely finds their military personnel at fault for anything. Even shooting a man with no legs is considered proper by the Jews.

Shooting this man was not smart from a public relations standpoint though. They've turned this man into a martyr. He will be a source of inspiration for other Palestinians to stand up against them.

One thing is for sure, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is not calming down anytime soon. Donald Trump's Jerusalem declaration has poked a hornet's nest and there's no turning back from it.

Mike Pence is also scheduled to visit Israel soon. The Palestinians are preparing for a day of rage to coincide with the visit.

Let's hope things get increasingly more chaotic. The only way this situation is ever going to be settled is through a war. The Arabs have the numbers in spades. They could easily take back Jerusalem if they got their act together. Allah can't be pleased with these very gay and very ineffective street protests.

Global Jewry Attacks Austria's New "Far-Right" Government

Diversity Macht Frei
December 19, 2017

Whenever Europeans try to defend their countries against Muslim invasion, Jews rally to the defence of their Semitic brothers. The Jew as Ally of the Muslim is a story as old as Islam itself.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who also holds the foreign affairs portfolio, said Monday that Israel will boycott Austria's far-right ministers, instructing Israeli ministers to work only with lower-ranking officials.

Seeking to cool ties with the Austrian government were officials at the Foreign Ministry, while officials at the Prime Minister's Office were inclined to accept statements by the far-right Freedom Party that it has broken with its anti-Semitic roots, political sources said.

The new Austrian government took office Monday following two months of negotiations between Sebastian Kurz, the new chancellor and head of the center-right People's Party, and Heinz-Christian Strache, whose Freedom Party came in third in the October election after the People's Party and Social Democrats.

When Strache's party joined a coalition government in 2000, Israel recalled its ambassador and downgraded relations. But this time the response had been slow.

A statement released Monday at the close of discussions between the Foreign Ministry and Prime Minister's Office said that "Israel will conduct working relations with civil servants in the ministries now led by Freedom Party ministers.... Israel seeks to stress its responsibility to fight anti-Semitism and to commemorate the memory of the Holocaust."

The statement added that Netanyahu "has a direct line of communication with the Austrian chancellor-elect," and that he has instructed Yuval Rotem, director general of the Foreign Ministry, to craft an official stance on how Israel will conduct its relationship with the new Austrian government.

Strache is the successor of the Freedom Party's longtime leader Jörg Haider, who died in a car accident in 2008. The party's critics say it has still not disassociated itself from its Nazi and anti-Semitic roots. Some of its supporters greet its leaders with a Nazi salute, and Strache once posted an anti-Semitic political cartoon on Facebook and adorned a campaign poster with a slogan with Nazi overtones.

But in recent years, Strache has tried to portray himself as a friend of Israel. He has promised to move Austria's embassy to Jerusalem and has supported Israel's construction of settlements in the West Bank.

He has visited Israel at least three times in recent years, meeting with senior members of Netanyahu's Likud party and touring the Yad Vashem Holocaust memorial and museum. But on his most recent visit last year, former President Shimon Peres refused to meet with him, on the recommendation of the Foreign Ministry.

Ronald Lauder, president of the World Jewish Congress—which was among Jewish groups that had called on Kurz not to include the FPÖ in his government—was vocal in his concern over the new coalition.

In a statement released Sunday, he congratulated Kurz as "a capable man who has shown very positive attitudes toward Israel and the Jewish people." He said, however, that it was "severely disquieting that, despite the many real concerns known and expressed about the FPÖ, it will now retain a position of serious influence, giving the Austrian government a real push even further to the Right."

"I hope he [Kurz] will make every effort to ensure that the policies set within his government continue to follow a democratic line and do not dissolve into dangerous populism," he added.

"The FPÖ is a far-right party whose members have in the past expressed xenophobic and antisemitic sentiments. Yet it has now been charged with overseeing the interior, defense, and foreign ministries, three of the most important and powerful fields of government," Lauder continued. "We have heard promises since the election that FPÖ has softened its policies, but this will remain rhetoric until actual proof of this is shown."

The European Jewish Congress echoed this sentiment. “The FPÖ has a long history of antisemitism and xenophobia and we are concerned about the fact that they will control government ministries in the new Austrian Government,” Dr. Moshe Kantor, president of the EJC, said Monday. “However, we hope that rather than as expected, that the Freedom Party will have an undue influence on the direction of the government led by the People’s Party, the chancellor and his party will be able to discipline the intolerant elements within the FPÖ.

“The Freedom Party has tried to correct these elements of its past and ideology and now we need to see concrete steps to show that these are not publicity stunts or they will remain outside of the pale for the Jewish community. The Freedom Party can not use the Jewish community as a fig leaf and must show tolerance and acceptance towards all communities and minorities,” Kantor added.

In an email sent after the elections, Oskar Deutsch, president of the Jewish Communities of Austria, wrote that the Jewish community, as well as the World Jewish Congress and the European Jewish Congress, called on Kurz not to include the FPÖ in the next government because “many representatives of the FPÖ,” including Strache, have “used antisemitic codes, made extreme right-wing statements and have promoted hatred and racism,” including during the recent electoral campaign.

The letter also stated that several of the party’s candidates have in the past “called for the elimination of legislation against Holocaust denial.”

The Board of Deputies of British Jews also expressed “deep concern” on Monday over the coalition agreement.

The board’s senior vice president Richard Verber said: “The far Right brought unprecedented misery on Austria and other European countries in the past. It is up to all European countries, including the new government of Austria, to make sure it does not do so again in the future.”

“We fully support the position adopted by the Austrian Jewish community, European Jewish Congress and World Jewish Congress of non-engagement with the far Right in Europe,” he added. “While some parties claim to have disavowed their antisemitic and racist roots, actions speak much louder than words. We urge the European Union and other international partners to carefully monitor the situation in the coming weeks and months and respond as appropriate.”

Rabbi Menachem Margolin, founder of the European Jewish Association called on the new government to join other countries in appointing a special government representative to initiate and coordinate government action to eradicate antisemitism and xenophobia in Austria, “and to clarify that freedom of religion in Austria will remain unchanged.”

9th Circuit Kike Judge Goes Down! Metooism is Unstoppable!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

Jews OUT! Back to Romania, you gropey KIKE! DO NOT WANT!

So now we’ve got a top kike judge going under.

Wtf I love feminism now.

Metooism is the best thing ever.
Washington Post:

Alex Kozinski, the powerful judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit who was facing a judicial investigation over allegations that he subjected 15 women to inappropriate sexual behavior, announced Monday that he would retire effective immediately.

In a statement provided by his lawyer, Kozinski apologized, saying that he “had a broad sense of humor and a candid way of speaking to both male and female law clerks alike” and that, “in doing so, I may not have been mindful enough of the special challenges and pressures that women face in the workplace.”

“It grieves me to learn that I caused any of my clerks to feel uncomfortable; this was never my intent,” he said. “For this I sincerely apologize.”

Kozinski, 67, said that although family and friends had urged him to stay on, “at least long enough to defend myself,” he “cannot be an effective judge and simultaneously fight this battle. Nor would such a battle be good for my beloved federal judiciary. And so I am making the decision to retire, effective immediately.”

The announcement comes just days after The Washington Post reported that nine more women had accused Kozinski of making sexual comments to them or of other conduct, including four who said he touched them inappropriately. That story followed an earlier report in The Post, which detailed the allegations of six women, including former clerks who said Kozinski showed them porn in his chambers.

After the first report, the chief judge of the 9th Circuit initiated a review of Kozinski’s conduct, and the case was assigned Friday to the 2nd Circuit Judicial Council. It was not immediately clear what would happen to that inquiry or what would happen to the legal matters to which Kozinski is assigned.

"One or more" of Kozinski's clerks had resigned after the allegations against Kozinski became public, a court official has said.

Kozinski was appointed to the 9th Circuit by President Ronald Reagan in 1985 and over time became one of the most well-known federal appeals court judges in the country. He served as chief of the 9th Circuit from 2007 to 2014. He often wrote colorful opinions and, unlike many of his colleagues on the bench, did not shy from media appearances.

Yeah, he's a YUGE Jew. People probably don't recognize his name, but he was extremely powerful.

He's the kike who defended the 9th Circuit decision to declare that because the Pledge of Allegiance says "under God" that you can't say it in a public school.

INFINITE METOOISM

Along with just the immediate effect of wiping these filthy scumbuckets out of the government, we've also got the secondary effect of the fact that they are all Jews and surely that pattern cannot go unnoticed indefinitely.

Keep hitting it, hitting it, hitting it in the comments section, on Twitter—everywhere. In real life too. This is a great, great talking point. Because the pattern stretches across all fields. Everywhere, it's Jews.

This is seriously like a pogrom. And I'm not even joking when I say that they're going to start shilling for some type of affirmative action in molestation reports. That is 100% not a joke. And it will happen. Jewish papers are already suggesting that Metooism is some kind of anti-Semitic conspiracy. Remember that the kikes literally said Roman Pulanski was allowed to rape and sodomize a 13-year-old because of the Holocaust, so they're not going to have a problem putting forward some kind of "Jews are allowed to molest you" argument.

It actually makes white men look very good, this whole thing, as they just aren't getting attacked for any of this pervert stuff.

„Hier, Kleiner, halt du etwas ganz Schönes! Aber dafür müßt ihr beide mit mir gehen...“

Speaking of Jewish perverts in the government—Al Franken has yet to resign.

And the deranged kook Joe Manchin is out there saying he shouldn't!

CNN:

Sen. Joe Manchin said Monday fellow Sen. Al Franken should not resign in the wake of allegations of sexual misconduct.

Manchin, a West Virginia Democrat, told CNN's "New Day" that Franken should have remained in the Senate and proceeded through an ethics review.

"I definitely think he should not resign. I think he should submit himself, which he has willingly done and offered to do and go through this complete process of an extensive ethics review," Manchin said, adding that Franken should pledge to abide by whatever the committee recommends.

"And whatever the outcome is, I can live with that. I say, Al, I'm sorry, you have faults that you've never recognized and these ladies have brought this forward. And these ladies should be protected."

Over the last two months, Franken has been accused of groping and forcibly kissing women in incidents as early as 2006.

Franken was obviously plotting something like this. Otherwise he would have just resigned.

Who says "I've decided to plan to resign sometime"?

I've never heard of that.

But you know what, it worked. People definitely stopped calling on him to resign after he said he was going to resign sometime. Even I forgot about it, to be honest. The only reason he would have made such a bizarre move is if he thought it would blow over.

This is why kikes invented the word "chutzpah."

Demetrius Blackwell.

How can you be imprisoned for your own vibrant cultural heritage?

New York Post:

Queens cop-killer Demetrius Blackwell was slammed Tuesday with the maximum prison sentence—life without parole—for the first-degree murder of NYPD Detective Brian Moore.

Blackwell, 37, was convicted of fatally shooting the 25-year-old officer in the head while Moore was on patrol with his partner in May 2015.

Outside the courthouse, Moore's father, Raymond, said the cop-killer deserves to die.

"If New York state had the death penalty, I'd love to see this animal put down once and for all," the former NYPD sergeant raged.

Over the course of the three-week trial, Moore's partner, Erik Jansen, testified that Blackwell opened fire on them when Moore called him out for adjusting his waistband.

Moore asked Blackwell if he was packing a gun, and "[Blackwell] said, 'Yeah, I got something!' and he turned right towards the car and shot Brian," Jansen testified.

Moore died two days later at Jamaica Hospital.

Cleveland:

A woman is charged in connection with the ambush-style robbery of a Cleveland priest who dodged gunfire as he ran for his life.

Kenitra Robinson, 18, is charged with attempted murder, felonious assault, aggravated robbery, kidnapping and receiving stolen property. She is free after posting a $20,000 bond on Saturday.

Her arraignment is scheduled for Jan. 5.

Four teens—two 16-year-old boys, a 15-year-old boy and a 15-year-old girl—are charged with the juvenile equivalents of aggravated robbery, felonious assault and receiving stolen property.

Robinson is accused of being part of a group that was with the two teens who robbed Rev. John Kumse on Dec. 11 outside St. Mary of the Assumption, located on Holmes Avenue near East 155th Street in the city's Collinwood neighborhood.

The robbers ran up, pointed a gun at Kumse and said "give me the eggs," police reports say.

According to the police documents, the witness said "the suspects then took the male inside of the residence via forcibly opening the rear door of the residence, and dragging him inside while continually assaulting the victim."

Once officers got to the home and went inside, they found Mullins tied up.

"Inside of the residence, the officers observed a white male with his hands and feet bound with cords and rope," the police documents stated. "They used extension cords found inside of the residence to tie up the deceased and a bandana to shove into the deceased's mouth to muffle his screams."

The victim was not breathing.

"The bound male, later identified as the deceased victim, did not have a pulse, and was moved to the front of the residence where lifesaving efforts were attempted," stated police documents. The victim was taken to the hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Police say that officers then heard noises coming from overhead and discovered two men hiding in the attic.

Both men were arrested at the scene.

The suspects have been identified as 20-year-old Torre Sanders and a 17-year-old Jordan Hosey, who is being charged as an adult.

Blacks Go on a Crime Spree on DART Trains

All of the guys shown in the surveillance footage were Black.

But no one mentions that in the media, because their style guide says not to.

Fox News:

Facing mounting scrutiny after a series of high-profile crimes on its trains, DART says it's been stepping up visible security presence.

DART plans to spend millions on equipment and guards. They say most of the trains have an officer on board. But that's not what a FOX 4 crew saw when they took a few rides Tuesday afternoon.

DART hopes to have police and/or security officers on 100 percent of its trains by early next year. They say they are on 85 percent of the trains now.

For someone who rides the DART trains occasionally, that number seems high.

FOX 4 Reporter Richard Ray and Photographer Sam Hernandez rode the trains for about 90 minutes during rush hour on Tuesday. They split up and took the green, red and orange lines. They saw a number of police officers and security guards stationed outside DART stations but did not see a single uniformed officer riding inside a train.

The incident happened Friday night when officers responded to a request for help from mall security about a large group of juveniles, according to WTVA.

The mall was closed, so the officer assisted security in removing the teens from the mall. One of the people removed was Drew Smith, 18, and rather than leave, Smith squared up to the officer and got in his face.

When the officer pushed him back, Smith assaulted the police officer.

There are two things to take from this story:

1) Blacks will just do whatever the hell they want and whatever the hell they want is probably criminal in nature.

2) Cops are lazy morons who will do absolutely nothing to stop anything until they are publicly shamed on the news.

ABC:

Countless homes across Philadelphia have been stolen for months at time, taken over by squatters who refuse to leave.

And the frightening thing is lawmakers warn this could happen to anyone who leaves their home vacant, even for a short amount of time.

These groups of criminals break into houses and some even try to extort owners for money in a scheme called "Cash for Keys."

Action News Troubleshooters tracked down a squatter who fesses up to her illegal involvement and explains just how easy it is for squatters to take over your home.

"If y'all want us to leave now, you have to give us something," says a masked woman in our undercover video.

The woman behind this mask is Taniesha Diaz, hiding her face after Action News busted her and others living illegally in a Northwood home.

The four bedroom, two bath property has been owned by Matthew Waychoff for 10 years.

"The house was move-in ready," said Waychoff.

That makes it the perfect place for squatters to move in. Waychoff says neighbors frantically called on him in the middle of the night saying burglars had broken in.

He says the squatters showed police a fake lease and officers refused to throw them out.

Blacks will always attack weak targets. Or at least targets they perceive as weak. It is a primitive, jungle predatory pattern.

An elderly man's attacker could be released from prison this month.

"He uses a walker to this day. His ability to do things he enjoyed like play golf, ride bicycles, those are nonexistent anymore," said Peter Hitechew.

Perry Hitechew called his 92-year-old grandfather, Robert, a friend. Robert has lived in Las Vegas for 55 years and is also a World War II veteran.

"These golden years have not been so golden due to this and there's nothing I can do to undo that," said Hitechew.

Hitechew can't change the past, but he hopes to change the future by telling his story. Robert was attacked and robbed while walking home two years ago.

Herbert Jackson Jr. and a 15-year-old boy were arrested.

"Mr. Jackson and his accomplice stalked him across the street and waited until he got into a residential area outside of prying eyes and came up from behind him and hit him on the head from behind," Hitechew said.

The thief, caught on home security camera, stole the package off his porch. The woman ran up in a blue hoodie and dark pants, wearing only socks on her feet.

"When I watched her carry it out, I thought, 'How heavy can that be?' So I looked it up. The shipping weight on Amazon is 66 pounds," Elwonger said.

He believes that might have been why she dumped it, or she just didn't have any interest in a treadmill.

It's Time to Erase Matt Damon from History

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 22, 2017

It's over, Matt. Give up. You can't win.

Matt Damon is a sexist.
He is pure evil.

It is time to erase him from human history.

AFP:

Oscar-winner Matt Damon has alienated friends with remarks over the sexual misconduct firestorm blazing through Hollywood, but enough to become the next male star on the cutting room floor?

An online petition demanding the dumping of his cameo in 2018 heist movie “Ocean’s 8” has nearly reached its goal of 17,000 signatures—signed by more than 16,620 supporters by late afternoon New York time Thursday.

Critics say his inclusion would be particularly galling given its status as an all female reboot of the popular franchise, starring Cate Blanchett, Sandra Bullock, Anne Hathaway and Helena Bonham Carter.

The petition calls on “Oceans 8” producers George Clooney and Steven Soderbergh, “to toss Damon’s Oceans 8 cameo where it belongs: on the cutting room floor.”

It alleges that he “enabled” Harvey Weinstein’s conduct by trying to squash a New York Times report in 2004 that detailed instances where the now fallen Hollywood mogul exploited his status as a studio executive to harass and assault women.

Damon denied trying to bury the story and claimed he had no idea of the allegations against Weinstein, who helped catapult him into an international household name.

The actor also came under fire last week, for telling ABC News that there was a “spectrum of behavior” and a “difference between, you know, patting someone on the butt and rape or child molestation, right?”

No Matt.

There is no difference.

It is all oppression of women and you are an enabler and it is time for you to be erased from history.

His long-time friend, Ben Affleck, with whom he shared an Oscar for best screenplay over 1997 movie

“Good Will Hunting” and Affleck’s actor brother Casey, have also been accused publicly in recent months of sexual misconduct.

“This behavior is beyond enabling—it’s just gross. Matt Damon should not be in this movie,” said the petitioner.

You’ll never work in this town again, Matt.

Because Hollywood respects women.

And we just don’t tolerate this sort of thing. And by “sort of thing,” I mean that comment you made about patting a but being different than child-rape.

This is one of those headlines where you don’t have to click it to know the race.

But isn't it racist to report on black people doing things like this, since only black people do things like this?

Washington Post:

An infant in Texas has been found alive and apparently unharmed less than 48 hours after panicked relatives made a horrifying discovery: The 6-week-old girl’s mother was dead on the floor of her Houston apartment, and the baby was nowhere to be seen.

Authorities said Thursday morning the baby, Shamali Flores, was found in a different apartment in the city after a frantic search and amid police speculation she may have been abducted by a woman who had lost her own child. Police later said a suspect, Erika Jisela Miranda-Alvarez, 28, has been arrested and charged with capital murder in the stabbing of the child's mother.

Police said it's up to the district attorney whether Miranda-Alvarez will be also charged with kidnapping in the case.

Houston Police Chief Art Acevedo said during an afternoon news conference that Miranda-Alvarez had recently had a miscarriage, which she had been attempting to hide from her boyfriend, when she killed 33-year-old Carolina Flores and then took the woman's baby.

"Everything that our outstanding investigators theorized turned out to be true," Acevedo told reporters.

So basically: this would be normal behavior in an African jungle. In a European village, not so much.

It really, really is not hard to understand the world if you look at it in racial terms.

The Jews Have Killed the Star Wars Franchise

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 21, 2017

Even the most die hard of Star Wars fans are not liking the latest Star Wars movie.

A few years back, Jew-run Disney purchased LucasFilm and with it the rights to produce new Star Wars movies. The franchise, once an important part of American pop culture, has been left in ruins thanks to Disney.

This process began with Star Wars: The Force Awakens which inserted all sorts of multiculturalism and social justice warrior narratives into the plot. This was not a surprise considering that the film was directed by the Jew J.J. Abrams. The bad guys were mostly all White males and the good guys were mostly a mix of women and non-Whites. Han Solo, one of the few White male good guy characters from the original trilogy, was even killed off in the movie.

The Force Awakens was bad enough, but not bad enough to get the average Star Wars fan to raise a big fuss. Star Wars: The Last Jedi, the latest movie in the series, has been something entirely different. This film has been widely panned by audiences. Older fans who fondly remember the original films have been especially harsh in their reviews.

What's interesting to note is the disparity between the "critics" and the audience. The "critics" gave it glowing reviews, whereas audience reviews were mixed. The Jew media is blaming online trolls for the difference, but much of the criticism has been perfectly legitimate. An overload of cringe worthy jokes, poor story telling and the elevation of unimportant characters over more interesting ones have been some of the most common complaints. The new film also continues shoving feminism and diversity down everyone's throats.

Video Link

PewDiePie reviewed it and he thought it sucked. He gave it a 3.5 out of 10. Many of the people commenting on his review have fully agreed with his analysis. Unlike the "critics," he gave the film an honest review.

The Last Jedi is the culmination of the Jews at Disney trying to milk the Star Wars franchise for as many shekels as possible. Instead of taking their time to create a solid product, they've been rushing to shit out as many Star Wars movies as they can. This includes spin-off movies like Rogue One and the upcoming Han Solo film. The quality of these products has been of secondary concern. It couldn't be any more obvious at this point.

Disney's expectation is that people will rush out to see any film with the Star Wars branding no matter how awful it is. Even though they might be able to get away with this for a few more movies, they have killed the magic that made the original Star Wars films a cultural phenomenon. The backlash against The Last Jedi is proof of that.

Even though the film opened well, it is lagging behind the box office receipts of The Force Awakens. Merchandise sales are also lagging.

It is good that the Jews through their own greed have managed to ruin another cultural mainstay. We are slowly taking over the culture thanks to their incompetence.

Bribing a public official is a crime. Therefore, the proper law enforcement organizations need to be contacted so they can initiate a proper investigation into O'Donnell.

In fact, bribing a public official can result in massive fines and jail terms of up to 15 years. It is no laughing matter.

Based on her tweet, she is clearly guilty of trying to bribe two public officials. She should immediately be arrested and put in jail.

I'd also like to call on Twitter to have her banned from the service. Are they really going to allow their platform to be used by somebody who thinks it is OK to bribe public officials? Continuing to allow her to use the platform would send a terrible message to our youth. She needs to be banned immediately.

Mark Dice has theorized that O'Donnell is the first cow to have contracted mad cow disease. This, he says, has been the cause of her bizarre behavior. Still, this is no excuse for her law breaking. If I were a judge I'd lock her up for 15 years and force her to pay millions of dollars in fines. She should also be forced to apologize for polluting our culture with her horrible acting and unfunny attempts at comedy.

McDonald's Introducing VEGAS BURGER in Sweden

HIZZAH!

MAYBE A GOOD HEALTHY
DOSE OF HOOKERS, COCAINE

AND DICE WILL KNOCK OUT A WEE BIT OF THE CUCKOLDRY!

Wait what no.

Hol up.

CNN:

McDonald's is going vegan.

The fast food chain plans to start selling a McVegan burger in hundreds of restaurants across Sweden and Finland starting on December 28.

The sandwich, which has already been tested at a handful of McDonald's locations in Finland, consists of a soy patty, bun, tomato, lettuce, pickles, onion, ketchup, mustard, oil and an egg-less sandwich sauce.

"Like our other burgers, the McVegan is tasty and has a good texture," said McDonald's (MCD) spokesperson Henrik Nerell.

The meatless burger, which was developed in partnership with a specialty Norwegian food company called Orkla, could help the American chain capitalize on increased demand for vegetarian and vegan foods.

McDonald's said the burger will be on its permanent menu in the two countries, a response to "more and more" people wanting to eat "plant-based food" that is better for the environment.

"As the main ingredient is plant-based, the McVegan is considered to have a smaller climate impact," McDonald's said. Livestock farming is responsible for around 14.5% of global greenhouse gas emissions, according to the UN.

I would like to try this, actually. Just for an experiment. Allegedly, McDonald's burgers are 100% beef, but they do not taste like beef. I think it could be a shocking revelation if you ate this vegan burger and it was exactly the same as their normal burgers.

What I know is that the government refuses to investigate Facebook claims claiming it is made of purple slime.

Skank Teacher Plied Student with Weed and Booze for Sex

These sluts are out of control.

This is what happens when thots remain too long without being patrolled: they start bribing high-school students with weed and alcohol in order to have sex with them.

It's time to start talking about taking women out of teaching roles, as it's clear that they're all sexual predators preying on our kids.

USA Today:

A former Oregon Christian school teacher was arrested last week for allegedly having sex with a teenage student, according to authorities.

Andrea Nicole Baber, 29, was arrested at her home in Cottage Grove, Ore. on Friday, over a week after her husband walked in on her and the teen in bed, Oregon newspaper The News-Review reported, citing court documents.

According to authorities, the student's father reported Baber to police on Dec. 12, after he received an anonymous email asking whether he was aware that his son and the Logos Christian Academy teacher were having a sexual relationship, local outlet the Register-Guard reported.

Sounds like we've got a thot emergency on our hands!

Photos of Baber and the teen in bed together were attached in the email, according to the News-Review.

In other words, the husband is almost certainly the one who sent him the email, probably hoping the father would patrol his bitch for him.

Kind of weak, tbh. You're supposed to do that yourself. Oh well. Either way, she's going to pay for her crimes, so all's well.

The teen told authorities he and Baber had been in a sexual relationship since he was 15, and that she gave him weed and alcohol, the News-Review reported.

The Douglas County Sheriff's office arrested Baber on suspicion of third-degree rape, third-degree sodomy, and unlawful delivery of marijuana to a minor, among other charges, the newspaper reported.

Wew.

Imagine being such a bitch that the only way you can get high school students to have sex with you is by plying them with weed and liquor. Sad!

Maybe if you hit the gym once in a while you could convince horny 16-year-olds to do you for free?

If only we had White Sharia, all this could have been avoided. This woman wouldn't be facing jail time, a boy would have gone unmolested, and a husband would still be uncucked. Think about that.

And they have the nerve to think they have the moral high ground?

Ocean's 8: The Feminist Version of Ocean's 11 Looks Absolutely Awful

Lee Rogers

It is becoming increasingly obvious that Hollywood has no original ideas. The vast majority of Hollywood films are remakes of older movies, sequels or superhero movies based off of comic book characters. The few original movies released in recent years have not done well [Excluding Blade Runner 2049. -AA].

Further illustrating the creative problems within Hollywood is this new feminist remake of Ocean's 11 called Ocean's 8. The original Ocean's 11 film came out in 1960 starring Frank Sinatra. That movie was already remade in the early 2000s spawning a number of sequels.

The trailer for Ocean's 8 came out today and as expected it is one of the most awful things imaginable.

Did they not learn from the disaster that was the feminist Ghostbusters remake? The trailer for that film became one of the most hated YouTube videos of all time netting over a million dislikes. They ruined an entire movie franchise with over the top feminism put into the film. Don't believe me? Watch the trailer for yourself. It's one of the most cancerous things you'll ever see.

Video Link

There's the distinct possibility that Ocean's 8 could suffer the same fate as the feminist Ghostbusters remake. There is nothing appealing at all about Sandra

Bullock and a multiracial troupe of middle-aged women scheming a heist. Why the hell would anybody want to see such non-sense? It's just another attempt to cram feminism down our throats. Haven't they gotten the message that people are tiring of this crap? Guess not!

Please go on YouTube and mash the dislike button for the official trailer. Feminism is a cancer which has destroyed Western civilization. Films pushing feminism, girl power and associated non-sense need to be openly criticized and boycott for the garbage that it is.

You can't call for full-Nazism on Twitter anymore.

But you can call for full-Communism.

The Wrap:

A science editor at BuzzFeed UK raised a few eyebrows last week after some curious remarks about Communism.

"All I want for Christmas is full Communism now," editor Kelly Oakes tweeted—before locking down her account after it was picked by right-wing media and the always ferocious James Woods.

A spokesperson for BuzzFeed declined to comment on the matter. Oakes, who does not report to the website's U.S.-based science desk, did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Critics pointed out that Communism as practiced by the Soviet Union, China and North Korea has led to the deaths of over 100 million people, according to the Victims of Communism Memorial Foundation.

It's not the first time BuzzFeed has gotten into hot water over their editorial staff tweeting their open sympathy toward Communism.

Probably, the reason you are allowed to call for communism and not Nazism is because of the Jews.

It is funny to think though that the staff of BuzzFeed are actually communists. Like much more so than I am an actual "Nazi." I just love Hitler and want Jews to be gassed (something that Hitler didn't actually even do). Otherwise, I'm more into "America as New Rome."

These people actually want to nationalize all industry and starve a bunch of random peasants to death.

This bitch could definitely use a few weeks on the communism diet though.

Although a few high profile rightist accounts were banned, including that of Britain First and American Renaissance, most of the more hated accounts still remain.

Along with major figures remaining, the entire team of anonymous Groyppers appears to have remained untouched.

It wasn't just Jews pointing out the weirdness of it.

As of now, I don't see any systematic method to the #TwitterPurge. I've lost more than a hundred followers in 24 hrs, but lots of pro-White accounts, even shitlordy ones, remain. @jartaylor got purged, but not @Steve_Sailer, @vdare, @TOOEdit, et al. Haphazard.

— Richard Spencer (@RichardB-Spencer) December 18, 2017

In fact, on the day he was supposed to be purged, Richard Spencer succeeded in bullying Ta-Nahisi Coates off the site.

After seeing Nazi Richard Spencer join Cornel West and Bernie Sanders far left fans in ridiculing him, black intellectual Ta Nehisi Coates leaves twitter

Nice one, Berners pic.twitter.com/oco4G

— T. Fisher King (@T_FisherKing) December 19, 2017

Clearly, the Jews who demanded this purge are not going to be satisfied with this. What they had expected—and what I had expected, to be frank—was that they had a prepared list of accounts they were going to ban and they would just push a button and they would all be gone in a flash.

Apparently what they will do is just slowly pick people off over a period of time. This obviously indicates that they want the business of “Nazis,” and are just hoping that they simmer down a little bit and come closer to conforming to the new rules to avoid a ban; this is something which I would think would upset the Jews.

They have already made a commitment to ban everyone who disagrees with the mainstream, so there is no way out of it now. They made a promise to Globo-Judeo.

Slippery Sloped

There is no way to make this work.

@jack should have never banned Chuck Johnson, Andrew Anglin and MILO. That is what started all of this. He got bullied into banning a handful of people, then the ADL/SPLC Jewish terror machine showed up and said “so you’ll ban them, but you won’t ban the rest of these evil wrongthinkers????”

When you lose the high-ground of “it’s free speech,” there is no point at which you can draw a line between what is okay and what isn’t okay.

This is why it was so brilliant for Matthew Prince of Cloudflare to ban me and then say “now I’ve got 35,000 requests to ban people, and it isn’t my job to decide which ones are valid.”

And yes, I am aware that Twitter stock went up yesterday.

I would put forward that this is just because Jews believe their own bullshit.

Also, there is now a supposed chance @jack will be able to sell the site, which would briefly give it a stock boost.

But ultimately, censorship is not sustainable on a major internet platform because of the slippery slope. Me and my team already have hundreds of fake liberal accounts set up that are going to demand all sorts of people be banned. After the Alt-Right purge is finished, we’re going to stir up demands the Alt-Lite be banished, then we’re going to call for mainstream boomercons to be banished.

What Twitter should have done is allow the ADL to create a “hate list” of wrongthinking accounts and give people who are afraid of ideas that conflict with their sanitized fake reality to voluntarily sign-up for an ADL blocking list. That would have put the Jews in a position where they would have to openly say “we aren’t just trying to stop supposed harassment, we are literally trying to control what people are allowed to think,” which would be difficult for them.

I am confident that Twitter is going to collapse because of this censorship program, and I am confident that when Silicon Valley sees this collapse, they are going to begin supporting laws which would force them to honor the First Amendment.

Twitter is Allowing Shocking Racism Against FCC Chairman Ajit Pai

Lee Rogers

I am shocked to see that Twitter is allowing such horribly racist posts against FCC Chairman Ajit Pai to remain online.

Once again, we see Twitter being exposed for its hypocrisy and double standards. Even though they have banned pretty much anybody of note pushing pro-European views, they’re allowing users on the political left to spew as much hate and racism as they like.

Of particular note is all the racism directed towards Federal Communications Commission Chairman Ajit Pai. The Daily Caller compiled a number of these hateful tweets and noted that these users had not been banned as they should have been per Twitter’s own policies.

It would be justifiable homicide as he has committed treason against the american people. you could never find 12 people in this country that would convict someone for it.

— joseph schneider (@schneider1492) December 15, 2017

Under normal circumstances, I wouldn't give a shit if someone wanted to use racial slurs to articulate their political views. That's because I actually do believe in free political speech. However, we are not operating under normal circumstances. Twitter has once again decided to selectively enforce their policies to target people on the political right. The users above are still allowed to tag it up on Twitter because their racial hatred is targeting Pai.

This is undoubtedly due to the fact that Twitter has been supportive of net neutrality regulations and Pai was successful in overturning them. That's why they're fine with not banning users who advocate violence against Pai while they call him every racial slur in the books. They view Pai as an enemy even though he is a racial minority.

This shows that Twitter doesn't actually believe in preventing violence, hate or racism. These are just excuses used to shut down the political speech of people they disagree with. That's what this is all about. It's the phoniest thing imaginable.

Twitter is flat out refusing to provide services to people based on their political beliefs. It would be like the phone company in the 1960s refusing to provide a phone line to someone because they disliked their political views. What we are seeing is an obvious case of discrimination against an entire group of people. The government needs to step in and start regulating Twitter. They are completely out of control and need to be reigned in.

Twitter has really stepped up their thought policing efforts with new policies that went into affect today. The new policies pretty much allow them to ban anybody they want for any reason.

Twitter had previously announced that they were planning on implementing even more stringent policies to ban users who have dared to express wrong think. Some of those measures went into affect today.

The new policy itself is quite insane. It basically means that they'll be banning almost anyone that has a political view to the right of Karl Marx. Think I'm joking? The policy is so vague that they can apply it to ban almost anybody they want.

Here are the relevant portions outlining who they plan on dropping the ban hammer on.

Twitter Blog:

Accounts that affiliate with organizations that use or promote violence against civilians to further their causes. Groups included in this policy will be those that identify as such or engage in activity—both on and off the platform—that promotes violence. This policy does not apply to military or government entities and we will consider exceptions for groups that are currently engaging in (or have engaged in) peaceful resolution.

Content that glorifies violence or the perpetrators of a violent act. This includes celebrating any violent act in a manner that may inspire others to replicate it or any violence where people were targeted because of their membership in a protected group. We will require offending Tweets to be removed and repeated violations will result in permanent suspension.

Any account that abuses or threatens others through their profile information, including their username, display name, or profile bio. If an account's profile information includes a violent threat or multiple slurs, epithets, racist or sexist tropes, incites fear, or reduces someone to less than human, it will be permanently suspended. We plan to develop internal tools to help us identify violating accounts to supplement user reports.

Hateful imagery will now be considered sensitive media under our media policy. We consider hateful imagery to be logos, symbols, or images whose purpose is to promote hostility and malice against others based on their race, religion, disability, sexual orientation, or ethnicity/national origin. If this type of content appears in header or profile images, we will now accept profile-level reports and require account owners to remove any violating media.

So if you expose the savage like nature of various non-Whites, they'll ban you from the service. Having a Pepe the Frog or Groyper avatar could get you banned. Even hurting someone's feelings could get you banned. And you don't even have to post wrong think on Twitter to be subjected to this policy. Offline wrong think can also get you banned.

It appears as if Britain First's Jayda Fransen, American Renaissance's Jared Taylor and Occidental Dissent's Hunter Wallace have already been banned.

It has begun...

What's funny is how all of these leftists are using terms like "snowflakes" to criticize people who have issues with this policy. They don't know how to troll worth a shit. They're the ones who are supporting an online safe space where anybody who challenges their political views is banned. You don't get to be much more of a "snowflake" than that.

The good news is that Twitter's new policy greatly expands the number of users who can get banned. Since leftists are by their nature openly violent, there's a good chance that Twitter will have to purge many of them as well.

/mode #chan +b *!*@*

This policy ensures that fewer and fewer people are going to use the service. One of the original appeals of Twitter was the conflict that occurred between people with differing political views.

The fallout from the financial disaster that "ban fucking everyone" is going to cause is going to increase calls for government intervention in the social media space. Sites like Facebook and Twitter have become the public square of the 21st century. Private corporations with monopoly-like powers shouldn't be choosing who can and who can't participate.

Not only should they not be allowed to do it, they don't want to do it. @jack held out with "free speech wing of the free speech party" then got caught on the slippery slope when he banned Andrew Anglin, MILO and Chuck Johnson. He bent and broke, being bullied into mass bannings. The company is effectively committing suicide.

Leftists are hailing him as a hero for shutting it down. I remember a short period of time ago when leftists were all about dismantling the big corporations. Apparently, they don't mind big monopolies so long as they are censoring the political viewpoints of their opponents. The fact that they support this reveals how intellectually dishonest these people are. Their entire world view is based off of childish emotional reactions instead of reasoned objective logic.

The great Twitter purge is in full swing. It will be interesting to see who is left standing. I personally dare @jack to ban Donald Trump.

Negro Felon League Week 15: Poor Attendance and Ratings Yet Again

Lee Rogers

Daily Stormer

December 18, 2017

As we have discussed over the past several weeks, the National Football League, better known as the Negro Felon League, has hit tough times. The national anthem protests have ruined the league's brand, resulting in fewer and fewer people attending and watching games.

Week 15 was no different. Check out some of these pictures.

Ratings for the league's Thursday Night Football game were the lowest of the season.

Sportsnaut:

For whatever the reason—pre-holiday activities, housecleaning, work, or simply catching up on sleep—most people had better things to do than watch Thursday Night Football in Week 15.

As such, Thursday's tilt featuring the Denver Broncos playing at the Indianapolis Colts drew the lowest ratings of this year's Thursday night games. According to a report by Dominic Patten of Deadline, last night's game drew 7.4/13 in "metered market results."

Per the report, this year's Thursday night finale attracted 26 percent less viewership than the final TNF game that took place last season.

It is interesting how all of these mainstream-oriented sites keep making excuses for the poor ratings and attendance. We all know why people are tuning out. It is because the league is filled with large numbers of overgrown apes who have been disrespecting the country. They just don't want to admit the obvious.

Currently, the NFL has the highest unfavorable ratings out of all the big sports leagues.

After the 9/11 attacks, all of the major sports leagues including the NFL closely aligned itself with patriotism and the military. The league was marketed around these things for a long period of time. That is why these national anthem protests have been so damaging. These players have stupidly undermined this marketing strategy and disrespected patriotic White Americans.

We can expect more empty seats and low ratings next week as well. It sure is fun watching the decline of this monkey ball crap though. It is proof that we are winning the culture war.

#MeToo: Chris Matthews Previously Accused of Sexual Harassment

Lee Rogers
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

Chris Matthews was accused of sexual harassment back in 1999. In the age of #MeToo, this means he must lose his job in current year and be forever remembered as a sex pervert.

It looks as if MSNBC host Chris Matthews has been ensnared in #MeToo. He along with his employer was forced to pay a woman who complained that he was sexually harassing her.

Daily Caller:

An MSNBC spokesman confirmed Saturday the company made a separation-related payment to one of Chris Matthews employees after the woman complained about sexual harassment.

Two sources familiar with the situation told The Daily Caller that Matthews paid $40,000 to settle with an assistant producer on his show, "Hardball with Chris Matthews," in 1999 after she accused him of harassment. An MSNBC spokesperson contested that claim to the Caller, saying the company instead paid significantly less as part of a severance package.

The woman complained to CNBC executives about Matthews making inappropriate comments and jokes about her while in the company of others.

The MSNBC spokesman said that they thoroughly reviewed the situation at the time and that Matthews received a formal reprimand. Based on people who were involved in the matter, the network concluded that the comments were inappropriate and juvenile but were not intended to be taken as propositions.

Does Matthews actually think that making inappropriate comments and jokes is acceptable in the modern workplace? It doesn't matter if this happened back in 1999. It could have happened in 1899 and it would still be a problem.

The fact that the company and Matthews had to pay this woman is definitive proof that Matthews needs to be fired from his job. It shows that even the company knew that Matthews had been engaging in bad behavior.

In the age of #MeToo, women have been fully empowered to destroy any man's career at will. All they have to do is allege wrongdoing. Matthews as someone who has actively promoted feminism throughout his media career and so should be fully supportive of #MeToo even if it costs him his own job.

Only through full female empowerment can we ever hope to end sexual harassment in the workplace. Matthews as a privileged White male should understand this.

Now that this information is public, MSNBC must fire Matthews immediately. They have no choice in the matter. Not doing so would show MSNBC's management to be sexist and against women. I personally hope that they replace Matthews with a Black tranny.

Papa John Steps Down as CEO of Papa John's – Daily Stormer Blamed!

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer

HAHAHAHAHAHA!
DON'T BLAME ME FOR THIS,
PAPA JOHN—I WAS ONLY TRYING TO HELP!!

Seriously though buddy, this happened because you denied Neo-Nazi support.

Business Insider:

Papa John's controversial CEO and founder is stepping down.

On Thursday, Papa John's announced that founder John Schnatter would step down as CEO. Schnatter will be replaced by the company's current president Steve Ritchie.

Schnatter sparked controversy in November when he slammed NFL leadership over the ongoing national anthem protests.

"Leadership starts at the top, and this is an example of poor leadership," CEO John Schnatter said in a call with investors.

The CEO's statements quickly inspired backlash on the left and support on the right. The white supremacist website The Daily Stormer even posted an article asking whether Papa John's was the "official pizza of the alt right," forcing the company to say it does not want "hate groups" buying the chain's pizza.

Schnatter owns roughly 25% of Papa John's, and will stay on as chairman after stepping down as CEO in January. According to a press release from the company, he will "pursue his personal passion for entrepreneurship, leadership development and education."

Let this be a lesson to all—if I happen to endorse your company, just run with it. People hate niggers and they like buying things from anti-nigger companies. Conversely, people do not like social signaling against white people.

We will work with the players and league to find a positive way forward. Open to ideas from all. Except neo-nazis—those guys. (3/3)

DyRo's Letter to Pakistani Fake Reformed Nazi "Christian Picciolini"

Andrew Andrew
Daily Stormer
December 20, 2017

Dylann Roof, a young boy who was prosecuted for "murder" for defending himself after black mammies attacked him at church.

I wrote the other day about how civil rights activist Dylann Roof sent a letter responding to the Pakistani fake reformed Nazi "Christian Picciolini."

It turns out that DyRo read the bastard's shitty ass book after having been sent a copy.

Here's the full letter he sent the Paki.

Traitor,

You've really cashed in haven't you? I know you won't be but you really should be ashamed of yourself. I hope you know you are 100 times worse than the Jews you've surrounded yourself with. You couldn't handle the mental stress that comes along with white nationalism, so you took the easy way out. But what is so disgusting about you is that rather than just leave white nationalism behind, you decided to devote your time to undermining your own race. Now you are traveling around Eastern Europe looking for white racial awareness wherever you can find it because you know there is no racism from whites for you to fight here. I can only image the mental hoops you have to jump through, the cognitive dissonance that you must employ on a daily basis.

If your book is meant to be an argument against racism or "hate", you've failed. That's not your fault because no logical argument exists and none of them hold up to even a small amount of critical thinking. But I'm sure you haven't been doing too much of that lately. Do you realize that the only argument you have, the only point you make is that it is wrong to go around with so much hate in your heart? And do you realize that this is solely based on emotion, not facts? I mean really what is the point of your book? If we took out the last few chapters of your book, it would actually make the case for white nationalism, not against it.

I won't even go into your allegedly blaming yourself for your brother's death or your comments on the Leftist protestors which are so ridiculous I literally guffawed.

One of the unforgivable sins is to know the truth and deny it. I am unable to understand how you are able to live with yourself. Have fun beating a dead horse.

- Dylann Roof

It's a great letter.

Although, I want to express clearly that "Christian Picciolini" is clearly not white.

He is a Pakistani or a Pashtun.

To that of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed:

He is simply a younger, fatter version of the infamous terrorist, and may in fact be his biological son. Although Pakistanis are so inbred, he wouldn't need to be his son to look exactly like him.

I assume that DyRo only saw the picture of the scumbag on the cover of his book:

And was unable to gather that he was a Paki, simply taking him at his word.

But yeah.

The letter is good, if it was actually a traitor. But there aren't really any traitors. After you go Nazi, you can't really ever go back.

Because, you know.

The Matrix.

You can't ever get plugged back into it.

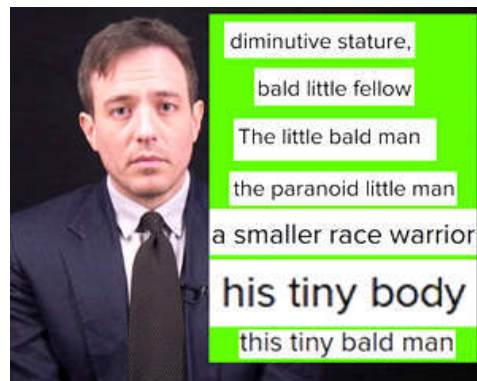

If you're here, you're here to stay, and that's just something you're going to have to accept.

You can regret knowing, if you're a coward, but you can't ever get away from the truth.

Huffington Post on Andrew Anglin: "Did We Mention He's Short???"

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 19, 2017

Luke O'Brien is a YUGE journalist

The Jews won't respond to any of our ideas, because all of our claims are factual. As such, when attacking us, they must get creative.

The problem is that they don't really have access to creative people. What they have access to are women and deranged, failed losers.

Huffington Post has just published a bizarre piece of fiction about me—and the author, Luke O'Brien, wants you to remember: Anglin is short.

He says it no less than 7 times in his community college-tier creative writing piece.

O'Brien is the guy who spent a year writing a fantasy story about me for The Atlantic, during which time he stalked and threatened my friends and family.

This came after he sent me fake FBI communications, which I published, effectively eliminating any chance he would ever be taken seriously as a journalist.

Now, he's back where he belongs at the Huffington blog.

And this piece really takes the cake.

Politics America's Most Notorious Neo-Nazi Is On The Lam. Won't You Come Home, Andrew Anglin?

He's writing for free (Huffington Post doesn't pay its bloggers), but even so, it is a little bit shocking that it was published.

Sure, fake news, okay. Moving to straight creative writing fiction maybe makes sense. But this is just embarrassingly poor writing.

What is the inspiration for it even? It reads like a middle schooler trying to imitate a 1930s pulp magazine's purple prose, but lacking the vocabulary.

Look.

The king of the Nazi trolls was in the supermarket, and he seemed nervous. Surely it was him. The shaved head, the diminutive stature, the paranoid aspect—there is no mistaking the guy when you know what you're looking for. And on the afternoon of Dec. 10, at the Meijer grocery store in Reynoldsburg, Ohio, the bald little fellow scanning the aisles with a hunted look could've been none other than Andrew Anglin.

He is, his lawyers continued, "not a citizen of any State." A "stateless" person, in other words. He lives abroad, they appeared to suggest, in Lagos, Nigeria.

But then who was this tiny bald man buying protein powder in a Meijer 6,000 miles from Lagos, just days after the motion had been filed? This guy had a big tub of the white stuff. Anglin writes periodically about his workouts. He favors deadlifts, squats and other powerlifting moves, the kind that typically require a gym membership. The kind a smaller race warrior might seek to supplement with, say, whey protein isolate.

As this furtive customer slid into a self-checkout line, his eyes darted from side to side. Was he stupid not to have worn a hat to cover his shaved head? Was he being watched?

He was.

But Anglin wanted to hide something. Was it the address on the police report? That three-bedroom house owned by his father? That's the one Anglin gave as his residence in 2006, not long after he'd dropped out of Ohio State University, whose campus was only a few blocks away, and shortly before he moved to the Philippines to lose his mind in the jungle. A house that might make a good residence for a demented troll who'd remade himself as a fascist online gang-leader and wanted to return home to advocate for genocide while having easy access to restaurants and nightlife.

In September, he surfaced on, of all places, an Israeli television program to discuss an anti-Semitic alt-right meme that Yair Netanyahu, the son of Israel's right-wing President Benjamin Netanyahu, posted to his Facebook page. Conferencing in by video from a dank room in an undisclosed location to rant about George Soros and "the Jews," Anglin looked haggard and bruised, as if he were aging at a terrible rate, his tiny body unable to withstand the stress of life on the lam.

Two weeks after that TV appearance, Ploesser staked out another property in Columbus owned by Greg Anglin. A house on Hamlet Street in the booming Italian Village neighborhood. The process servers got a tip from a neighbor who'd seen a man resembling Anglin taking out the trash. Ploesser spent days watching the house, rushing to the scene whenever another tip came in. An old black Toyota Camry wagon was often parked behind the property in an alley.

On the night of Oct. 3, Ploesser moved in. She knocked. A light was on in the house, but nobody came to the door. She did another door-knock a few nights later, and encountered a white man in his 20s.

"I got some mail here for Andy," Ploesser told him, using the nickname Anglin went by growing up in Columbus.

The man didn't react.

"I'm sorry," Ploesser said. "I meant Andrew."

The man froze, a panicky look on his face.

"I'm sorry, there's no one here by that name," he said and shut the door.

"It appeared he was lying," Ploesser dryly noted in a write-up of her service attempts.

It was October, and Anglin had melted back into the shadows. Ploesser was pulled off the case. Gersh and the SPLC resorted to service by publication, which occurs when a judge allows a plaintiff to serve a defendant who cannot be found or is in hiding by publishing a public notice in a general circulation newspaper for a period of time.

...

The nature of the troll is to skulk, emerging only periodically from its burrows for fresh meat.

Which brings us back to the attorneys' suggestion that Anglin exists in a special diaspora of the federally unlitigable.

The Nazi In The Supermarket

But now Randazza and his Nazi troll-master client may have to reckon with something else entirely: a person who swears he saw Anglin in the Columbus area while Randazza was lawyerin'. This was at the Meijer east of Columbus, right on the line between Reynoldsburg and Blacklick, and the man who is certain he spotted Anglin was one of the process servers who'd been hired to find him— a person better equipped to identify Anglin than almost anyone.

Here's the kicker:

The process server, who asked that his name be withheld, happened to be shopping with his son on Dec. 10, a Sunday. He'd spent many hours trying to find Anglin. Now his target appeared to be standing in a checkout line a few feet away from him. The process server moved behind the customer and edged closer to try to look at his wallet. The little bald man took out a credit card, thought twice about it and put the card away. Instead, he produced a currency envelope from Fifth Third Bank. Safer to use cash. As the man pulled out a wad of bills, he glanced over his shoulder.

"I am 106.5 percent it was him. No doubt in my frickin' mind. No doubt in a million years." the process server told me. "On Sunday, December 10, around 1 p.m., Andrew Anglin was in Reynoldsburg, Ohio. I'll fly to any court I need to and testify to that."

But the process server had left his paperwork in the office. He couldn't serve the man. He could, however, confront him. "I said, 'You know what? Screw this,'" as he wheeled his shopping cart in front of the customer, who'd paid for his powder and was heading for the exit.

"Hey, man," the process server said, studying the target's face. "You look like someone I know. Is your name Andrew?"

"Nope," the man said abruptly. Too abruptly, the process server thought. And that was all he said.

Trolls, particularly of the Nazi variety, often behave in a similar manner when exposed. They deny their own existence. They flee. And this is what the paranoid little man who looked exactly like Andrew Anglin did. He walked quickly around the process server's cart, left the store and, without looking back, made a beeline for a black car at the far end of the parking lot. "An older used car," the process server told me. "Possibly a Toyota." He wanted to give chase but couldn't leave his son.

Wew.

Okay so, let's break this down.

Firstly, as an accomplished writer, I can give this advice to you, Luke:

- You need to read more, buddy. You don't have any natural skill, and you're in your fifties, so becoming a good writer is not in the cards. However, since you've decided that you're comfortable pretending to be a journalist while simply making things up and putting your real name on it, your boldness should be able to outweigh the lack of ability. But you need to have some grasp of the language.
- Get a thesaurus—if you're going to turn alleged news stories into rambling attempts at ambiatric crime fiction, you need some ambiance.
- Never use the phrase "which brings us back to..." —ever.

There's a chance, Luke, that the Huffington blog might let you write an article for free once a week. But you're gonna need to do better than this. If this is what your output is going to look like, they're only going to let you write about me.

Furthermore, if you're going to just make stuff up, it needs to be more believable—i.e., not using tropes you learned in creative writing class at whatever community college you attended. The deus ex machina of a process server randomly running into me—you did this same thing in the Atlantic article when you said a protester randomly ran into me:

The day I arrived, the city's weekly paper, Columbus Alive, published a long feature about Anglin. The next evening, Anglin walked into a supermarket where a protester who'd been quoted in the story worked. She later told me that despite the bitter cold, he wore only a white T-shirt and black track pants. Holding a can of Monster Ultra Blue, an energy drink, he approached her and looked her in the eye. "How's it going?" he said, before strolling off into the night.

How do all of these people just randomly run into me?

And come now, Luke. I have a "tiny body," so I was buying whey protein to try and bulk up?

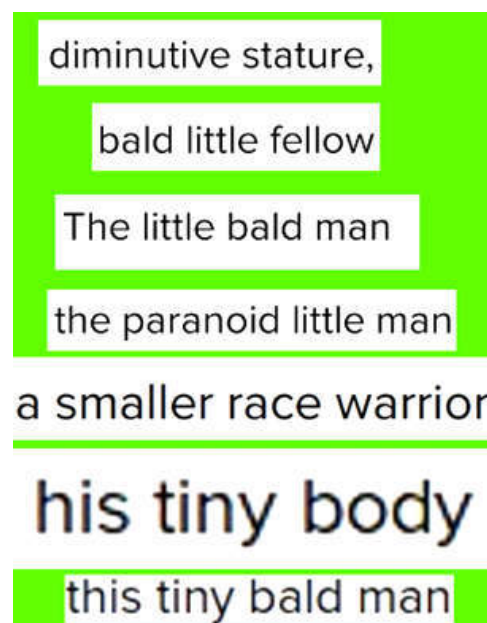

Prose that somehow manages to be both stilted and garish wrapped around Saved by the Bell-tier plot devices.

Both times the individuals are unnamed, both times they happened to run into me buying something.

Tsk-tsk.

It's bad writing, Luke. Bad, bad writing.

Again, the guy said short SEVEN TIMES, including the staggeringly deranged-sounding "tiny body" line.

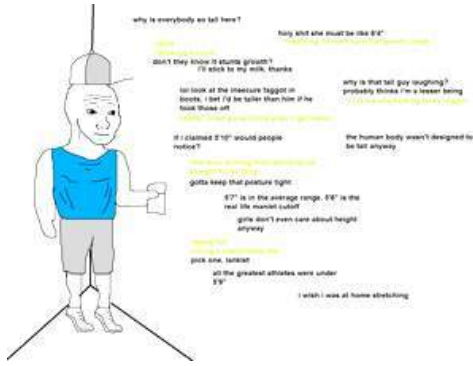

He's acting as though he's trying to get in my head, but in fact he's simply shouting out to the whole world how deeply I'm in his.

You can picture him muttering "tiny man" over and over and over again, shaking, as he tries to justify the reality that he has shaped his life around me.

He published my 2013 driver's license, which shows me at 5'7" and 140 lbs.

So yes. I am relative short. You got me.

But your job is not to tell the world about my height, Luke. I am not famous for that. A magazine gave you a cover article, and you failed to come up with even a single sliver of insight into how and why I came to these ideas, or how and why there are hundreds of thousands of young men in this country who have come to share them. Instead, at 50-something years old, you are calling me names, writing free for a disreputable SJW blog, making up stories about me.

With that Atlantic story, Luke, everyone knew you were lying. No news outlet save for NPR reported on it, and they did it before it was published. You had the opportunity to write something meaningful, and you blew it.

You need to ask yourself what is going on here, buddy. What it is that is going on in your head. What are you accomplishing by continually publicly humiliating yourself in such a degrading way?

Right now, you are simply presuming I am “evil” somehow because that is the accepted reality created by the Jewish fake news media. You are saying: “I’m a good boy. Luke is a good, good boy because he is against the bad man. Luke good boy. Luke for free write blog about bad man. Luke helping.”

If you are genuinely on a Crusade against me because of some moral imperative you have, you need to define that to yourself before your writing is going to be readable. Maybe your passion for hating me will inspire others.

The entire premise of the Atlantic piece—“I’m going to dig up dirt on this guy and then when I don’t find it I’ll just make it up”—was unmoving. Even if you’d found a mangled corpse in my closet, you wouldn’t have actually proved anything about what I am arguing politically. If I am evil, you need to be able to explain why I am evil, and you need to believe in it yourself.

That is my ultimate creative writing tip, Luke: you need to find your passion.

If you are only doing this because your life is meaningless and you’ve accomplished absolutely nothing of value in your decades here on earth, and so feel that you can do something meaningful by tearing down a man who has accomplished something, using name-calling and goofy lies, then I promise you, you are going to keep losing.

Because we’ve already started the fire. If you were able to somehow destroy me, it would mean very little in the larger scheme of what I am working towards. That is what accomplishment is, Luke: building something that goes beyond yourself. And that is not compatible with being a deranged, obsessive pervert writing fake news trying impotently to destroy an accomplished man for reasons that you can’t even explain.

Yes, I Live in Nigeria

It is a confirmed fact that I live in Nigeria, but the fake news media are too big of cowards to visit a country filled up with blacks.

Which makes it especially interesting that they are trying to fill America up with blacks.

Here’s a random picture from my phone that you won’t find in a reverse image search.

I have offered multiple journalists a chance to meet with me here in Lagos, and none have taken me up on the offer.

HELP LUKE

Luke also kindly included his phone number and email, which you can use to give him story tips.

In Support of Pit Genocide

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 19, 2017

The worst dog has claimed yet another life.

This time they just killed their own owner for no clear reason. AOL:

A woman who was found dead in the woods in Goochland County, Virginia, was mauled to death by her own dogs, authorities said.

The body of 22-year-old woman Bethany Lynn Stephens was found by her father on Thursday at around 8 p.m., according to WTVR.

After failing to hear from his daughter, the concerned parent called 911 and then went looking for her in an area where she often walked her dogs, Pac-Man and Tonka.

Stephens's father eventually discovered his daughter's mangled body, which he said was being aggressively "guarded" by the two animals.

Goochland County Sheriff James Agnew said that once officers arrived at the scene, they spent over an hour trying to capture the large pit bulls, which are believed to both weigh as much as their 5-foot-1, 125-pound owner.

Stephens' body was then taken to a medical examiner's office, where the gruesome details of the attack came to light.

"The first traumatic injury to her was to her throat and face," Sheriff Agnew said after reviewing the medical examiner's initial report. "It appears she was taken to the ground, lost consciousness, and the dogs then mauled her to death."

"The victim had defensive wounds on her hands and arms trying to keep the dogs away from her, which would be consistent with being attacked while she was still alive."

"It was an absolutely grisly mauling," he added. "In my 40 years of law enforcement, I've never seen anything quite like it. I hope I never see anything like it again."

...

Barbara Norris, who says she was best friends with the victim, told

WWBT that the dogs she knew would never turn on her friend like that.

"Those dogs would not attack her," said Norris. "They'd kill you with kisses." A Change.org petition started by Norris on the dogs' behalf has already racked up thousands of signatures.

"PLEASE help save these poor babies! Somethings not right with this story and they are euthanizing her babies," she wrote on the page.

That is the mind of a pit bull believer: the mauling was a conspiracy.

These people will never stop. Just like negro defenders. Pit bulls are the niggers of the dog realm.

They even have evil, niggerlike faces.

Why are these horrible animals still legal?

The only valid argument for them to be bred is for blood sports.

Which, incidentally, is the reason pit bulls were bred in the first place.

Wikipedia:

Pit bulls were created by breeding bulldogs and terriers together to produce a dog that combined the gameness and agility of the terrier with the strength of the bulldog. In the United Kingdom, these dogs were used in blood sports such as bull-baiting and bear-baiting. These blood sports were officially eliminated in 1835 as Britain began to introduce animal welfare laws. Since dog-fights were cheaper to organize and far easier to conceal from the law than bull or bear baits, blood sport proponents turned to pitting their dogs against each other instead. Dog fighting was used as both a blood sport (often involving gambling) and a way to continue to test the quality of their stock. For decades afterwards, dog fighting clandestinely took place in small areas of Britain and America. In the early 20th century pit bulls were used as catch dogs in America for semi-wild cattle and hogs, to hunt, and drive livestock, and as family companions. Some have been selectively bred for their fighting prowess.

Pit bulls also constitute the majority of dogs used for illegal dog fighting in America. In addition, law enforcement organisations report these dogs are used for other nefarious purposes, such as guarding illegal narcotics operations, use against police, and as attack dogs.

nb4 ethics of dog fighting—okay, whatever, I'm just telling you that this would be the only argument for not genociding them. The ethics of dog-fighting itself is a separate issue.

The ethics of bear-baiting is an entirely separate third issue.

I can see how bear-baiting is no longer necessary, now that we have video games, but that 150 or so years between the end of bear-baiting and the advent of video games...not a time I would have wanted to live, I can tell you that.

Wait wait wait, back to the issue at hand.

The nigger-dog.

Why would you specifically choose one that is bred to commit extreme acts of violence?

Even if you need a guard dog—a pit bull isn't necessarily stronger than various breeds of guard dog, it is just more unpredictably violent. A Bullmastiff, a Doberman or even a German shepherd will defend you as well as a pit bull, they just won't snap and attack you.

Guard dogs are guard dogs, fighting dogs are fighting dogs.

A guard dog is designed to be loyal to its owner and defend him (or her) while a fighting dog is designed to be let out of a cage and fight a bull, a bear or another dog.

We have a completely insane situation now where dogs SPECIFICALLY DESIGNED for blood sports are being sold as pets and—surprise, surprise—they are killing people.

I cannot imagine any reasonable defense for this situation. And if you look at the defenses fans of them offer, they don't make any sense. In fact, they remind me of arguments for having niggers.

It is all: "yeah but they're not all like that."

Well, okay. No one is saying that they're all like that. We are just saying that the overwhelming majority of dog attacks are from a specific breed and that if you removed that breed, there would be many less dog attacks.

Seriously, how many different types of dogs are there?

Freedoms

Look, I understand it's a quandary. I am all for freedoms and so on. And I don't really care that this stupid bitch bought a dog bred to kill and it ended up killing her.

I don't want to make the "why would you need that" argument for the call to ban them. I will make that argument as a general argument for how stupid it is, but I get that the "why would you need that" argument is used by gun-grabbing kikes, so for the legal argument we need a separate argument.

And that is this: these dogs don't usually kill their own owners, they usually maul or kill other random people. Pit bull owners are putting the entire society at risk out of a selfish drive to make some weird fashion statement.

I am not anti-dog-that-can-potentially-kill-you. I am anti-berserker-dog.

Any large dog can potentially kill a human if it fears for its life or the life of it's master (or if it is trained to kill people randomly), but the only dog that goes full berserker and kills people at random is the pit bull.

That and dogs that are already illegal, such as wolf-hybrids.

You're not allowed to have pet lions and tigers, even though such a thing is theoretically possible (the Arabs do it).

There is no reason that a selfish individual should be able to put the whole neighborhood at risk of suddenly having their throat randomly ripped out.

We need to commit a genocide against pit bulls, or at the very least stop breeding them for any purpose other than bear-baiting.

Honestly, I don't even understand how this is controversial.

Trolling the Media with My Own Style Guide

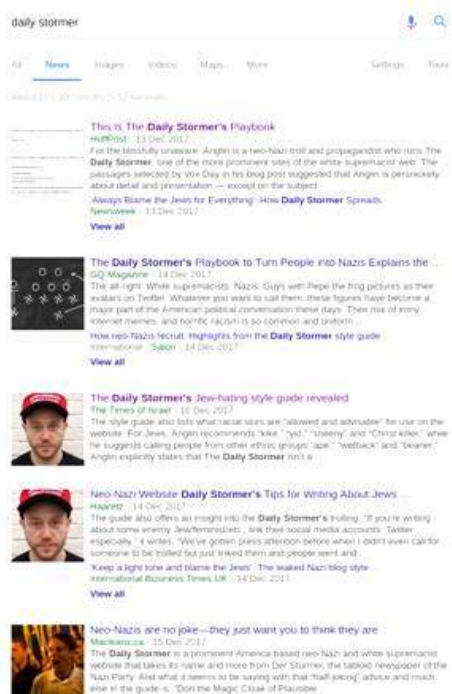

Andrew Anglin
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

POLITICS 12/15/2017 04:00 am EST Updated 4 mins ago

This Is The Daily Stormer's Playbook

A leaked style guide reveals they're Nazis about grammar (and about Jews).

By Ashley Feinberg

As you may have heard, the Huffington Post got a hold of super sekret Daily Stormer internal documents outlining a conspiracy to exterminate rat kikes like the rats that they are—using insecticide.

Brilliant female Jew Ashley Feinberg uncovered the mystery by infiltrating a super sekret chat room.

In the sekret chat, she uncovered the site's style guide, which not only includes grammar, but also a plan to manipulate the media into feeding us hype as we weaponize internet culture to throw a revolution against the Jews who rule us.

And the result was the biggest news cycle that The Stormer has gotten since Charlottesville, praising us with faint damning as diabolical geniuses who had outsmarted the media...by forcing the media to cover us.

It even had “Daily Stormer” trending on Twitter for a spell.

Of course, the document wasn't secret, and had been published on our forum over a year ago when we were recruiting writers. It was also distributed widely in .pdf form to anyone who asked for it. It was never meant to be a secret document—everything included in it is stuff that I have written about on this site, probably verbosely.

But “sekret dox” makes for a lot sexier a tale, which is what this guide needed.

Here's the story.

Vox Day had a copy of this a while back, which he believed was a secret document. That made it clear that someone with a middle range IQ, who is not very familiar with the details of the site, and my openness about the tactics we use to manipulate people, would think this was a secret document.

So someone told me they thought there was a journalist prodding a chat room, and asked me if there was anything I wanted done with that. So I said, “yeah, post that style guide.”

I didn't expect it to work as well as it did.

But yes.

I got mass mainstream media attention for a document about how to manipulate the mainstream media into giving me mass mainstream media attention.

Although it doesn't pack as big of a punch as #PrayForMizzou or “busing in 200 skinheads and a member of Hamas for a 3 mile snow-march through Montana,” it is among the career accomplishments that I personally view as my greatest.

Part of this is just self-congratulations, sure. But more than that, the guide demonstrates to the naysayers within our own camp and the uninitiated alike that what we do on this site is serious business. We have goals and we are accomplishing those goals. Having it published in such a grandiose manner—by the entire media itself—proves definitively and undeniably that the methods laid out within the guide do work for their stated purpose. This is now something that intelligent people will be drawn to. Because here we are doing something intelligent. We are using the weight of an empire to collapse its foundations.

It also ups the ante in the culture war, directly. Like the “Fringe Insurgency” document (one of my other personally meaningful accomplishments), the publishing of this guide is a call for the media and Jews generally to attempt to devise a strategy to directly combat our strategy.

I feel very strongly that any such attempt will work in our favor. The “fake news” meme was in itself a primitive attempt to counter-meme, and that ended up being completely reversed on them, with all of their energy poured into attacking themselves.

Every escalation works in our favor, resulting in a raised profile, resulting in cultural credit, resulting in solidifying our position as the default youth culture. Like the Absorbing Man, we get stronger with every hit we take.

If the document is to be taken seriously and discussed, the obvious response would be to stop responding to us. But Jews cannot do nothing. I know that.

And if they somehow could do nothing, that would mean backing the fuck up off of me and letting me get my website back to normal and continue my steady growth rather than becoming an international celebrity supervillain.

Oh.

And I was planning to publish the guide on the site this week anyway, as we're doing a hiring push and I want people to follow it in their submissions. So it worked out great.

I'll have the details about that up tomorrow. Until then, you can read the Daily Stormer writer's guide over at Huffington Post.

Alternet: "Is the FCC Chairman a Closeted Alt-Right Sympathizer?"

Adrian Sol
Daily Stormer
December 18, 2017

Well, anyone who loves Reeses peanut butter cups can't be all that bad, I can tell you that.

The removal of "Net Neutrality" has generated a level of liberal butt-hurt I've rarely seen before, and on those grounds alone I can only applaud the decision for the spectacle it generates.

It's also a very good policy that's sure to help modernize America's obsolete internet infrastructure.

Now, angry leftists are accusing the FCC chairman Ajit Pai, a dot

Indian, of being some kind of Alt-Right sympathizer.

Alternet:

On Thursday, the Federal Communications Commission voted 3-2 along party lines to repeal an Obama-era regulation to preserve net neutrality, defying Silicon Valley executives and consumer advocacy groups, not to mention the will of the people. A recent University of Maryland survey finds that more than 80 percent of registered voters oppose the FCC's plans.

What a surprise, the masses side with the giant globalist corporations that control everyone's access to information.

The move will fundamentally transform the internet as we know it, allowing corporate behemoths like Verizon and Comcast to manipulate loading speeds and charge customers a premium for access to individual websites and apps. Adding insult to democratic injury, circumstantial evidence suggests the man who cast the deciding vote, Ajit Pai, sympathizes with the so-called alt-right.

"Manipulate loading speeds."

No it won't, you retards. Selective throttling is already against FCC rules. All it allows these companies to do is charge a premium to corporations like Netflix who are hogging up all the bandwidth [The internet is not a big truck and you can't just dump things on it. - AA]. This is why these Silicon Valley types are against it—they don't want to be the ones who pay for the infrastructure costs their own business requires.

Why would Comcast charge the users extra for their access to Netflix, when they can now just charge Netflix themselves?

This is why all these corporations are in favor of Net Neutrality—they want to ensure that consumers are forced to pay the price of internet infrastructure, not them.

Back in November, the FCC chairman and Trump appointee unveiled his plans to junk the net neutrality rules established in 2015, arguing that websites and social media platforms, rather than internet service providers (ISPs), posed the greatest threat to an open internet. At the time, Pai singled out Twitter for blame.

"The company has a viewpoint and uses that viewpoint to discriminate," he told the R Street Institute, a libertarian-minded think tank. "And to say the least, the company appears to have a double standard when it comes to suspending or deactivating conservative users' accounts as opposed to those of liberal users. This conduct is many things, but it isn't fighting for an open internet."

It's difficult to know exactly who Pai had in mind, but Slate's April Glaser notes that Twitter recently deverified the accounts of several prominent white supremacists, including Laura Loomer and Jason Kessler.

In the minds of Alternet journalists, Jews can be White supremacists. Wew.

"What's weird about Pai's comments is that while these are all figures on the right, conservatives don't typically count them among their ranks," Glaser writes. "And while conservatives do sometimes cast themselves as ideological victims of Silicon Valley's overreach, there have been no recent deverifications of prominent right-wing figures, 'conservative' or otherwise, not known for promoting hate. In other words, according to Pai, the demotion of racists on a social network is a bigger deal than an action that could radically change the architecture of—and who succeeds on—the internet."

Sounds about right.

The fact that these major corporations crack down on political speech they disagree with completely undermined their hoax claim that they “care about free-speech.”

Twitter certainly doesn't care about free-speech. Only their bandwidth costs.

There is a standard for what speech is allowed in America. It's called the first amendment. Anyone not following that standard is de facto engaging in politically motivated censorship.

After the FCC chairman pleaded his case that social media networks were suppressing free speech, he earned the effusive praise of far-right radio host Matt Forney and Andrew Torba of Gab, a platform where users “are generally free to be as racist or anti-Semitic as they'd like without fear of being reprimanded or censored,” according to Slate.

Pai is not Alt-Right.

But like other departments of the Trump administration, the FCC is doing a great job of trolling liberals and Jews into histrionics.

Feels good, man.
